BRADY IS HELD TO GRAND JURY IN BOMB CASE

DEFENSE CONSIDERS HABEAS CORPUS WRIT

Boy Describes Delivering "Box of Hate" and Its Resulting Blast.

Lawrence Leroy Brady, 26 years old, Washington automobile mechanic, was held for action of the April term of the Prince Georges grand jury yesterday on charges of murder after a preliminary hearing that disappointed a packed courtroom by its brevity.

Defense counsel announced last night that they have not decided whether they will file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in an effort to free Leroy from jail. They intimated, however, that they believed that the evidence introduced at the preliminary hearing was "laughably weak."

Brady is charged with first degree murder in connection with the New Year's Day bombing at Seat Pleasant which took the lives of three persons and seriously injured three others. Naomi Hall Brady, 18 years old, expectant mother; her sister, Dorothy, 4, and her brother, Samuel, 18 months old, died as the result of injuries received when a bomb camouflaged as a Christmas box exploded in their home at Seat Pleasant.

Mrs. Nora Hall, 45 years old, and her two sons, Leslie Hall, 16, and Thomas Hall, 8, are in Providence Hospital, seriously injured.

Brother Takes Stand.

The high light of the hearing came when Herman Brady, 22, widower of Naomi and brother of Leroy, took the stand. The densely crowded courtroom waited in deep silence and with bated breath for Herman's testimony.

It was when Herman refused to testify on the ground that he might incriminate himself that a previous hearing last Friday was postponed.

As the witness was sworn, former State's Attorney J. Wilson Ryon, assisting State's Attorney J. Frank Parran in the prosecution, asked:

"Herman, before testifying, we want to ask you, will you waive immunity in any future prosecution in this case if you are allowed to testify?"

Answer Is "No."

"No," was the reply.

"You understand, now, my question, do you?" Ryon asked.

"I do, sir," Herman answered.

"That we are asking you now, will you waive a future prosecution in the investigation of your wife's death hereafter if you testify, and your answer is what?"

The answer was "no."

"I understand it to be 'no,'" Ryon said.

"Yes, sir," Herman answered.

"You are excused," Ryon told him.

As it became apparent that the sensational testimony that the crowd had expected Herman to give was not to be brought out, it became noticeable that the gathering was deeply disappointed.

They had waited patiently for more than an hour, packed together with only standing room, some of them since 9 o'clock in the morning, waiting for a "thrill," only to be disappointed when the State's attorney declared that the State was finished and asked that Leroy be held to the grand jury and Herman placed under bond of $1,000 as a State's witness.

Detective's Testimony Short.

Even the testimony of Lieut. Joseph T. Itzel, ace of the Baltimore Detective Bureau, who conducted much of the investigation into the bombing, was cut short and his testimony was restricted to identifying the statement which Herman is alleged to have made two weeks ago after telling the detectives that "if Leroy will tell the story, he can put me on the street," and placing the location of the Hall home and the home of Mrs. Annie Buckley, where the bomb was left, on Carmody road.

The statement which had been heralded far and wide by the prosecution proved as dismal a failure as a sensation as the testimony of Herman. The statement, as read by Itzel, says:

"I, Herman Brady, after being warned of my constitutional rights, make this statement, of my own free will, without any coercion, without any threats, without any promise of immunity, having been fully advised that what I say may be used against me.

"My brother and myself were to go to southern Maryland hunting last

SENATE VOTES AGAINST RAISE IN SUGAR DUTY

Old Guard Closes Its Ranks in Vain to Aid West.

RESULT OF ROLL CALL COMES AS SURPRISE

CUBAN ENVOY, HAPPY, SEES FRIENDLIER ERA

Harrison's Speech Is Given Credit for Big Share of His Victory.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Just what the Republican Old Guard means when it says party regularity was shown yesterday when some twenty of the Eastern members stood with a sextet from the West for a higher tariff on sugar.

They were routed, as they have been on virtually every important item in the bill, the Harrison amendment for the retention of existing rates winning, 48 to 38, but they proved their loyalty to their Western brethren nevertheless.

There were not more than six regulars who wanted the increase, Senator Smoot, mainly him, and Senators Shortridge, Phipps, Steiwer, Oddie and Waterman. Not even the Progressives as a block wanted it, although six of their number broke away as individuals and voted with the regulars.

Little Political Profit.

The point is that hardly more than twelve Republicans of either Eastern or Western brand stood to profit, politically speaking, by the increase, and the same twelvty Eastern regulars were willing to help them get it. The desires of the six progressives may be eliminated from consideration because the Old Guard has no love for them, which leaves the conclusion that the Old Guard was for the increase because Senators Smoot, mainly him, and Shortridge, Phipps, Steiwer and Oddie and Waterman were.

For the Easterners the increase could only mean trouble, if anything, probably nothing; but, if anything, that the Eastern consumers would have had to pay more for their sugar.

No beet or cane sugar is grown in the States of Senators Moses, Bingham or Grundy. Their States are not threatened with competition from Cuba and the Philippines.

Vote Shows Upsets.

The vote, which showed many upsets, and the result of which was a surprise, follows:

Allen, Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Gillett, Goff, Jones, Keyes, La Follette, McMaster, Metcalf, Norbeck, Norris, Pine, Robinson, of Indiana; Robsion, Schall—18.

Democrats—Ashurst, Barkley, Black, Blease, Bratton, Brock, Caraway, Connally, Dill, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Hawes, Hayden, Heflin, McKellar, Overman, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Steck, Swanson, Thomas, of Oklahoma; Trammell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh, of Massachusetts, and Wheeler—29.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead.

Republicans voting against the Harrison amendment:

Baird, Bingham, Couzens, Dale, Deneen, Frazier, Goldsborough, Gould, Greene, Grundy, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Hebert, Howell, Johnson, Kean, McCulloch, McNary, Moses, Nye, Oddie, Patterson, Phipps, Shortridge, Smoot, Steiwer, Sullivan, Thomas, of Idaho;

JAPAN CUTS POURPARLERS; AMERICAN GROUP SCOUTS WARSHIPS ABOLITION PLANS

U. S. Delegates Believe Conference Will Not Act on Idea.

FUTURE DISCUSSION OF PROJECT LIKELY

PLYMOUTH ARRIVAL SEEN EARLY TODAY

King George to Come Monday to London for Opening of Sessions.

S. S. George Washington, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Abolition of neither battleships nor submarines is likely to be considered seriously at the London naval conference, according to views expressed tonight by members of the American delegation.

This was brought out during the last evening at sea while the liner George Washington, emerging from rough weather which had battered her in the previous 24 hours, was coming into sight of the English shores.

The beams of Bishops Light were sighted at 11:15 p. m., and with the ship picking up speed in the calmer weather it was confidently predicted from the bridge that she would reach Plymouth about 7 o'clock Friday morning.

MacDonald Statement Surprises.

The statement of Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, to the effect that his country would be willing to agree to eventual abolition of capital naval craft, was received aboard ship with manifest surprise, because it apparently was issued without previous consultation with Secretary Stimson. It was stated, however, that the MacDonald utterance contains nothing which changes the previous British stand as understood by the Americans.

The whole American attitude toward the MacDonald statement can be summed up about as follows:

It is fully expected that abolition of battleships may be discussed at some future time, but it is not believed that it will be seriously considered by the London conference. The United States is definitely opposed at this time to this proposal. Lengthening of the life of battleships and a partial holiday on replacements, until 1936, will be considered, but it is though unlikely that a complete holiday on battleship building will be found generally acceptable.

Parity to Be Measuring Rod.

The general consideration upon which American naval experts insist is that in any holiday arrangement real parity should be the measuring rod. This would involve taking into account the fact that existing American battleships are of a higher average than those of Great Britain and that some of them soon will pass beyond the age of usefulness.

There is every reason to believe this point will be emphasized when the battleship discussion comes up.

How far Secretary Stimson will be prepared to go in reducing the gun power of capital ships was not disclosed.

American Data Compiled.

In every phase of the negotiations the Americans will pay attention to data compiled by naval experts relative to special advantages which might accrue to Great Britain through her far-scattered naval bases should the cruising radius of the largest ships be diminished.

The two nations are agreed regarding submarines. But while the Americans would be glad to abolish or

New York, Jan. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Ciro Terranova was arraigned today upon the charge that he hired and arranged the hold-up at the Vitale testimony dinner on December 8.

He smiled tolerantly at such goings-on (for on seven previous occasions has Mr. Terranova been arraigned), put up a $10,000 bond to assure the State that he would be making no sudden trips to visit friends and relatives in Italy, and motored back to Pelham Manor to renew domestic relations with his wife and six or seven of the kiddies.

Mr. Terranova was very pointedly not charged with procuring the murders of Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow, or of operating the artichoke racket or the Bronx plasterers' arson ring.

The situation in regard to these matters seemed to be that Police Commissioner Whalen had said he thought Mr. Terranova had been doing such things, and that Mr. Terranova had said he had not been doing such things, and that it was a draw.

Terranova's conversation with District Attorney McLaughlin in the Bronx got that official no more in-

REDUCTION SPECTER HAUNTING PREMIER

Government Angry at Cold View of Majority of Press on Parley.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, Jan. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Japanese government, the New York World News Service learns today, has forbidden its naval experts here to carry any further the preconference technical discussions arranged between Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki, head of the Tokyo delegation to the Five-Power Naval Parley, which opens Tuesday.

There is thus no doubt that Japan is displeased with the outcome of the recent conversation between her chief spokesman and the head of the British government and that London is unpleasantly surprised by Japan's manner of expressing her annoyance.

In short, the first of the many incidents expected in connection with the conference has already occurred even before three of the five delegations participating have arrived on the scene.

British Circles Surprised.

There is some surprise and pain in informed British circles tonight at strongly-worded, inspired cables from Tokyo, expressing grief and annoyance at what the Daily Telegraph's correspondent there calls the "apparent failure of the preliminary conversations between Premier MacDonald and Mr. Wakatsuki."

Japan's bid was for British support for the 7-to-10 ratio in 8-inch gun cruisers, and she hoped to get it by promising to build up to that ratio only in big cruisers, of which the United States is to have a margin over Great Britain, and not in small cruisers, in which Great Britain will excel.

Mr. MacDonald, however, advised Japan to seek agreement on cruiser ratios direct with the Americans and also declined, it is reported, to admit the Japanese claim for parity in submarines. The British premier's policy, it seems, is to try to force Japan and the United States to solve the 7 to 10 difficulty between themselves.

Japan's Plan Seems Doomed.

Japan's desire to bring about reduction in both British and American cruiser strengths is now doomed to failure and, according to Japanese sources here, this fact, which has become apparent to the Tokio delegation, accounts for the pessimism caused in Japanese government circles by Mr. Wakatsuki's reports.

Mr. MacDonald's aspiration to abolish battleships, made known yesterday, has caused newspapers to print the statement that this is the British policy, and these stories are followed up by American despatches reporting that the United States is unwilling to agree to such abolition, although Washington is in agreement with London on keeping battleships now afloat in service for a longer period than provided for in the Washington treaty.

What Britain Really Seeks.

The truth is not as simple as this. The British Lords of the Admiralty are far from willing to scrap battleships. Violent controversy between them and the Labor government would result were the idea seriously put forward. The sea lords are, however, anxious to reduce the size

OPPOSING FACTIONS ON DRY LAW GATHER

Doran and Edwards Leaders of Separate Meetings in Boston.

BOTH CONCLAVES LIVELY

Boston, Mass., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Dr. James M. Doran, Federal commissioner of prohibition, and Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, retired, known in New England as "the dady of the Twenty-sixth Division," led the opposing factions today as Boston observed the tenth anniversary of prohibition. The retired soldier attacked prohibition before a wildly cheering crowd of "wets" in historic Faneuil Hall at a meeting sponsored by the Liberal Civic League. Dr. Doran upheld the wisdom of the eighteenth amendment at a luncheon of the Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance Union. They were assisted by arrays of speakers, all of whom were prominent in religious and civic life.

Most of those attending wore black neckties, as the meeting, in addition to being a gathering of protest of the dry law, was advertised as a meeting in memoriam of 1,363 persons, who, the Liberal Civic League said, had lost their lives as the result of the enforcement of the prohibition law.

The remarks of Gen. Edwards, Conrad W. Crooker, general counsel of the league; Representative John C. Schafer, of Wisconsin, and E. Pitzroy Anderson, general chairman of the Organized Associations, Inc., of New York, received enthusiastic response.

To the "drys" it was a day for celebration, and the enthusiasm rivaled that of the Faneuil Hall meeting. Mrs. Ella A. Gleason, honorary State president of the W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Alice G. Ropes, State president of organization; Mrs. Esther Andrews, member of the governor's council; Dr. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of the Park Street Church, and Dr. Joseph Agen, of Charlestown, spoke in addition to Dr. Doran.

An estimate that prohibition saved 100,000 lives in the United States

BILL TO REPEAL DRY LAW IS INTRODUCED

Congress Argues Merits of Statute as Decade of Prohibition Ends.

SHEPPARD MAKES TALK

(Associated Press.)

The tenth anniversary of prohibition found the congressional controversy over President Hoover's plans for strengthening Volstead enforcement superseded temporarily yesterday by arguments on the merits of the dry law itself.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, offered a resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Representative La Guardia (Republican), New York, introduced a resolution to declare the amendment inoperative on technical grounds.

Two veteran drys of the memorable contest which brought a ban on the sale and transportation of liquor stood up in the Senate and House to pronounce their cause a contributing factor to America's greatness.

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, coauthor of the eighteenth amendment, hailed the "triumphant trend" of prohibition before an empty Senate chamber.

Representative Cooper (Republican), Ohio, contended before an enthusiastic House that a "solid phalanx" of members of the Christian churches would stand for perpetuation of prohibition.

As the congressional wet and dry orators were indulging in their polemics, Prohibition Commissioner Doran selected the day to declare that the large-scale operators had been driven to cover and that the "lines are tightening with certainty" on the smaller violators.

There were other orators, too. Representative Clancy (Republican), Michigan, a wet, bitterly assailed the Antisaloon League for holding its present meeting in Detroit, his home city. He described the league as "the most bigoted and most fanatical organization in the world" and termed

A meeting of the Senate lobby investigating committee adjourned in confusion yesterday when Mrs. Charles Fuller Winter, president of the American Federation of Industrial Women, pushed her way through the crowd and confronted Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, the only member of the committee present, and demanded an investigation of the national conference on the cause and cure of war, throngs of whose members were even then marching through the Capitol corridors in search of senators.

"I demand that this committee investigate this crowd of silly women and peace organizations who have invaded this building," Mrs. Winter declared. "I have just seen more than 250 women, attending this conference on the causes and cure of war, galloping all over this Senate Office Building, harrying senators through the corridors, and they should be investigated.

"You senators investigated Shearer," she went on, emphasizing her remarks with vigorous gestures toward the rapidly retreating Mr. Robinson, "and all he wanted to do was to insure the United States an adequate Navy."

Mr. Robinson protested that he was only one member of the committee, "and a minority member at that," and suggested that she take the matter up with Chairman Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas.

"I thought that would be the answer," Mrs. Winter retorted. "I didn't expect any action, but let me tell you something, senator; if you and your committee don't investigate these busy-bodies, I'll have an in-

NEW BEDFORD JAILS 19 IN RADICAL CLASH

Communists' Attempts to Hold Street Meetings Crushed by Police.

TWO WOMEN ARRESTED

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—A revival of textile labor trouble in this city today was marked by 19 arrests of radical unionists and resistance to police charges which broke up two protest meetings. Among those jailed was Fred Erwin Beal, of Lawrence, Mass., now out on bail awaiting appeal from a 20-year sentence in connection with the Gastonia, N. C., textile strike.

The first meeting was called outside the gates of the Dartmouth mill by National Textile Workers Union leaders to protest against five arrests made yesterday in one of a series of mill gate meetings. These meetings had been held for the past week under the leadership of Beal and his aids.

One thousand workers had assembled shortly after noon when Martin Russak, district organizer of the union, mounted a chair. A score of policemen stood ready while he said: "I open this meeting in the name of the National Textile Workers and the Communist party—we have no quarrel with the police, but * * *"

At this point Deputy Chief Raymond Chase blew his whistle and the police closed in. Russak and John Vincent, a mill worker, were arrested.

A moment later Beal appeared. He started to say he had come with a message from the "embattled workers of the South in their fight for better working conditions," when policemen took him by each arm and walked him quietly away. His arrest was the signal for shouts of disapproval and the participation of women in a brief melee, out of which came more arrests.

Rescuers Buck Snowdrifts To Save 17 Marooned in Hut

Party Isolated Four Days Taps Phone Wire to Call for Help.

Flagstaff, Ariz., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Seventeen persons reported marooned in a shack 16 miles north of here were sought tonight by an expedition with teams and snowplows.

First word of the party's plight came from behind the 12-foot snowdrifts, which have imprisoned it for four days, when J. W. Hildred, a member of the group, tapped a telephone line with a portable telephone set late today. Hildred got word to Tuba City.

Information received by Sheriff J. C. Kester said the party was en route to Flagstaff from Tuba City when the drifts stalled its automobiles and forced the occupants to seek shelter in a small shack.

The sheriff understood the party had some food, but believed the group

White House Fete Avoids Social War

No One of Diplomatic or Official Rank Attends Dinner to Curtis.

President and Mrs. Hoover last night solved the social problem of how to entertain Vice President Curtis and his official hostess, Mrs. Dolly Gann, by inviting to the official White House dinner for the Vice President no one of official or diplomatic rank.

There were 34 guests at the White House dinner, but a perusal of the list disclosed that the guests were engineers, clergymen, educators, a real estate man, one politician and a railroad president.

Diplomats and their wives, members of the President's Cabinet and their wives, and Speaker Longworth of the House of Representatives and Mrs. Longworth—the social feud is particularly strong between Mrs. Longworth and Mrs. Gann—were not invited.

U. S.-Canadian Talk On Rum Suggested

Prohibition and Customs Parley May Be Held Late in February.

The United States has suggested, informally, to the Canadian government, it was learned yesterday, that a Canadian-American conference on border patrol reorganization be held at Ottawa, Canada, as the necessary preliminary to the development of the program of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to make more effective existing laws regarding prohibition, immigration and customs violations.

The plan is for the conference to convene in Ottawa during the latter part of February. This was learned from an authoritative source, although State Department officials—with their usual reticence—denied that the proposals had yet reached such a definite stage, although it was admitted that cooperation with the Canadian government was necessary to carry out the proposed Mellon plan to stop border liquor running.

Dog Teams Set Out as Reds Report Finding of Eielson

Lost American Aviators Near Siberian River, Commission Hears.

Moscow, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The Soviet Arctic Commission, which has been directing the Russian efforts to find Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, missing American aviators, today received a report that they had landed near the River Anguemy, in Siberia.

The report came from the commission's radio station at Anadyr, Siberia, which in turn had heard on January 14 of the aviators' landing. Though the report was not confirmed, government authorities ordered a dog-sled expedition to proceed immediately to the Anguemy River region.

The expedition will be sent out by Capt. Milowsoro, of the steamer Stavropol, locked in the ice near North Cape.

of future capital ships and have agreed on 23,750 tons as the maximum size of future battleships as a figure to put before the London conference.

Meanwhile, it can not rufe the admiralty if the political delegates of the British government choose to express hopes for extinction of battleships and so place the United States in the position of favoring these expensive monsters, so long as the naval experts are sure that America will not become converted to the small battleship school.

This now appears unlikely to the British, who will thus be able to claim that they are prepared to go further than America in reducing big offensive ships, both battleships and 8-inch-gun cruisers. After the brief honeymoon period of the conference ends this argument will be advanced here with vehemence.

Popular Interest Not Evident.

On the eve of the arrival here of the United States and Italian delegations there is little evidence as yet of any awakening of popular interest in the conference despite the elaborate official preparation for the ceremonial royal opening Tuesday in the House of Lords.

Popular newspapers scarcely mention the conference. It was only in the Times, the Morning Post and the Telegraph, the organs of the "classes," with comparatively small circulations, that even the official spokesman's outline yesterday before the world press of British policy was reported fully.

It is clear that there is no "public opinion" on the British role in the conference yet aroused. Most people here have next to no idea what it is all about, except that there is a vague feeling that France wants too many ships, that the United States doesn't need parity and is behaving unreasonably, but that it does not matter since America is not a potential enemy; and finally, that if MacDonald can reduce naval estimates without impairing the country's security the conference will be a success, and if he can not, a failure.

MacDonald Is Worried.

This last conclusion of the man in the street worries the prime minister greatly, since whatever else happens, reduction of British estimates in the near future is highly improbable.

In government circles there is some resentment at the attitude displayed by the only three newspapers to treat the conference as important news.

Of these, the Morning Post and the Telegraph are openly hostile, claiming that the Labor government is forcing the admiralty to accept a cruiser strength which endangers the empire, while the Times, the most important in its influence, has been hinting, not obscurely, that the government has no concrete program and will not supply the leadership which the world will expect from Great Britain.

Japanese Favorable to Cut.

Tokyo, Jan. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—While the Japanese naval ministry declined to comment officially today on Premier Ramsay MacDonald's statement yesterday advocating abolition of battleships, Japan agrees, in principle, to extinction of this type of fighting craft.

Japanese government circles, however, believe that the British project is impractical at present and therefore oppose immediate attempts to apply it.

It is pointed out in official quarters here that all navies are at present built around a nucleus of capital ships and that abolition of them would consequently mean radical and expensive naval reforms.

Aircraft Growth Cited.

The naval ministry admits that dreadnaughts have lost much of their effectiveness due to aerial development and negotiation of international agreements to avoid aggressive wars. It expects eventual abolition of battleships, but does not think the time for such abolition is here yet.

The Tokyo government foresees American opposition to battleship abolition and believes that Mr. MacDonald was aware of this when he advanced the suggestion, knowing the impracticability of his aspirations being realized.

The Japanese government admits that it is in accord with Great Britain in the matter of curtailing battleship construction and limiting their tonnage and gun caliber.

Instructions to Delegates.

Instructions to the Japanese delegates at London are understood to be to advocate a maximum battleship tonnage of from 25,000 to 30,000 tons and 14 to 16 guns in case the maximum battleship tonnage is fixed at 30,000 tons.

Japan insists upon the retention of 16-inch guns because she is a weaker nation.

There is no evidence that the instructions to the Japanese delegates have been changed as a result of reports of MacDonald's interview yesterday with the world press.

Interview Is Interpreted.

Naval authorities here interpret the interview as an indication that the London discussions will be confined to the technicalities of disarmament and will not touch upon a Mediterranean peace guarantee or President Hoover's proposal for the exemption of food ships from blockade restrictions in wartime.

The popular reaction to yesterday's outline of British policies can not be determined yet, as the vernacular press has not had time to comment upon it.

PRESIDENT RECEIVES WOMEN DELEGATES

Mrs. Carrie C. Catt and 18 Here for Antiwar Meeting Are Greeted.

BLAINE IS INDIFFERENT

While President Hoover conversed cordially yesterday as "man to man" with women delegates to the Cause and Cure of War Convention, various senators called on gave a lukewarm reception to their efforts for naval reduction and toward accession of the United States to the world court.

Eighteen women, led by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, called at the White House armed with a petition urging these steps in the interests of world peace. Eleven of the women were presidents of leading women's organizations of the country.

"He talked with us on both propositions as man to man," said Miss Ruth Morgan, vice chairman of the national committee. "He welcomed our support on both of them.

"He asked for many copies of our petition for naval reduction which he promised to have sent out from the White House."

But the story at the Capitol was different. They met with no encouragement from Senators La Follette and Blaine, of Wisconsin. Led by Mrs. Ben Hooper, the women said they would immediately urge Wisconsin men's luncheon clubs to eliminate the singing and pep speakers and concentrate on the world court.

The decision was prompted by Senator Blaine's statement that he "was under contract to the people of Wisconsin not to vote for the world court without reservations."

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, flatly told his dozen callers he was against the world court because he believed in cooperative economics rather than competitive. Senator Dan Steck, of Iowa, soothed their feelings by coming out strong for the court. He called it "an experiment worth trying."

Senators adamant and senators open-minded were met by the women. Of the latter was Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania. He insisted affably that he had not been here long enough to know much about the world court.

The Virginia delegation was highly elated. Both Senators Carter Glass and Claude Swanson, of that State, assured them they were in sympathy with America's accession to the court.

The description was borne out a few minutes later when the Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft left the hotel on their second automobile trip of the day. Mr. Taft's face wore his characteristic genial smile. He consented, with a laugh and a good-natured quip to pose at the hotel entrance while a photographer added still more pictures to the already large collection which have been taken since the arrival of the Taft party early Wednesday morning.

BYRD CONTRIBUTES TO WEATHER DATA

Explorer's Aids Photograph 50,000 Square Miles of Antarctic Lands.

USE OBSERVATION KITES

Among the major contributions to science Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd expects from his Antarctic expedition are those relating to meteorological observations, the explorer indicates in a radio message to the National Geographic Society in Washington, D. C.

The vast continent which is "the home of the blizzard" long has been regarded as a "weather breeder" for continental and island areas in the Southern Hemisphere, including southern South America, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand. But it hitherto has been the world's "weather blind spot" from lack of any sustained observations of its temperatures, barometric pressures, study of its land-level and altitude air currents and similar data which are the raw materials of weather prediction.

Rear Admiral Byrd's message, transmitted through the New York Times radio station, is addressed to Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, vice president of the National Geographic Society, since it was for Dr. La Gorce that Admiral Byrd named the expedition's meteorological station. The explorer tells how the station's observations were used in determining the time of flights and also the methods by which he has been collecting meteorological data for permanent scientific records. The message dated January 8, says:

Radio Message Quoted.

"So great has been the contribution of the La Gorce meteorological station to the success of our flights of exploration that I feel it my duty as well as my pleasure to report the facts.

"We dug our airplanes from under the snow in the spring as soon as the temperature would permit. Shortly thereafter, on November 18, our weather men, Haines and Harrison, reported to me that they thought the weather was suitable for the base-laying flight. They made this prediction without any reports from the trail party.

"We left immediately and had sunshine for the 440 miles to the mountains. The visibility is generally so bad here that without sunshine we probably could not have landed successfully to lay down our base.

1,600-Mile Flight Made.

"A few days later, November 28, Haines reported the weather favorable for the South Pole flight and that it was possible we would not again get another day of such suitable weather. We left at once for the flight and had sunshine for practically the whole of the 1,600 miles. On December 5 the weather men reported that conditions were favorable for a flight to the eastward. We left at once and had good visibility all the way, which enabled us to photograph more than 50,000 square miles of unknown area.

"With bad visibility, flights in Antarctica are largely profitless.

"It is in my opinion remarkable that the weather predictions have been made so very accurately with so few facts available. Subsequent weather has emphasized the notability of the predictions.

Weather Is Watched.

"In order to make one or two additional exploration flights we have watched the weather closely since our last flight, 34 days ago, but there has not been one suitable day.

"So it is clear that the contribution of the meteorological section to the success of our flights of exploration has been very great indeed.

"Haines and Harrison have also made valuable scientific records. They had made surface observations every hour, day and night, over a period of thirteen months. In the upper air they have made 400 pilot balloon runs to obtain the velocity and direction of wind at various levels. Many of these balloons have given wind data as high as 30,000 feet. Upper air humidity, pressure and temperature have been obtained by kite or airplane on 40 days over a period of 3 months.

"I am glad to be able to report to you the splendid work done by your representatives.

"(Signed) RICHARD E. BYRD."

Hoover Is Told Cotton Cloth Exports Decline

Cotton textile executives yesterday informed President Hoover that the export trade of American-made cotton fabrics is in such bad shape that it is equivalent only to the entire cotton goods production of the Nation for 21 working days.

The President, Secretary of Commerce Lamont and Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, met the leaders of the cotton textile industry in the Cabinet room. Walker D. Hines, chairman of the board of the Cotton Textile Institute, was the principal speaker.

"Damn" on Radio Will Be Silenced

Is Not Profane, Asserts Louisiana Chain-Store Foe.

Shreveport, La., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—W. K. Henderson, operator of radio station KWKH here, tod telegraphed to Representative John Sandlin, of Louisiana that in order to preserve harmony in his radio audience he had decided in the future to refrain from using "damn" and "hell" in his radio talks against chain stores.

He did not, however, he said, consider these words profane as Senator Dill, of Washington, has charged in criticism of the Louisiana station.

Mr. Henderson also wired the Federal Radio Commission in Washington naming four stations which he said were interfering with the KWKH programs and asked: "Can't something be done to clear our channel?"

vestigation if I have to do the investigating myself."

Mrs. Winter was making some further remarks in which the words "such pests" could be distinguished, when a delegation of Indiana members of the antiwar conference came into view, and Mr. Robinson dodged into the crowd and disappeared.

Before Mrs. Winter appeared, Mr. Robinson had been questioning officials and representatives of importing companies and groups as to their activities with respect to the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill. The witness included Harvey O. Lloyd, treasurer of the National Council of Importers & Traders; Otto Fix, customs manager for George Borgeldt & Co., New York; C. T. Riott, of the Chelsea Sales Co.; Frank J. Nolan, of Milbank, Lehman & Co., New York; David Walker, of Morimura Bros., New York, and J. W. Bevans, customs attorney for the national council.

All testified they had made several visits to Washington in connection with the tariff bill, and, except for Bevans, none of them had received anything but traveling expenses. Bevans gets a salary of $1,200 a year from the council, he said, and $125 a day while working in Washington.

He has received $1,781 from this organization during the past year, he said, and has also prepared briefs for individual importers, which have brought his total earnings in connection with the tariff bill up to $9,900.

Frank J. Boal, Washington newspaper man, was questioned briefly and confirmed what he had already written in a news article, that he had seen E. R. Pickrell, of the General Dyestuffs Corporation, working in his shirt sleeves in the office of Senator King (Democrat), Utah. Mr. Pickrell admitted this when he was on the stand, except that he did not recall having his coat off. He said he had been dictating a memorandum which had been asked for by the senator's secretary. Mr. Boal said yesterday that he had made an appointment to meet Mr. Pickrell in King's office on the following day, but when he kept the appointment he was told that Mr. Pickrell had been called to New York.

Except for about five minutes when Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, was in the committee room, Mr. Robinson was forced to play a lone hand in yesterday's investigation. None of the other members of the committee appeared.

The hearing was dull and listless except for the unscheduled appearance of Mrs. Winter.

"My Three Years in Prison" was the subject of a lecture which was delivered by the Rev. Henry J. Miller, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, to more than 50 men who attended the meeting of the men's organization of the church in the parish hall last night. Mr. Miller described his life as a Y. M. C. A. worker during the three years in Europe prior to the entry of the United States into the World War.

Taking his listeners step by step from the time he left the shores of America until he reached Vienna, Austria, he told of his many experiences of having his many trunks searched and researched by those fearing that information to the enemy was being taken to them.

"Reaching the war prison camps, we found men who had been captured for more than two years," he said.

"After many months, in which the red tape of the governments was untied, we proceeded to organize bands and other sorts of amusements which greatly aided the prisoners to pass away the time.

"Finally the United States entered the war and we were told to go home. Only three of us were taken back into service and I was sent to an American prison camp in North Carolina where we confined sailors taken from the German boats in our ports."

Following the address many interesting pictures were shown, showing the life of the prison camps in Austria in 1916.

BILLION-DOLLAR SUM URGED FOR SCHOOLS

CARNEGIE DATA PRAISED

Contending the unequal distribution of financial support among small liberal arts colleges causes an unjustifiable hardship on students, Dr. Albert Norman Ward, president of Western Maryland College, yesterday made a passionate plea for these struggling institutions and introduced a resolution providing for a $1,000,000,000 endowment campaign for them at the closing session of meeting of the Association of American Colleges in the Willard Hotel.

In supporting his resolution providing for this financial drive, Dr. Ward declared there are 792 small liberal arts colleges in the Nation with a total enrollment of more than 1,000,000 students, or with an average enrollment of 1,250, but that almost half of the entire financial support goes to about one-half of the colleges with an enrollment of about 120,000. Although the other colleges have an enrollment of about 878,000, he added, they have much less money on which to operate and consequently the majority of the students have grossly unequal educational opportunities.

Says Small Colleges Needed.

Dr. Ward contended there is a great need for the continuance of the small colleges at present and that there will be a greater need in the future in order to take care of the increase in college attendance.

His resolution called for a subsequent meeting of the executive heads of at least 500 colleges, which would be sponsored by the association, to outline the campaign. It was referred to the resolutions committee and subsequently referred to the executive committee of the association.

In its report, the resolution committee stated that "because of the extent and importance of the proposal it appears impossible for the association in the limited time at its disposal to give the matter as full consideration as it requires, and recommends, therefore, that it be referred to the executive committee of the association."

Its report was immediately adopted, and subsequently the proponents of the resolution met and named a committee, headed by Dr. Ward to press for favorable action by the executive committee which will report at the next annual meeting of the association, the time and place of which convention will be decided later.

Upon the recommendation of the resolution committee, the association approved a plan for a national survey of all colleges engaged in training teachers; requested the United States Bureau of Education to collect and compile separately the information concerning liberal arts colleges, and authorized its president to name a committee of three members to cooperate with the bureau in carrying out that request. It likewise authorized the association's executive committee to appoint a committee of five to cooperate with the national advisory committee on education.

Upon the recommendation of its commission on college athletics, the association indorsed, without debate, the report of the Carnegie Foundation which focused attention on "detrimental excesses and abuses" in the subsidy of athletics by colleges.

In its recommendation the commission agreed that the Carnegie expose dealt only "moderately" with the situation and that it gives only a conservative view of the state of college athletics, and asked member institutions to emphasize intellectual and cultural aims as being of first importance in the solution of all college problems.

Twenty Colleges Admitted.

Twenty colleges were admitted to membership in the association at the closing session. They were: Brenau College, Clemson College, College of Charleston, College of the Sacred Heart, College of Saint Rose, Erskine College, Hollins College, Immaculate College, Limestone College, Marymount College, Niagara University, Ouachita College, Pennsylvania State College, Scripps College for Women, Spelman College, St. Joseph's College, St. Joseph's College for Women, Virginia Military Institute, Washington Square College of New York University, and Morehouse College.

The prerequisite for membership in the association is 15 units for admission to the freshman class of 120 semester hours, or equivalent for graduation.

Following the adjournment of the association's meeting, five denominational education associations opened their annual meetings at the Willard.

Annual Meetings Opened.

They were: The Association of Colleges of Congregational affiliation, which includes 42 colleges and universities, five junior colleges, 21 secondary schools, nine theological schools, and one training school; the Educational Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church, including five universities, 36 colleges, nine theological schools, 26 secondary schools and four junior colleges; the General Educational Board of the Church of the Brethren, Board of Education for the Society of Friends, and the Presbyterian College Union.

The Methodist group were entertained last night at American University.

Coolidge to Write History Of U. S. to Last for Ages

500-Word Inscription Will Be Put on Granite Face of Black Hills Mountains Next to Sculptured Figures of Famous Presidents.

Keystone, S. Dak., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Calvin Coolidge is to write a history of the United States with an assured popularity for 5,000 centuries.

It is to be as brief and terse as the former President's conversation.

And, although Mr. Coolidge is one of the highest paid writers per word, he will not receive a cent for the narrative.

The former President, according to the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Association, has accepted an invitation to write historical data to be engraved beside the colossal figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt upon the granite face of the Black Hills Mountains. Mount Rushmore is near Keystone.

The history will be Mr. Coolidge's contribution to the memorial, which he dedicated during his summer vacation in the Black Hills in 1927.

The Coolidge words, 500, or fewer if the author chooses to condense further the life of the country from the Declaration of Independence to his time, will be five or more inches deep, and high enough to be read miles away.

Geologists estimate the rate of erosion on the granite escarpment of Mount Rushmore is an inch in 100,000 years. Unless radical earth changes take place, or future progress decrees the removal of Mount Rushmore, the memorial should endure more than 500,000 years.

Gutzon Borglum, sculptor of the project, hopes to have the Washington and Jefferson figures ready for a formal unveiling next July 4. Each of the four figures will be 420 feet tall. The tablet of Mr. Coolidge's history will be 80 feet high and 120 feet wide.

The frowning wall of Mount Rushmore upon which the memorial is to be scratched is 1,000 feet high.

The sides of the letters fashioning Mr. Coolidge's words, facing westward, will be gilded so that the setting sun falling upon them will give brilliance to the story of the United States.

ICE CHECKS FLOODS IN CENTRAL STATES

Indiana, Illinois and Ohio Refugees Suffer Under Subzero Weather.

OVERFLOWS HIT SOUTH

Chicago, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—A sheath of ice forged on winter's coldest anvil protected the flooded valleys of the Central States tonight as rivers and streams, still gorged with ice and melted snows, began to slip back into their wonted channels.

Only along the lower reaches of the rivers of Arkansas and Mississippi and down the storied Wabash were the waters still rising, breaking their bonds in the two Southern States to overflow several thousand acres of farm lands in Quitman County, Miss., and Greene County, Ark.

Zero Weather Spreads.

The magic scepter of winter touched the thousands of lakes and pools left by the receding floods from Ohio to Missouri and transformed them into mirrors of ice where a week ago stood fields of corn. Havre, Mont., felt the coldest temperature of the land at 30 degrees below zero, but near-zero temperatures brought suffering more acute to the refugees of southern Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, driven from their homes by the flood. Zero weather was recorded as far South as Texas and Oklahoma. Temperatures 10 below zero were predicted for the night at Hannibal, Mo., and perhaps five below at Chicago.

The Kaskaskia, rampant yesterday over 60,000 acres of farm land, was slinking back to its bed today as the ice checked its flow in southern Illinois. A few families who had stood their ground against the advancing waters of the Wabash at Mount Carmel, Ill., became refugees today as the water climbed another 6 inches.

Wabash Still Rises.

The Wabash still held southwestern Indiana in its thrall, threatening to break through its levees. Its level at Vincennes was 0.9 feet above the 1913 flood level today and the crest is not expected to be reached before tomorrow.

The menace of the flood in Ohio, the greatest in seventeen years in parts of the State, was relieved by the freezing weather, but 200 families were still marooned at Ottawa while the Blanchard River that isolated them receded. Railway transportation was resumed but highways were still under water.

Disposal of Stock Ordered for B. & O.

I. C. C. Declares Holdings in Western Maryland Must Be Dropped.

(Associated Press.)

For the second time in ten months the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was ordered yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission to divest itself of holdings in a carrier which the commission held to be a competing line.

Acting under the provisions of the antitrust act the commission gave the road six months in which to dispose of its stock in the Western Maryland. This amounts to $18,673,049 and represents about 42 per cent of the total stock, the ramainder being scattered in numerous small holdings.

Last March the Baltimore & Ohio, along with the Nickel Plate and the New York Central, was ordered to sell its stock in the Wheeling & Lake Erie, which the commission held to be a competing line of all three.

Although the Western Maryland would be allotted to the New York Central System under the consolidation plan of the commission, which permitted five systems in the East, Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, said in opposing the commission's order that the stock was bought with a view to creating four systems in the East.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

OPPOSED though we are to the daily multiplication of laws, ordinances and rules which afflict our land of the free and home of the brave, we here and now start a campaign for a statute to compel all taxi drivers to look pleasant when presented with a tip.

Our imagination does not vault so high, neither are we so absurdly deluded as to believe that any law could force, terrify or persuade all of them to say "Thank you" when the largesse is bestowed. But, being full of optimism, good cheer and credulity, we do cherish the belief that, if the proposed statute were amply loaded with penalties and punishments, the gentlemen who sail the high seas of asphalt could be brought to work up at least the ghost of a grin or the shadow of a smile at the psychological moment when the unearned increment drops into their nonresisting palms.

Being in haste recently to journey from one given point to another, we chartered a taxi and sat wrapped in amazement and torn by torture as we perceived the astounding rapidity with which the meter chronicled, dime by dime, the growth of the charges. The ticking of the thing was weirdly suggestive of the drip-drip of the heart's blood of an American pioneer being slowly cut to ribbons by his Indian captors.

WE alighted from the adventure in travel and mathematics.

Devoid of spine and bankrupt of will power, we had previously been victimized by the crazy theory that, when served by the employes of certain types of public service corporations, it is the citizen's duty to enrich the underpaid workers with gifts of coin, cash, masuma or other acceptable form of the national currency.

Hence, with apparent joy but emphatic inner protest, we added to the sum calculated by the infernal machine what we regarded as a handsome honorarium. At the moment of bestowal we glanced, in our bland and simple manner, at the recipient, only to discover that he scowlingly surveyed the horizon.

That chauffeur's face was a perfect portrait of indifference, ingratitude and ill temper. He suddenly looked like a corsair without the corsair's beard, like Jesse James without a horse, like Blackbeard without a cutlass. We thought of all the tales we had read in boyhood and later years about pirates, buccaneers and brigands. We had the distinct sensation of being held up by an ugly conspiracy between our own stupidity and the chauffeur's insolence.

HE didn't say "Thank you." He didn't say anything. He continued to look gruff, unpleasant and repellant, as if he had not been living right and, as a result, was crucified by his conscience. Pocketing fare and guerdon, he climbed into his machine, which was not the most comfortable type of automobile ever inflicted upon a traveling people, and rode off, to the last a picture of a man who had squeezed out of us, not a tip, but what he had earned.

Our friends in large numbers tell us that they have had countless similar experiences. So have we. Regardless of the size of the tip, the gentlemen who could easily pose as depredators of the Spanish Main have accepted the extra cash without expressing appreciation or even troubling to twist their weather-beaten features into the sickly semblance of a polite grin.

So, we submit, we need a brand-new statute to bring about the compulsory pleasant smile. It's bad enough to be such a spineless, nit-witted, groveling simp that we fall for the tipping racket, but to do it without getting so much as a faint grunt in return is, as Uncle Joe Cannon used to say, the ultimate of the absolute.

MAIL ROBBER LEAVES TO END SENTENCE IN FIFTH PRISON

tempted to rob a mail train in Arizona, was brought to Washington on October 3 and taken to St. Elizabeths Hospital for mental observation. Prior to that Gardner had been at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary for several years, and the reason for the transfer was a hunger strike which he had started 23 days before.

When Gardner arrives at Leavenworth and is properly incarcerated it will be the fifth Government penal institution in which he has been held. After his escape from McNeils Island and his recapture he was sent to Leavenworth; later he was sent to Atlanta, thence to St. Elizabeths Hospital, the only Government hospital for the criminally insane and now he is headed back for Leavenworth, this time to the old Army prison in that city which recently was turned over to the Department of Justice for the incarceration of prisoners.

Gardner was taken from St. Elizabeths early yesterday afternoon and held in a cell at the District of Columbia Supreme Court house until the train for Kansas departed. As he left he was manacled to Deputy United States Marshal Edward A. Sackley.

Officials of the United States marshal's office attempted to keep the news that Gardner was being transferred quiet, but when the man left the report had circulated and approximately 200 persons, mostly colored, were congregated around the exit. It was understood that it was feared that Gardner's friends might attempt to hold up the train or gain his release before his train departed. In order to safeguard the prisoner he was taken to the Terminal Station in the bullet-proof van which the Department of Justice recently ordered for the marshal of the District.

Just as he stepped into the van Gardner turned to a group of newspapermen and declared: "Boys, I don't care what you say about me, but give the fellows out at St. Elizabeths a boost. That's all I ask. Out of all the prisons I have been in, I have found better treatment there than in any other place. Dr. John E. Lind and Dr. Ralph P. Gilbert have treated me better than any men I have come in contact with since I got into trouble. They are swell guys, and anything you can say for them will be appreciated by me."

Gardner, a tall, angular man, wore a much-too-small cap and an old Army overcoat. Despite the fact that the temperature at the time was below freezing and Deputy Marshals Sackley, Gus Cerimele and Harold T. Scott were bundled up in great coats, he appeared oblivious to the cold.

The deputies refused to state how they would transport Gardner to Leavenworth after they had him safely on the train, but it was understood that he was to be placed in leg irons and chained to a berth in the drawing room which had been reserved for the trip. On the occasion of the transfer of Gardner from Atlanta to St. Elizabeths he was chained to his berth and was forced to wear leg irons until he was received at the hospital. On his trip North he was accompanied by three guards.

Gardner is said to be an escape artist de luxe.

It was in 1920 that Gardner first came into the public eye through a series of sensational mail hold-ups along the Pacific Coast. For these he was sentenced to McNeil's Island. On September 5, 1921, Gardner, however, made a break for liberty, and although twenty guards are said to have fired at him he made his escape and was not heard of again until November 16 of the same year.

On that date, after the hue and cry for his capture had echoed and reechoed throughout the United States, and he had been reported in many sections of the country, he was captured by a mail clerk on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad. Gardner attempted to hold up the mail clerk in order to seize a $15,000 shipment; and the clerk, after being ordered into a corner, grappled with Gardner and overpowered him. As a result of his heroism the mail clerk received a congratulatory letter from Postmaster General Harry S. New and in addition received a reward of $5,000 for the capture of a mail robber and the $2,000 reward that had been offered for Gardner's apprehension.

Gardner was taken to Leavenworth Prison on December 14, 1921, and after serving four years at that institution was sent to the penitentiary at Atlanta, the Department of Justice fearing that he had learned enough about the former place to enable him to escape. He remained at Atlanta until his hunger strike resulted in his removal to Washington.

Officials at St. Elizabeths questioned last night as to Gardner's condition declared he was in excellent shape.

They refused to admit that Gardner had faked his hunger strike in order to be transferred from Atlanta, but asserted that "his hunger strike is no more."

Two Deaths Laid To Parrot Fever

Baltimore City Health Head Believes Psittacosis Peril Is at an End.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Although officials of the health department are investigating the death of a young woman and her father, Dr. C. Hampton Jones, city health commissioner, today said that he believed the prevalence of psittacosis, or parrot disease, here was at an end.

The cases under investigation are those of a girl, employed in a department store in its pet shop, and her father. The young woman became ill December 13, and died December 24. Her father became ill January 4, and died January 13. A sister also became ill but today was reported in an improved condition.

A shipment of parrots was received by the pet shop from a New York concern shortly before the girl became ill. Two of the parrots died in the shop, three were sold and one of these was returned and died. The others were placed in isolation under observation.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Another death, believed to have been caused by psittacosis, or parrot fever, occurred in the Bronx today. A 45-year-old woman, whose name and address were not disclosed, died after an illness of 11 days.

She had bought a parrot two days before Christmas and it died a week later.

King to Open Conference.

London, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—King George will come into Buckingham Palace from Sandringham on Monday for a brief visit to open the sessions of the five-power naval conference on Tuesday.

When his majesty goes into his brief residence at the palace, Lord Dawson of Penn, his personal physician, will visit him for a medical examination.

It is understood that Lord Dawson will then decide whether the king should spend a month abroad or go for a short rest and change to a resort on the English southwestern coast.

Sovereign in Good Health.

Though the king will return to Sandringham after a stay of only 24 hours in London, his medical advisers are anxious that he should not spend February on his favorite country estate, believing that he should go to some warmer place.

The king, who has been doing a great deal of shooting at Sandringham, is reported to be in excellent health at present.

BRADY FACES TRIAL IN BOMB KILLING

TESTIMONY IS SHORT

Sunday, December 29, and he said he would be at my house between 4 and 5 o'clock Sunday morning. He arrived at my house about 4:20 a. m., I think, and it was kind of rainy and muddy. He had on rubbers and his rubbers had red clay on them, and there is not any red clay in our section, and I asked him where he got the red clay from. He said he stopped on the pike, and I said nothing more concerning the clay. We left at 5 a. m. and got back about 7:30 p. m.

"We were down there about three Sundays ago, maybe four, just before my wife made known her marriage. He was the first one I told that I was married. We were together about three hours and he asked me where she was living. I told him in the second house on Carmody road, on the right-hand side. I was thinking he was going to give her a Christmas present, or pay her a visit or something about the marriage.

"Q. Judging from your knowledge of the road from your brother's home to your home, would it have been necessary for him between this distance to get off a good paved road into clay?

"A. No, sir.

Clay Near House.

"Q. Is there any red clay in the vicinity of your wife's home?

"A. Yes, sir; there is clay all around there.

"Q. Herman, was your brother very much attached to you as a brother?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did you confide in him?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Was it this brother who was your adviser in your trouble?

A. "Yes, he was always anxious about my welfare, about my success, and about me in general; he and I were very close.

"I have read this statement and understand the same fully. I herewith affix my signature in acknowledgment of same, which is absolutely the truth."

Crowds Gather Early.

The statement, dated Upper Marlboro, Md., January 5, 1930, at 1:45 p. m., is signed by Herman Brady, Lieut. Itzel and Sergt. Charles Chalter, Baltimore detective who assisted Itzel in the investigation.

M. Hampton Magruder, who with State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer and Frank M. Hall, represents the defense, objected to the admission of the statement in evidence, claiming that no testimony had been introduced to show that the statement had been made in the presence of Leroy.

The courtroom was well guarded. County and State police were stationed at strategic points in the room and a vigilant watch for possible disturbance was maintained.

The audience began congregating as early as 8 o'clock yesterday morning, and two hours before the hearing was scheduled at 2 o'clock, the courtroom was comfortably filled. As the hour for the hearing neared, the courtroom was packed so densely that great difficulty was experienced by Sheriff Charles S. Early and Deputy Sheriff A. W. Hepburn in making a passage through which to escort Leroy to the dock.

Herman Shows Emotion.

Leroy sat through the entire proceedings without changing the blank expression on his face that he wore when he entered the courtroom. Herman, on the other hand, several times showed emotion.

Herman arrived shortly before his brother was brought in and was placed at the State's table. Herman was apparently at ease. He came in smiling, and greeted reporters as he sat down. He grinned as one of the newspaper men asked him how it felt to sleep in a real bed after eight days in jail. He had been released Tuesday evening on bail as a State witness after defense counsel agreed to permit him to testify.

Justice of the Peace H. W. Gore, who presided, arrived at 2:15, and was followed fifteen minutes later by the prosecution, accompanied by Lieut. Itzel, Leroy Pumphrey, a local lawyer who apparently is assisting in the prosecution, and Raymond E. Kennedy, head of the Raymond E. Kennedy Detective Service, of Baltimore, who has been retained by the State in the investigation.

Defense counsel held up proceedings for nearly half an hour more. They were accompanied by Mrs. Ella Brady, mother of the defendant, and Leroy's wife. The wife found a seat beside her husband, but the mother was forced to stand, as there were no more seats.

Doctor Is First Witness.

The first witness was Dr. James I. Boyd, of Forrestville, who performed an autopsy on the body of Naomi Hall Brady after her death. He described the condition of her body and said no foreign matter was found. While he was testifying, Herman sat alertly in his seat, drinking in every word of the doctor's testimony. Several times he gulped as the grewsome details were described.

The next witness called was Steuart Carneal, 12, who accompanied Leslie Hall to the Hall home with the package on the day of the tragedy.

He said that he and Leslie had passed the Buckley home and saw Mrs. Buckley and that she "gave Leslie the box." He described the box with his hands and said it was wrapped in brown paper and had the address, "Miss Naomi Hall," written on it.

Steuart said that he and Leslie ran to the Hall home and that Leslie took the package into the house, while he waited outside on the back porch, looking into the window.

"I saw Leslie put the box on the table and all of them gathered around," he said.

"What happened then?" Ryon asked.

"Then there was an explosion," he answered.

"What did you do?"

"I started to run."

When asked if he understood the nature of an oath, Steuart said, "Sure, to tell the truth." "I guess you qualify," Judge Gore said, as the courtroom broke into a muffled laugh.

Herman followed the Carneal boy to the stand. Lieut. Itzel was then called.

Itzel Identifies Statement.

Itzel said that he had visited the Hall home on Carmody road and that it was about a block from Chapel road, the second house on the right side, and that the Buckley house was the second house on the left side from Chapel road.

He identified the statement alleged to have been made by Herman and pointed out that he had signed the paper himself for identification.

At the conclusion of the testimony, defense counsel asked if the court was going to hold Leroy on such flimsy evidence and Judge Gore replied:

"The action of the court is that he will be held."

The defendant was then escorted back to the county jail where he has been held for thirteen days. Herman was released on bond.

Lieut. Itzel, Sergt. Schalter and Detective Kennedy last night investigated a rumor that a Seat Pleasant woman had overheard a man and woman plotting the bombing. They declared it to be unfounded after they returned to Upper Marlboro last night. Itzel and Schalter returned to Baltimore last night, leaving the details of the investigation in the hands of Kennedy.

EMBEZZLER

ALBERT NISBET.

CHURCH EMBEZZLER CONVICTED BY JURY

Blind Former Magistrate and Treasurer Is Found Guilty of Fraud.

ANOTHER CHARGE WAITS

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Albert Nisbet, blind former magistrate and former treasurer of the Baptist Tabernacle building fund, was found guilty of embezzling $2,084 from the church funds by a jury in court here today.

The defendant, swathed in blankets and lying on a cot in the courtroom showed no emotion when the verdict was read, nor did he even so much as change his expression as the pastor and members of the church testified against him during the trial. His case had been continued four times since he was indicted more than a year ago, each time on pleas of defense attorneys that he was too ill to appear in court.

A new trial was denied by Judge A. T. Burgevin, and counsel filed notice of an appeal, but Nisbet was taken to jail when a new $10,000 bond was not forthcoming.

Judge Burgevin deferred pronouncement of sentence. He set February 17 for Nisbet's trial on a second indictment, which charges embezzlement of $20,000.

The embezzlement of $2,084 is but one of a series charged to Nisbet. He is alleged to have manipulated $22,048 of church funds in all, and to have involved relatives and friends to the extent of approximately $50,000.

Nisbet's chief defense was that he had speculated with the money with the consent of the pastor of the church, the Rev. A. K. Wright, and of members. Nisbet himself did not testify and the defense relied mainly upon the statements of his daughter, Dorothy, 17, and a sister, Miss Myrtle Nisbet.

The prosecution expressed the belief that Nisbet had feigned illness since his indictment and was well and able to walk.

During his term on the bench Nisbet was known as "the hard-boiled magistrate" because of the severe penalties he dealt out to liquor law violators. He openly invited law enforcement officers to bring their cases into his court, assuring them that their prisoners would get maximum sentences.

Night Votes Taken In Judgeship Race

Joint Virginia Assembly Caucus Deadlocked Over Posts.

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16.—With three ballots out of the way at 11:30 o'clock tonight, the joint caucus of the Virginia General Assembly faced an all-night session in an effort to name two judges for the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Five of the fourteen nominees before the caucus had been eliminated after the third ballot, and the lead at that time was held by George L. Browning, of Orange; Judge O. L. Shackelford, of Norfolk; Judge Floyd Roberts, of Bristol; Judge E. W. Hudgins, of Chase City, and Judge H. B. Gregory, of Roanoke, all tied at a figure far below the number necessary for nomination. Only two of these or any of the others may be named.

The legislators, in spite of the prospect of an all-night task, are expecting to arise tomorrow morning to visit Washington and Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax.

OLD SUGAR TARIFF IS KEPT BY SENATE

Bounty Plan Is Proposed by Howell as Vote Defeats Raise.

CUBANS HERE REJOICE

Bounty Plan Offered.

Immediately after the vote Senator Howell offered a proposal for a bounty of forty-four hundredths of a cent a pound on sugar produced in this country. Ninety per cent of the bounty would go to the growers and 10 per cent to the refiners. He asked that a vote be withheld until today because of the absence of Senator Walsh, of Montana, who wants to discuss it.

Those progressives who opposed the increased rate on sugar have had a bounty plan in mind as a way of protecting the American beet and sugar cane producer, but whether Howell's is the plan they will adopt remains to be seen.

The present rate, retained under the Harrison amendment, is 1.76 cents a pound on Cuban raw sugar and 2.20 cents a pound against other countries. The House voted to increase these rates to 2.40 and 3 cents, respectively, while the Senate finance committee proposed a rate of 2.20 and 2.75 cents.

It is doubtful if Senator Harrison seriously expected the victory that came to him, and it is believed that his speech a few days ago had as much to do with it as anything else. At that time the senator named those senators who come up for reelection this year and warned them that to vote for increased rates would prove their undoing. The impression is that this calling of names checked other regulars who would have voted with the Western sugar group otherwise.

Cuban Ambassador Pleased.

While the sugar item is not the most important in the tariff bill, by far, it was magnified out of proportion by the Democrats as symbolical of their fight against the Republican regulars. It was something that the public could easily understand, something they figured would arouse the interest of the housewives, though whether it did or not is another thing.

Too, it was the most bitterly fought item by opposing lobbyists. The Caraway investigating committee revealed that both sides had spent unlimited sums of money, the sum total probably approximating $500,000.

More prominent names were involved than in any other feature of the bill, the lobbyists against an increased rate going to the extent of developing opposition in foreign countries.

This side of the lobby, in fact, involved the Cuban government, and there was no disguising the jubilation with which the result yesterday was received at the Cuban Embassy. Ambassador Ferrara said the vote was the "first step toward a more intimate relation between the United States and Cuba."

"If politically the United States and Cuba are two separate entities, because it is the will of the American and Cuban people," he said, "economically they are united by the same interests."

A toast to the Senate was drunk at the embassy.

Easterners More Hopeful.

Some observers saw in the vote of the Easterners a hope that they will yet be able to get some of their industrial increases, that they still hope to get in some trading. It is believed to be more of a case, however, of their expressing their idea of regularity.

It is true, too, that later in the day they got an increase of from 4 to 8 cents a pound on maple sugar and from 4 to 5½ cents on maple syrup. But there was no trading here. Senator Harrison withdrew his opposition, in fact, with the assurance by Senator Smoot that if Canada does not grant a bounty to its maple sugar producers, making the American rate necessary to protect New England industries, he would grant a reconsideration of the rate.

The sugar fight will be carried into conference between the House and Senate and it is believed the increased duty advocates will show greater strength there, although whether they will be able to overturn the Senate's action is to be determined.

Wave of Relief Is Felt In Cuba on Senate Vote

Havana, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Action of the United States Senate in voting for existing retention of the tariff rates on Cuban sugar caused a wave of relief to sweep over the financial district of Havana and removed the fear in Cuban sugar circles at the possibility of a further increase in duties on Cuban sugar.

Reports of the Senate action were quickly disseminated through the financial district and offices of large sugar cane cutting and grinding operators, and met in every instance with expression of extreme gratification.

T. C. Ulbricht, vice president of the American Chamber of Commerce of Cuba, said the Senate decision "saves the economic life of Cuba." He added that "further tariff increases would have been a step toward gradual but ultimate restriction of Cuba's sugar industry and a death blow at her financial life."

Retention of present rates, he said, affords Cuba an opportunity to make a reasonable profit on its credit.

Korean Strikers Wave Olden Flags

Banners of Former Regime Evident; U. S. Schools Are Concerned.

Tokyo, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Red flags and banners of the old Korean kingdom, which was superseded by Japan's in 1910, appeared today in the streets of Seoul, Korea's capital. They were carried in a parade of striking students. The police, said Japanese press dispatchos, broke up the demonstration and arrested the leaders. Five American mission schools were concerned in the spreading student troubles, which are estimated to have involved more than 10,000 students in Korea.

The tendency in authoritative quarters of Tokyo is to regard the strike of Korean students as actuated by racial differences and as a protest against the methods of the Japanese government. Japan's police authorities in Seoul, however, asserted that the trouble was caused by Communists.

Most of the 1,000 students, including 250 girls, who were arrested yesterday, were released today. With fresh arrests in Seoul and vicinity, however, 200 remain in jail.

Gas in Room Kills Four; Two May Die

Physician Finds All Six Huddled on Floor; Windows Are Shut.

San Francisco, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Lack of oxygen in a room in which a gas heater was burning was declared by physicians to have been the cause of the death of four persons in a residence here today. Two other persons in the room were overcome and may die.

The dead: Mildred Lund, 35; Dorothy Sorro, 4; Salvatore Sorro, jr., 18 months, and John Aguirre, 22.

At Central Emergency Hospital physicians used inhalators to try to save the lives of Andrew G. Gapasin, 30, and Mrs. Mary Sorro, 27. Mrs. Sorro is the mother of the two dead children.

Dr. A. Berger, calling to treat one of the women, discovered the six lying huddled on the floor. He had knocked at the door and, receiving no answer, became suspicious and forced his way inside.

All windows and doors in the room in which those stricken were found were closed. A gas heater was burning.

Dr. Berger immediately called an ambulance. All except Mrs. Sorro and Gapasin were dead on its arrival.

DRY WORKERS PLAN FURTHER CAMPAIGN

Anniversary Celebrated and Victories Reviewed by Antisaloon League.

EDISON MESSAGE READ

Detroit, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Prohibition crusaders assembled here in the national convention of the Antisaloon League celebrated the tenth anniversary of constitutional aridity today by listenig to reviews of past victories and laying plans for the future.

A definite swing toward emphasizing the educational side of prohibition, while continuing efforts in behalf of enforcement, featured most of the speeches delivered at the regular sessions of the league. Plans for meetings of an evangelistic nature in various communities and for educational programs in schools and colleges were discussed and met with general approval.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of Detroit, president of the national organization, expressed doubts in an address on the advisability of legislation to make the buyer of liquor equally culpable with the seller.

Principle Is Upheld.

"In principle," said the bishop, "I believe that is soundly true and right, but I have some doubts that the way to get at it is by legal action. The better way is through public opinion.

"The time has come," he continued, "for the church to purge itself and create a new obligation to the flag and Constitution, and public sentiment can take care of this by putting a brand on the church members and nonchurch members who are violating the law and indulging their appetites in the process."

At another point in his talk, Bishop Nicholson said, "I am not for promiscuous shooting, but I am for Armiral Bullard and his associates when they say, 'we mean business'."

Church in Politics.

The Methodist prelate also stated, "the wet forces tried to keep the church out of politics, but I am proud to say that the evangelical churches have abandoned the doctrine of talking only of the other world and have adopted the policy of watching the kingdom of this world."

The enforcement policy of the league was stressed at a "support the President luncheon," sponsored by the manufacture and business committee of the league. Messages from all parts of the country were read, including one from Thomas A. Edison, who said, "All good citizens will stand by the wise program of our great President. This reform must go on to world-wide success."

A review of the successive steps from regulation and licensing through precinct option to constitutional prohibition, was given in an address of Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, director of the league's department of education, which was prepared for delivery tonight.

Gradual Conversion Claimed.

Dr. Cherrington declared: "Evidence of the progress of the temperance movement is found in gradual conversion of the wets to the program of the drys. Of the nine principal programs advocated by the drys, * * * eight have finally been agreed to by the wets, according to their own testimony from time to time."

The educational director based this claim on an assertion that as each mode of regulation or prohibition was adopted, it was defended by the wets when the drys sought a more stringent method.

Superintendents from several States were on the program during the day. Among them was David Hepburn, of Virginia, who declared that President Hoover carried that State because of the "wet record" of his opponent.

Dry Position Unchanged.

Failure of the coalition candidates in the last gubernatorial primary, he added, was no indication "that Virginia has changed her position on the prohibition question."

Homer W. Tope, State superintendent from Pennsylvania, attacked the theory that a solution of the liquor problem could be found in sale for home consumption.

Addition of city and village ordinances to the already existing Federal and State enforcement laws was suggested by James F. Shields, New Jersey superintendent, as an effective way to improve conditions throughout the country.

Nations Sentenced In Dry Case Again

Former Labor Commissioner in Missouri Gets Eighteen Months.

St. Louis, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Herbert Nations, former Missouri labor commissioner and newspaper publisher, who was convicted yesterday of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act in connection with a beer grafting plot, was sentenced today by Federal Judge Charles B. Davis to serve eighteen months in Leavenworth Federal Prison and pay a $2,000 fine.

The sentence was the same as that assessed two years ago by Judge Davis when Nations was convicted for a second time on the conspiracy indictment. His first conviction in 1925 and the 1928 conviction were reversed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on error. Sentence was passed today after a motion for a fourth trial for the former official was overruled. The case was appealed for a third time.

DRY LAW REPEAL BILL OFFERED AS CONGRESS ARGUES STATUTE

Dr. P. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, "a typical league lobbyist who never won his leadership by an overscrupulous conscience."

Representative Oliver (Democrat), New York, another wet, told the House: "We turned a good sermon into a bad law. It is time for America to conquer her sense of humor."

"Near January 1, 1920, America woke up in church," said Mr. Oliver, "took the pledge and resolved to be better than our fathers. We have tried by law to make a tenth-rate heaven out of America, but have discovered that our paradise is populated, not by angels but by human beings."

The Senate, still in the throes of the tariff struggle, did not evidence so much interest in prohibition. Senator Blaine caused hardly a stir as he offered his repealing amendment with a declaration that prohibition is a "failure." Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, an ardent dry, inquired as to the purpose of his resolution and then congratulated the Wisconsin senator on a "splendid sense of humor."

Only a handful listened to Senator Sheppard as he extolled prohibition. He insisted that the coming of Federal prohibition has meant the saving of 2,000,000 lives in ten years.

"It is in the Federal Constitution and it is there to remain," the Texan said. "It is in the enforcement statutes of the Nation, and it is there to stay. It is in the hearts and consciences and bank balances, the homes, the comforts, the living facilities, the moral, educational and economical advantages of the American people and in all of these it is forever planted."

Taking the occasion to plead for his bill to make buyers of liquor equally guilty with bootleggers, Senator Sheppard described the liquor purchaser as "the most dangerous character in our national life."

"Placing appetite above law and above the welfare of his fellow man, he supports as desperate and determined a class of law-breakers as the police annals of any country have ever known," he said.

Representative Cooper took the floor in the House in answer to the recent speech of Representative Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, a wet, in which he said, You must choose between prohibition and the Christian religion.

Trial Is Scheduled In Drug Raid Case

Two Chinese Arrested as Proprietors of Opium Den Here.

Lee Gong and Wey Hing, Chinese, arrested by narcotic inspectors in a raid Wednesday on a house in Chinatown, located in the 300 block of Pennsylvania avenue, almost within the shadow of the United States Capitol, will be given a hearing before the United States commissioner on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act, on January 30, it was disclosed yesterday.

The two Chinese, who are said to have been apprehended as a result of the slaying several months ago of Lee King, alleged narcotic informer, who was "taken for a ride" by a number of his fellow countrymen, are said to have had a well equipped opium den. Pipes for the smoking of the poppy dust and other things said to be used in the narcotic traffic were found in the place, it was said.

L. G. Nutt, chief of the Narcotic Bureau, is said to have declared that King was investigating the place when he was slain. Since then, he is quoted as saying, several other persons have made purchases in the establishment.

Laundryman Arrested As Alleged Embezzler

Fourteen accusations of embezzlement of funds from the Quality Laundry Co., South Capitol and L streets, were registered against Karl B. Baessell, 28 years old, of Eighth street northwest, near Rittenhouse street, following his arrest yesterday by Detective Sergts. Carlton Talley and Louis M. Wilson.

Baessell, who was employed as a collector by the laundry, was taken in custody at Thirteenth and L streets northwest. According to the detectives, the arrest was made following complaints that Baessell's collection accounts were $115 in arrears. Pryor E. Hefner, vice president of the laundry, was listed as complainant in the fourteen charges.

WETS, DRYS GATHER IN BOSTON MEETING

DORAN, EDWARDS SPEAK

last year in preventing highway accidents, alone, was made by Dr. Doran as he discussed economic and social aspects of the law.

His estimate was based on a comparison of automobile death ratios, in England, with liquor, and in the United States, with prohibition.

"The fact that we are 30 to 40 years, or maybe 130 or 140 years behind the times in administration of criminal justice can be in no way a fault of prohibition," he said.

Gen. Edwards declared real enforcement would require an annual expenditure of $500,000,000 and a force greater than the present Army and Navy. He deplored the proposal to place 10,000 armed men along the Canadian border, "which, throughout our history as a republic has been free from a single post or outpost manned for either defensive or offensive purposes."

Representative Schafer took issue with those who maintain prohibition has brought prosperity. "This is true only as applied to the stupendous bank deposits of the grafters, bootleggers, hijackers, and rumrunners," he said.

"The American people are now spending more money for more alcoholic beverages than they ever did before prohibition. Much of the liquor consumed today is filling the insane asylums, jails and graveyards, and doing irreparable harm to the well-being and health of this and future generations.

"We were promised prohibition would empty the penitentiaries, but we find today almost every jail in the country filled to capacity and the courts congested with pending prohibition cases."

Guest Rabbis Will Be Heard.

"Cross-Currents of Jewish Life" is the subject of a sermon to be delivered at the Sixth Street Synagogue tonight by Rabbi Carl M. Stave, of Jackson Heights, Long Island. Well-known in Jewish circles as an educator, Dr. Stave is one of a series of prominent guest rabbis who have addressed the congregation this winter.

Dry Agents Robbed Of Truck of Alcohol

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—It's getting so a hard-working prohibition agent can't leave a truck load of alcohol standing on the streets.

After seizing a truck loaded with 50 ten-gallon barrels of alcohol here today, Dry Agents A. W. Stoddard and William Tauczy, of the New York office, stopped at an office building to telephone news of their seizure. They took the three men they found on the truck inside with them. When they came out the truck was gone. A bystander said a man had driven it away.

Although the evidence had disappeared the three men were held charged with violating the dry law.

FACING REALITIES.

The similarity of suggestions thrown out by Prime Minister MacDonald and Secretary Stimson indicates that they have been in close communication and have agreed that it is wise to abandon the practice of issuing rosy predictions. The public on both sides of the ocean was fed with overconfident statements at the time of Mr. MacDonald's visit to Washington and for some time afterward. Now, as the realities of the forthcoming conference are beginning to emerge, both Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Stimson tone down their rainbow colors and warn the public not to expect too much.

That it was a mistake in strategy to convey the impression that Great Britain and the United States had reached a special accord on naval questions is now apparent, after the mischief has been done. Nothing could more surely block an international naval agreement than the conviction on the part of other powers that an Anglo-American entente had been reached for the purpose of dominating the London conference. The joint statement issued by President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald unfortunately conveyed the impression that the two governments had agreed upon a joint far-reaching political policy affecting other nations. Ever since that time the other powers have made preparations to resist the pressure of an Anglo-American program at the London conference.

Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Stimson have laid emphasis lately upon battleship questions. The vexed cruiser question is kept in the background. By confining its attention to battleships the conference would have a prospect of agreement, but when cruisers and submarines come under discussion the trouble begins.

A postponement of the replacement period for battleships ought to be agreed upon. None of the nations is eager to spend $50,000,000 for a warship. Although the British navy has an advantage of 75,000 tons of battleships as compared with the United States Navy, it seems quite probable that the existing arrangement can be extended, with a postponement of replacement of ships. In that manner the two battleship fleets would reach parity in 1941.

The real difficulty would remain—that of equalizing cruiser strength. Great Britain is enormously stronger than the United States in cruisers, and is unwilling that the United States should build up to parity if the proposed increase of American ships shall consist of 10,000-ton vessels. The minimum cruiser needs of Great Britain is fixed by Mr. MacDonald at 50 vessels, of 339,000 tons. The United States would like to see the cruiser maximum placed at 285,000 tons, but in view of the British position this desired reduction is not to be looked for. Britain asks the United States to be content with eighteen 10,000-ton cruisers, which would bring the total American cruiser tonnage to 300,500 tons.

If an agreement is to be reached that will be acceptable to the Senate it must actually provide for substantial equality of the British and American navies in cruiser strength. In no other way can Congress be expected to suspend the construction of additional cruisers.

France insists that political accords must precede naval accords, holding that the security desired by each power can only be attained by reaching political agreements, such as the proposed pact guaranteeing each power concerned against aggression in the Mediterranean. But Prime Minister MacDonald frowns upon excursions into the political field and will endeavor to hold the conference down to a discussion of naval questions. The probability of a deadlock therefore arises, because France has given notice that it will expand its naval strength in the absence of security pacts.

The Japanese delegation in London denies reports that the people and government of Japan are disappointed by the failure of the delegation thus far to obtain any concessions from the British and American authorities looking to an increase of the Japanese ratio of cruisers. This question presents many difficulties, which can also bring about a deadlock if Japan should prove obdurate.

The conference can not avoid the question of the relativity of the French and Italian navies if the five-power agreement is to be reached. France and Italy have been unable to agree as between themselves. How can Great Britain, the United States, and Japan induce or compel France or Italy to give way?

The slightest examination of the fundamental problems confronting the London conference reveals that the nations are very far apart, and that not sufficient spadework has been done. The leading figure in the conference, Ramsay MacDonald, is an impulsive socialist who has never before come to grips with great and complicated realities. For political reasons he has rushed the big powers into a conference before they have had time to consult with one another and agree upon fundamental questions. If they emerge from the conference as good good friends as when they went in they will be fortunate indeed.

THE SENATE AND SUGAR.

In voting to retain the present tariff on sugar the Senate sustained the views of many economists and a large share of the American people. The vote can not be interpreted as a blow at the domestic sugar industry, but as a refusal to tax the American public for the benefit of foreign producers in the Philippine Islands. No doubt the majority recognized the futility of raising the tariff against Cuba, and consequently the price to American consumers, as long as producers in the Philippines are left free to usurp all the benefit.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, which State is a large sugar beet producer, voted for the Harrison amendment to keep the sugar duty at its present level of 1.76 cents per pound. Senator Borah and all the other representatives of sugar-producing States are working for protection of the industry, but most of them agree that a mere increase in the duty would be futile.

It remains to be seen whether the Senate will supplement this action by voting a bounty to the domestic producers. A bounty would overcome the advantage enjoyed by the Philippines, since it would be paid only to domestic producers. It seems doubtful, however, that the sponsors of the bounty plan will be able to overcome the general antipathy to any draft of this kind against the Treasury.

The House raised the sugar duty to 2.40 cents per pound, and the conferees may try to reach a compromise. There is a general feeling, however, that any increase in the sugar duty would be ineffective, so far as the domestic producer is concerned, until Congress is willing to put a limitation on Philippine sugar.

PATH TO PHILIPPINE FREEDOM.

Representatives of the Philippine Islands who came to Washington as an independence delegation made eloquent pleas for freedom of the islands at the opening hearing on this subject before the Senate committee on territories and insular affairs. Ever since the United States took the Filipinos under its protection eloquent pleas of this kind have been coming up to Washington. If the Filipino people are really sincere in desiring separation from this country it is time for them to drop sentiment and face concrete facts.

Speaker Manuel Roxas, of the Philippine House of Representatives, used the typical argument. "We do not weigh our independence," he said, "against our sugar and coconut oil industry. We are willing to make any sacrifice along that line to obtain our independence." Such statements are easy to make, but not so easy to live up to. It is plainly evident that the Filipino leaders are willing to face the economic disturbances that independence would bring because of a strong presumption that if the islands got in trouble managing their own affairs Uncle Sam would come to the rescue.

Pedro Gil, minority leader in the Legislature, showed a disposition to face the issue more squarely. There is no doubt, he said, that the abolition of the present free trade would have the immediate effect of a serious economic disturbance in the Philippines. But he is confident that after the necessary period of adjustment Philippine commerce would develop along broader and more permanent lines. This is in agreement with the more conservative thought in the United States, with this difference: The Filipinos are willing to risk the dangers of a serious economic disruption, while Americans think they should avoid that jolt by undergoing a period of economic preparation under the American flag.

Fear of chaotic conditions as a result of independence is no mere bugbear. Nearly three-fourths of all Philippine exports come to the United States. Since 1914 exports to other countries have increased about 33 per cent, but during the same period exports to the United States on the basis of free trade have increased more than 500 per cent. If the Filipinos seriously considered the consequences of losing this market, the economic aspects of the question would dwarf their idealistic arguments for immediate separation. The delegation can do a service to the Filipino people and to the United States by revising their requests of a basis of sound economic policy, and by cooperating in formulation of a plan to make the islands economically independent of the United States as a preliminary to political independence.

COMMUNITY CHEST PLANS.

A careful budget of the needs of all charitable and welfare organizations depending upon the Community Chest for funds in 1930 has been prepared. A total of $4,864,386 is needed to carry on this work in the District for the coming year. The various institutions anticipate earnings and endowments that will amount to $2,976,727, and a surplus of $100,921 remains from the contributions of 1929. This leaves a remainder of $1,786,737 which must be supplied by the people of Washington if the work of these agencies is to be carried on satisfactorily this year.

The amount to be raised through the Community Chest this year shows a substantial increase for various reasons. Since Washington is a rapidly growing city its need for work of this kind steadily increases. Twelve months ago some member organizations had cash balances which have now been exhausted. But the foremost reason for the larger budget is the increase of almost 33 per cent in the number of organizations depending upon the Community Chest for funds. This year contributions must be divided among 75 agencies.

The budget committee's report, showing withdrawal of one member organization and enlistment of nineteen new members, indicates the success of the chest. Modern business methods have supplanted the old haphazard ways of supplying charity and welfare societies with funds. Further evidence of the fine service rendered by the chest is contained in the figures showing a cost of 15 to 25 per cent for raising funds in the old way, compared with a cost of 6 per cent for the Community Chest last year. A further reduction of overhead expense to 5½ per cent is promised this year.

Washingtonians have reason to be proud of the work that was accomplished through the medium of the Community Chest. Constant annoyance of the public, which together with inefficiency was the chief objection to the previous method, has been eliminated and those in need are given more adequate attention. With this record to stand upon the Community Chest will no doubt find the people of Washington in a responsive mood when its 1930 drive gets under way.

The women attending the conference on the cause and cure of war paid a visit to the Senate. Presumably they were investigating the cause.

Two earth shocks sway buildings in Los Angeles, says a dispatch. No doubt it was just a little demonstration for the benefit of tourists.

The United States has never lost a war or won a conference, but here's hoping.

Prohibition seems to have made quite a reputation for a 10-year-old.

HOME ACCIDENTS

From the New York Herald Tribune.

Miss Ida M. Tarbell's statement this week, in her radio address sponsored by the National Safety Council that homes are the most dangerous places in the world requires a footnote. Not that this statement in itself is specially significant, but it exemplifies an error which pervades the majority of accident statistics, making these important figures far less trustworthy than they should be and probably contributing to the prevalent public distrust of any conclusion which is merely statistical. This error is the failure to take account of relative exposure to risk.

Last year some 24,000 people, it is reported, died as the result of home accidents. During the same period about 400 individuals appear to have been killed, directly or indirectly, by airplane accidents. The superficial conclusion might be that homes are 60 times more dangerous than airplanes, since 60 times as many people met death in them. The foolishness of this instance is as obvious as of Mark Twain's famous dictum that bed is the spot of greatest danger in everybody's life, since that is where the vast majority of people die. In many more complicated examples of the same superficial reasoning the error is less apparent. One of them is the computation of home accidents. Whether stated as a mere number of deaths a year or as a rate of deaths to the hundred thousand of population, the data for fatal home accidents are meaningless until they have been compared with the average number of hours a day that the average individual spends in his home. Even then, the figures should be divided into accidents caused by different kinds of home activity and weighted for the numbers of hours of the average individual's lifetime which these activities absorb. Otherwise such statistics can not fulfill what is their only possible useful purpose: to aid people in avoiding what is dangerous.

One way of expressing the actual hazard of different occupations, each weighted for the average hours of exposure to risk, is to compute the hours, days or years of continuous devotion to that occupation after which, on the average, the devotee will suffer a fatal accident. It has been computed on this basis that the average New Yorker could spend 1,600 years, eight hours a day, on the city streets without being killed. At home, the fatal accident would be delayed on the average for 2,000 years. The automobile, probably the most dangerous device which ordinary people habitually use, kills its average passenger in about 400 years. Among the different kinds of home accidents, but one has been computed, so far as we know, to take account of the average hours of risk. This is the bathtub accident. The data are not precise, but apparently a bathtub is almost as dangerous as an automobile. Otherwise, homes are relatively safe places, as one would expect, instead of relatively dangerous ones.

THE MILKMAN.

Oh, the coffee's on the stove and the bacon's in the pan,
But breakfast won't be ready till you hear the creamery man.
A glad song in the kitchen now the boiling kettle hums,
But you can't have any breakfast till the milkman comes!

The house is warm and cozy. We have all that we desire,
The toast is on the table and the bacon's on the fire.
Oh, you may be in a hurry, but sit down and twirl your thumbs,
For you can't have any breakfast till the milkman comes!

How often have you heard it? We have everything on hand,
But we're waiting for the milkman, and he's monarch of the land.
You may watch the hungry sparrows, busy picking up the crumbs,
But you can't have any breakfast till the milkman comes!

So I'm writing for the milkman just a merry line or two,
To encourage and inspire him in the work he has to do.
It's his job to start us going, and this truth his value sums,
Rich and poor must wait for breakfast till the milkman comes!

You Can't Forgive One Who Won't Let You Respect Yourself

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS is addressed to young people who have pride, character, breeding and fine sensibilities.

Others will not understand it, and need not, for the advice it contains is worthless to them.

When a man and a woman run away together, sacrificing a conventional world's respect to gratify an illicit love, their romance seldom endures.

In the gray dawn of the second day their eyes are opened; and strive as they will, for pride's sake, to fool themselves and to fool one another, their love gives way to a feeling of resentment that ends in recrimination and hatred.

Do you know why?

It is because their romance was conceived in treachery and their success won at the sacrifice of honor.

They are ashamed.

If they were merely ashamed of one another, time and a sense of loyalty might reconcile them.

But each is secretly ashamed of himself, and he can not forgive the other for being a witness to that shame.

Each has a feeling that he might rid himself of shame, and be again as clean as he was, if he could be rid of the other—as a murderer adds to his feeling of security by killing the witnesses to his crime.

Love can not survive comradeship in shame.

That is a truth young people of decent pride should learn before they marry.

Any breach of refinement that lessens self-respect must inevitably lessen love.

If they quarrel and in anger say harsh and vulgar things of which they are ashamed when their anger cools, neither will be able to look in the other's eyes, and neither can forgive the other for witnessing his shame.

"What a beast I was!" the man says to his soul. "And she saw me at my worst. Never again can I feel respectable in her presence. I'll always be afraid she is remembering."

We can't forgive those who have seen us stripped of honor, for we never can feel secure in our pose of decency while they are near.

That is the tragedy in sordidness.

That is the reason every quarrel and every gross experience shared in secret leaves a scar that love can not efface.

If you have pride and breeding, guard your self-respect as your chief treasure.

You never will forgive the one who helps you to destroy it.

HOW TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION.

The Wickersham Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement has filed its preliminary, or first period, report of its inquiry into the question, "Prohibition, and if So, Where?"

* * * *

The commission has been at work on the problem for nearly a year, with the usual time allowance for golf, chess and fishing. It has discovered what the public had known all along:

1. That nothing can be accomplished until Uncle Sam realizes that a rubber band is not a padlock.

2. That enforcement will continue to be a joke until the courts are as well manned as the speakeasies, booze trucks and rum boats.

* * * *

President Hoover took the report while it was still hot and read it to Congress. Congress listened intently in a silence so deep you could hear a flask drop.

* * * *

The committee report urges, among other things:

1. Discontinuance of the old Spanish custom under which a prohibition official, before padlocking a saloon, allows the proprietor ample time to find a new place.

2. A rule prohibiting padlocking agents from helping speakeasy owners find bigger and better quarters and also from assisting in moving the piano, bar fixtures, &c., without a special permit from Washington.

3. Disciplinary action to prevent coast guardsmen from taking champagne from confiscated cargoes until it has been properly iced.

4. More judges and prosecutors for courts and a preference for deaf ones who can't understand what is being said over the phone when political bosses call up to intercede for rumrunners who always vote right.

5. The number of all bootleggers so they can be identified without recourse to the official program.

6. A rule requiring that all enforcement officers calling for weekly collections at speakeasies, distilleries, &c., wear white mackintoshes with red stripes so they can be easily identified.

7. Abolition of juniper essence, gallon jugs and cocktail-shakers.

8. The abolition of golf.

9. The abolition of football stadia.

10. The abolition of suitcases, nipper bags, &c.

11. A Federal amendment making it a criminal offense for anybody to call another person on the telephone and say, "This is Gus."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Alexandria Would Profit Commercially if Restored to District of Columbia, Says M. V. Tracy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with interest the letters of a couple of Alexandrians objecting to the incorporation of Alexandria with the District of Columbia. In the light of Alexandria's present glowing prospect of industrial development their attitude is not to be wondered at. But I think that later on, as the novelty of the proposal wears off, local pride will give way to a realization of the material benefit likely to result from a closer union, not alone to Washington, but to Alexandria likewise.

Business men are agreed that the establishment of large manufacturing plants in the District would pay. Such a development has been held back because of the general desire that Washington's rank as a residential city be preserved, and the fear, whether right or wrong, that it might thereby be jeopardized.

This objection, in case the former Virginia portion of the District were restored, would cease to exist; and the location of District industries on a large scale on the Virginia side of the Potomac would be ideal.

Alexandria can not object to such a development, for the reason that commercial and manufacturing expansion is what she is dreaming about and working for at the present time.

To be sure, the indications are that in the course of time a very great expansion will take place even if Alexandria fails to profit by retrocession to the District. But I think it would come on a larger scale and much more rapidly with capital from the outside assured of investment under national jurisdiction, not to mention the prestige of location in the Federal District. M. V. TRACY.

Alice in Wonderland Holds the Key to That Great American Problem, "How to Get Dry."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Amid all this discussion of dry enforcement it occurs to me that the original manuscript of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," now on exhibition in the Library of Congress, might be consulted with advantage.

On page 25 of the photostat copy, following the exquisite pen-and-ink drawing of Alice leading the duck, dodo, lory and eaglet and the other feathered creatures swimming in the pool of her own tears, we find the mouse announcing himself as an authority in answering "the first question" with them, as with us now, how to get dry.

"Sit down all of you and attend to me! I'll soon make you dry enough!" he says, as say so many of our senators, bishops, &c.

It is true the section of early English history relating to the acceptance of William the Conqueror by Mercia, Northumbria, the Archbishop of Canterbury, &c., which he read aloud to them as "the driest thing I know" did not accomplish his purpose; but neither do any of the other nostrums of today, and yet it might be welcomed as a change. It seems to me a pity that a book costing $150,000 and over which a special guard stands in the Library, should not be put to some practical use. Hence I venture the suggestion.

E. B. CROFFUT.

A Plea for Preserving the Postoffice Department Building as an Offset to Classic Structures.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I like the idea of Critic, as expressed in your letter column, that the Fine Arts Commission, in the beautifying of the city, should strive after "judicious variety" in "artistic harmony," avoiding the art specialists' stumbling block of dead-level "uniformity."

In keeping with that idea I would let the grand old Postoffice Department Building on Pennsylvania avenue stand instead of tearing it down. Thus, when the south-of-the-Avenue triangle development is completed it would loom as a welcome break in the magnificent but to some extent cloying monotony of a mile-long "grandeur that was Greece and glory that was Rome."

As I visualize it, that massive replica of medieval masonry would serve as a sort of artistic punctuation point, favoring a cleaner conception of the Avenue's upper and lower expression of architectural magnificence.

This plea for the preservation of the General Postoffice Building is penned from the layman's standpoint. If preserved the building might cause technical qualms among the experts of some particular school of outdoor art, but this would be far outweighed by what might be called the exquisite artistic shock it would give to the average layman, in contrast with the white splendor of classic structures. Let's have a shock. LAYMAN.

Advantages to Virginians in Returning to the District of Columbia Offset Lack of the Vote.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Any Virginian who thinks the voting privilege offsets the many advantages possessed by being a citizen of the National Capital certainly puts up a poor argument to retain his voting privilege, when official statistics show that only about one-half of the people who already have the privilege of voting in the States take advantage of it. Besides, any fellow whom they might select, black or white, male or female, to represent them in Congress would assume the attitude of the "poor boy at a fair" in regard to getting anything through Congress for his constituents. Now, the District has two congressional committees, with the United States Treasury backing them. Back-to-the-District associations, now active, are made up of progressive citizens who desire to extend the Capital City to their domain, as originally intended, and those who still desire to vote can move further back in the woods and listen to the monotonous "music" of the frogs and whip-poor-wills. Even the starlings come to Washington for safety from owls and hawks.

NEAR EAST ISSUES SHELVED AT HAGUE

Reparations Parley Waits Only for German Reply on Foreign Loans.

BERLIN CLAIMS VICTORY

The Hague, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The second Hague conference on reparations, having despaired of settling the southeastern European questions at this time, is delaying its adjournment only for an agreement between the French and Germans as to whether the German government shall bind itself not to make any foreign loans before the first slice of reparation bonds are floated.

This question, it was predicted tonight, will be decided tomorrow or Saturday. The German delegation has referred it to experts who were brought here especially from Berlin to study the problem.

The questions between Austria, Bulgaria and Hungary on the one hand, and Greece, Roumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia on the other, have reached such a tangle that there is no longer hope of unraveling it here. It has been suggested, however, that some provision might be made in the protocol for adoption of the Young plan whereby the smaller creditor nations may signify adherence to it within a certain time limit. Under the present schedule of the conference, the signing of this protocol would take place on Sunday.

Berlin Interprets Points.

Berlin, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The German Foreign Office late today issued an official interpretation of certain points agreed upon at The Hague, between Germany and her creditors. This interpretation made the point that the right of sanctions established by the Treaty of Versailles, has been abolished, inasmuch as the reparations commission will be abandoned the moment that the Young plan is put into effect.

In regard to what is known as "An Extreme Case," when an attempt might be made by creditor powers to impose fresh sanctions under the Versailles treaty, the German official opinion is that "the attempt in such a case to revive the old Versailles rights has been strictly declined by Germany, since renewed recognition of the Versailles right of sanctions could, under no circumstances, be considered."

"Germany's declaration of this point," the opinion adds, "merely concedes to her opponents full freedom of action in the event of such a hypothetical possibility. But this freedom would, in any case, be a natural sequence to a tearing up of the pact."

Germany's Word Accepted.

In an obviously inspired editorial, the Koelnische Volkszeitung discussed the same point, saying:

"Such freedom of action is not that of the Versailles Treaty, but of general international law which, under certain conditions, recognizes the right of reprisals in cases of this kind. Germany has not, in advance, recognized such action as justified. On the other hand her creditors must justify each measure resorted to, especially in regard to its compatibility with the covenant of the League of Nations, the Locarno treaties and the Kellogg pact.

"Germany's word is accepted as guaranty for the fulfillment of her obligations. This recognition is akin to the terms of the German-American agreement and shows that the country has been rehabilitated in an important matter.

"The right to reoccupy the Rhineland has been definitely averted."

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

INSTANT discharge for any Government employe known to take a drink is the nub of a plan for prohibition enforcement just outlined by one of the bright young aids of a Cabinet member. The plan is causing profound horror in many quarters, for it would apply high and low, and would include the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

The idea is that total abstinence—even when attending embassy parties, where drinking is legal because it is actually on foreign soil—would be enforced on every one drawing pay from the Federal Government. To have it authentically reported that a Federal official or employe had taken a drink—after the issuance of the proposed executive order—would be sufficient cause for his or her immediate dismissal.

The author of this plan does not intend to bring it to President Hoover's attention immediately. He believes firmly that no possible plan which the Wickersham Commission can devise will really enforce prohibition. He would approach enforcement, therefore, from an entirely different angle.

* * * * *

"MY plan," he said in discussing it with a group at a luncheon club, "would dry up Washington with amazing rapidity. Washington is not the ultimate goal, of course, for I think there is no doubt that the effects would percolate to every nook and corner in the country. It would not only apply to Federal officials and employes in the District of Columbia. If the United States district attorney in St. Paul took a drink he would be discharged as soon as evidence to that effect reached the Department of Justice.

"If the stenographer of the collector of customs at New Orleans took a drink he or she would go just as quickly. If the third assistant warden at Atlanta Penitentiary drank a glass of homebrew at a friend's house, and it was reported, a new third assistant warden would be hired. It would apply to Army, Navy and Marine Corps officers everywhere, and I think you would find that it would be very dangerous for them to risk it.

"THERE have already been some interesting cases of Army and Marine Corps officers reported for drunkenness, though they have been few in number. Under my plan there is no proposal to prosecute drinkers, or send them to jail, or even to disgrace them. For a while it might be that so many persons would be removed from office that there would be no particular stigma. But very rapidly we would evolve a situation where employes of the Government simply did not drink.

"The point here is that every one desirous of seeing the law enforced would be anxious to report violators of such an executive order, and would not be embarrassed by the thought that their reporting the incident would send a friend to jail."

The idea does not stop at Federal employes. The author proposes that after a test had shown his plan to work effectively in checking drinking by Federal employes, the State governments would be called on to take the same stand. A short time later he would have the Government call on the big corporations, the chain stores, and industry of every variety to follow suit.

* * * * *

"IN a few years," he said enthusiastically, "we would have three-fourths if not four-fifths of the people in this country not daring to take a drink because to do so would risk their livelihoods. Personally I have no doubt that such a procedure would be infinitely more effective in bringing about real prohibition than the most drastic scheme of punishments that any laws would outline, no matter how large an army of enforcement officials might be provided. Further it has the advantage that it would cost virtually nothing. The system itself would provide the snoopers. Ambitious underlings would see to it that the drinking of their superiors was reported, in addition to the sincere conscientious determination of so many people to see that the dry law was enforced."

It is rather interesting that the gentleman who makes this proposal was formerly a two-fisted drinker who is now a total abstainer.

Delegates in Hurry to Leave for Five-Power London Naval Parley.

IS CENTER OF INTEREST

Geneva, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The council of the League of Nations closed its fifty-eighth session today with the principal delegates in a hurry to get away for the five-power naval conference in London, which opens next Tuesday.

League officials consider this session one of the least controversial and most harmonious ever held in the decade of the league's existence.

In a very real sense it is correct to say that the chief interest of the session was the presence of the London conference on the horizon. With this momentous gathering in view, league circles were glad that nothing had been done at Geneva this week to arouse the slightest ill feeling likely to prejudice its success. The league's friends believe that several incidents during the session are tokens of a better international spirit.

The incident creating the greatest interest was the private conference between Foreign Minister Briand of France and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy. Though the results of this talk were kept strictly secret, it is believed that no great progress was made toward settling the Franco-Italian disagreement about naval parity.

Nevertheless, observers were certain it had proved beneficial to the reciprocal relations of the two countries and of the two statesmen.

Lithuania has signed the protocol, it was learned today, for American adhesion to the world court. Only the signatures of Albania and Abyssinia are now lacking to make the signature of the document complete and unanimous.

formation than had Mr. Whalen's and Inspector Mulrooney's chats got them. The retired vegetable merchant (as he styles himself) merely repeated that he knew Magistrate Vitale slightly; didn't know Arthur C. Johnson, the detective whose gun was stolen at the dinner; did know Danny Imascia and "Joe the Baker" Catania, who were briefly accused of obtaining the return of the loot; did not known Gaetano di Sommi, proprietor of the Roman Gardens, whose name was given in the complaint as the source of the information against him, and that he had not been at the dinner.

Mr. McLaughlin therefore permitted him to be carried off to West Farms Court, where Magistrate Donras fixed bail and set Monday as a date for hearing of the formal arraignment.

melde, who figured in the 1928 strike here, and 20-year-old K. O. Byerrs, Gastonia mill worker, were among the fourteen men and two women arrested before the meeting broke up.

Later in the afternoon several hundred men and women blocked the street in front of the South End quarters of the National Textile Workers Union and a cuspidor and chairs were thrown at police by those inside the building when they attempted an arrest. The thrower of the cuspidor scored a direct hit on Sergt. William McCarty. Three more men were arrested by police and joined their comrades in cells at the Central Police Station.

All were charged with disturbing the peace or loitering, and some of them with resisting arrest and assault upon an officer.

Hughes Comes to Defense Of World Court Protocol

Interests of U. S. Fully Protected, Former Secretary of State Asserts; Need of Continued Peace Efforts Are Pointed Out.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State and now a justice of the world court, tonight explained the workings of the world court in an address before the city Bar Association. The talk was broadcast over the National Broadcasting Co. chain.

Touching on the protocol of the World Court, he said that, in his opinion, "the conditions of this protocol fully protect the interests of our country."

"The judicial settlement of international disputes," he said, "can not be adequately secured by mere sporadic, occasional efforts. There should be continuity, permanency, the opportunity for the growth of confidence and for the firm establishment of the tradition both of competency and judicial independence.

"As a nation devoted to the interests of peace, we have the utmost concern in this development. To hold aloof is to belie our aspiration and to fail to do our part in forming the habit of mind upon which all hopes of permanent peace depend.

"In supporting the World Court in the manner proposed, we lost nothing that we could otherwise preserve; we take no serious risks that we could otherwise avoid; we enhance rather than impair our ultimate security, and we heighten the mutual confidence which rests on demonstrated respect for the essential institutions of international justice."

Doheny Trial Data Ordered by Court

Secretary of Navy Told to Produce Files in Oil Man's Hearing.

Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, was directed by Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court yesterday to produce certain records and Navy Department files in the trial of Edward L. Doheny, millionaire oil magnate, which is scheduled to get under way March 18. The charge against Doheny was calendared following the conviction of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, on an indictment accusing the latter of receiving a $100,000 bribe from Doheny. The oil magnate is charged with giving the bribe.

Among the records which the court desires are cablegrams and letters said to have been sent between September 16, 1920, and March 31, 1921, by Rear Admiral Gleaves. The letters and cablegrams are said to have contained information regarding fears that an Asiatic invasion would come at that time. Some of these papers, it was said, had been introduced as evidence in the trial of Fall in an effort to show that the oil deals on the Pacific Coast were inspired by patriotism.

Legality of Radio Laws Questioned

Constitutionality Is to Be Decided in Case Before Supreme Court.

(Associated Press.)

The constitutionality of the Federal radio laws was questioned yesterday in the Supreme Court.

The highest tribunal was asked to pass on the vested rights of radio broadcasting stations and determine whether Congress has authority to require those operating such stations to abandon all such rights as a condition to the grant of licenses by the Federal Radio Commission.

Clinton R. White, operating broadcasting Station WCRW at Chicago, was licensed by the Commerce Department while it had control of radio broadcasting, and since then by the Federal Radio Commission. Stations applying are required specifically to agree that a Federal license would not be construed to grant any vested rights to operate or to use any particular wavelength.

When the Federal Radio Commission sought to reduce his power to 100 watts, White protested, claiming that it would materially depreciate the value of his station, which had been using 500 watts power, and which was producing profits of about $400 a week.

the end of December. It reached Wireless Operator Kyrilenko at Pinkigny on January 14 in a letter from Cape Wellen that was dated December 30. Eielson and Borland have been missing since November 9.

The Soviet government also ordered that an airplane expedition be sent out from Cape Providence, instructing the Soviet aviators, Gladyshev and Slepnev, to join in the search. Another party will be sent from Cape Wellen.

(Associated Press.)

Eielson and Borland, who have been missing since November 9 in the Arctic, have been the center of a long search by American and Canadian airmen. Within recent weeks the Soviet government took up the search, particularly in view of the possibility that the two fliers, who were on an air trip to reach the fur-trading ship Nanuk, ice bound at North Cape, Siberia, might have been forced down somewhere along the Siberian coast.

Available gazetteers do not show a river named Anguemy, but show the River Great Anguy, which is in northeastern Siberia and empties into the Arctic Ocean in the region of Cape North. It had generally been believed that the men must have been forced down somewhere in this region and a Soviet air expedition had been organized to make a thorough search of the North Cape district.

The mouth of the Anguy River is about midway between Wrangel Island and the new Siberian Islands, near which the Nanuk has been held in the ice. Among those aboard the ice-bound Nanuk is Marion Swensen, 17-year-old Seattle High School girl, whose father, Olaf Swensen, a fur trader, is also aboard.

Eielson had made one flight to the Nanuk from Teller, Alaska, to bring back passengers and cargo, and was to have made several more trips. It was on a second trip that he and Borland disappeared.

During the last few weeks several reports have been received concerning the fliers, none of which could be confirmed. One report was that the planes had been wrecked on the Siberian coast about 60 miles from the Nanuk.

The fliers carried extensive food supplies and when Eielson took off on his fateful flight Eielson said, "Don't worry about me for 30 days."

Acting on an unofficial appeal from the American Government for aid in the search for the missing men, the Soviet government on December 25 gave orders for an airplane to proceed to northern Siberia and seek the men. A reward amounting to $1,000 for news of the fliers also was offered by the Soviet government.

Leading Russian Arctic experts have maintained that hope for the men should not be abandoned.

Prof. Karpinsky, president of the Russian Academy of Science and chairman of the academy's polar commission, expressed the belief that Eielson, because of his experience in the polar regions, would probably be able to exist for a long period on the ice pack even if he should fail to reach the shore.

was without means of keeping warm. Names of those in the party, other than Hildred, were not learned.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Arctic weather continued in the West tonight with little relief in sight from sub-zero temperatures that have brought acute suffering to the mountain regions and Southwest. More snow was forecast for sections already covered with the heaviest blanket of white in several years.

Two deaths from freezing in Nevada were added today to the six deaths in Colorado and Montana indirectly attributed to the severe cold. The bodies of Carl Miller, 35, and Miss Mabel Dennis, 28, were found 80 miles southwest of Pioche, Nev., where they succumbed after the automobile in which they were riding became marooned in deep snowdrifts. They were to have been married in a few days.

At Cheyenne, Wyo., this afternoon the mercury stood at 15 below zero. An air mail pilot landing there reported it was warmer at a high altitude than on the ground. At 9,000 feet he said the temperature was 23 degrees above zero.

Hoovers Give State Dinner To Mr. Curtis

Mrs. Gann Is Escorted by President to Table.

By JEAN ELIOT.

"THE Vice President's dinner," an innovation in the list of state functions at the White House, was given last night with the President and Mrs. Hoover as hosts. Vice President Curtis was the guest of honor, with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann included in the company, and the Vice President's sister and hostess, as the ranking lady present, went in to dinner with the President. Mrs. Charles P. George, daughter of Vice President Curtis, who is visiting her father, was a guest.

The clergy were numerously represented in the company, which was entirely unofficial in its make-up. In the clerical group were the Bishop of Washington and Mrs. James E. Freeman; Bishop William F. McDowell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Mrs. McDowell; the Rev. Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House, and Mrs. Montgomery; the Very Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University, and Dr. Augustus T. Murray, pastor of the Friends Church, which the President and Mrs. Hoover attend.

The other guests were Mr. William Butterworth, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Butterworth; Miss Susan L. Dyer, of California, who has been visiting at the White House for several weeks; Miss Alida Henriques, Mr. Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee; Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Keppel, of New York; Chancellor and Mrs. Ernest H. Lindley, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Nichols, Miss Mary Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. John V. Reynders, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard, of New York; Mr. Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and Mrs. Willard; Mr. Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor; Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College; Capt. Allen Buchanan and Col. Campbell V. Hodges.

The oblong table used for small parties at the White House—and this was exceptionally small for a state dinner, the company numbering but 36—was decorated with Laddie carnations, baby primrose and maidenhair fern, fruit-laden epergnes and softly shaded tapers in tall golden candlesticks being used with the famous Dolly Madison centerpiece.

After the dinner there was an hour of music in the east room, the program being presented by Mr. Louis Graveure, tenor, and the Aguilar Lute Quartet of Madrid. Spanish lutes from Estosa, Madrid, were used for Bach and Mozart numbers and a group of old Spanish airs. Mr. Graveure's program was varied and interesting, with "La Donna Mobile," from "Rigoletto," as the climax. Mr. Carroll Hollister was the accompanist.

Invitations went out yesterday for a reception at the White House on January 30, with the members of the Senate as the special guests. This, too, is a new feature of White House entertaining, the Senate and House having previously been entertained together at the congressional reception. A reception for the House will be given on February 20.

In Dahlgren Chapel of Georgetown University Miss Lenora Sheehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Sheehan, of Washington, was married yesterday to Mr. Edmund Toland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Toland, of Boston.

The Rev. Arthur O'Leary, dean of the Graduate School at Georgetown, and cousin of the bride, officiated. The papal benediction had been cabled from Rome and was delivered by the Rev. Fulton J. Sheen. The chapel was beautifully decorated with palms and Easter lilies.

Miss Bernadette Sheehan, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mr. William Leahy was best man and the ushers were Mr. Arthur J. Harnett and Mr. Daniel O'Connell, of New York; Mr. Robert W. Wilson and Mr. Joseph Sheehan, the latter a brother of the bride. Dr. Thomas Hurney and Mr. Aloysius Sheehan, cousin and brother of the bride, respectively, assisted at the mass.

The bride had chosen a beautiful gown of ivory panne velvet fashioned on moulded lines, the neck line being rounded in front and graduating to a V-shape in the back. The skirt was made ankle length in front and formed a slight train in the back. Her veil, a family heirloom, was edged with pearls and with it she wore a coronet of seed pearls fitting closely around the face. She carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

The maid of honor presented an interesting contrast in her gown of pink chiffon, made with a full skirt flowing gracefully from a slightly shirred waist. A large picture hat of spring green velvet flatteringly turned up in front with a broad drooping brim in back added a chic note to the effect. Matching shoes completed the ensemble. She carried a bouquet of pink snap dragons.

Among the clergy on the altar were the Very Rev. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown University; the Right Revt. Mgr. Givney, of New York, the Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, of New York; the Rev. Women Flock To Enjoy New Country Club

In this unique organization membership is vested in the petticoat side of the family, but husbands may share in the privileges of the club, as well as the sons and daughters of members. And facilities have been provided for the entertainment of all.

The reception yesterday was, in truth, a gala event, with "everybody" motoring out to look over the clubhouse in Bradley Hills and to enjoy a brilliant fete.

In the receiving line were members of the club's governing board, which includes Lady Isabella Howard, Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, Mrs. Claude Swanson, Mrs. William E. Borah, Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, Mrs. E. M. Cummings, Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Mrs. Henry Price Wright, Mrs. Walter R. R. Tuckerman, Mrs. T. A. Scott Thropp and Miss Natalie Sumner Lincoln.

Some were absentees, of course, notably Mrs. Adams, due to reach Plymouth this morning with the American delegation en route to London for the naval arms conference; Mrs. McCormick, now in Illinois launching her campaign to relieve Senator Charles S. Deneen of his seat in the Senate, and Mrs. Field, who is too frail to take part in big parties.

But most of the group were "on duty" through the afternoon. Lady Isabella Howard stood at the head of the receiving line for a long time, with Mrs. Borah, who served as chairman of the group which organized the club; Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Wright. Later one glimpsed Mrs. Speel and Mrs. Mondell "in line," other members of the board doing their bit in the course of the afternoon.

The club is designed to be national in scope and has an advisory council of women from many States, who are to vise applications for membership from their several territories. This group, several of whom were present, includes Mrs. William Bayard Cutting, New York; Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia; Mrs. Godfrey Lowell Cabot, Boston; Mrs. William E. Buhl, Detroit; Miss Martha McClure, Iowa, who is Republican national committeewoman for her State; Mrs. David Sinton Ingalls, Ohio, and Mrs. Harry S. New, Indiana.

Although the News retained their residence in Indiana through all the long period of Mr. New's service in the Senate and the Cabinet, they are so identified with Washington that it is difficult to associate them with any other place. Mrs. New was present yesterday and apparently enjoyed showing her friends over the charming clubhouse.

The National Woman's Country Club has taken over the old quarters of the Montgomery Country Club, which moved several years ago to Silver Spring, and has remodeled the house most charmingly. The "fine Italian hand" of Mrs. Louis McCartney Little (Elsie Cobb Wilson) is recognizable in the decorations, which in the main, are early American. However, in the cocktail room—"kickless cocktails" presumably—the ultra-modern note has been sounded with great effectiveness. This odd little apartment on the upper floor, which has a ceiling slanted at an angle and windows most amusingly placed, is "done" in yellow and blue, its furniture on geometrical lines.

The lighting fixtures, of cloudy glass set in dull silver, are also geometric in their outlines and the bibelots are all in keeping, even to the engaging porcelains in the modernistic manner, which are enshrined in a niche.

The club also boasts a grill, done in old English oak, with comfortable

Fifth Ave. Fashions
NEW YORK

A MODERN frock for wee maidens of 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years, who are always so thrilled when garbed in clothes of sophisticated lines.

It is utterly chic, and so unusual. With the skirt cut circular at sides and back to flutter gaily into mode.

It achieves a tailored air through fitted hip band that extends into a panel at front of skirt.

The becoming neckline with Bertha collar is comfortable, too, with open V at front. Sleeves have turn-back flaring cuffs.

Style No. 8242 is a featherweight tweed, of course, because it must be like older sister's frock in tiny check pattern in yellow-beige and brown tones.

You can copy it with three yards of 32-inch material for the size of 8 years. Think of it! The saving is just great, and it is so distinctly individual.

Navy blue wool crepe, with hip band emphasized by piping in vivid red shade grosgrain ribbon, which is repeated in binding for Bertha collar, cuffs and bow tie, is very attractive and serviceable.

Spanish red tones in wool jersey knitted weave is very effective.

Checked covert cloth in bottle green is another suggestion that is extremely new and popular.

Tweed-like cottons, wool rep, flannel, novelty rayon crepe, gingham, sportsweight linen, cotton broadcloth prints and crepe de chine are appropriate.

chairs and lounges upholstered in red leather. This has a big fireplace and a genuine B. V.—Before Volstead—bar, with a rail, an inviting array of ruby glasses and lockers above in which—to quote—one member—"aromatic ammonia" may be kept. On the mantel are some fine pieces of pewter over 200 years old.

The library on the upper floor, a quaint room with dormer windows, is furnished with fine reproductions of early American pieces and some that are really old. So are the lounge and the dining room below, which open together and where the festivities focussed yesterday. The walls and woodwork are painted a soft shade of green, a charming background for glazed chintzes, lovely old-time prints and graceful pieces of furniture. In an alcove off the lounge is a great fireplace and between the two apartments is a little gallery, where the orchestra was stationed yesterday. Pink roses and snapdragons decked the long buffet tables from which tea was served. The club also has card rooms, glassed-in terraces and a roof garden, which will not come into its own until spring. A golf course is to be constructed and a swimming pool installed.

Mrs. James J. Davis was an early arrival at the reception yesterday and others glimpsed in the course of the afternoon were Senora de Alfaro, Mme. Prochnik, Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Capt. and Mrs. John F. Jackson, Mrs. Thomas Lockwood, jr., Mrs. Harrison Brand, Mrs. Boyd Carpenter, Mrs. Lucy Wilder Morris, Mrs. Karl Klemm, Mrs. Roger Whiteford, Mrs. Frank Lord, Mrs. Peter Drury, Mrs. Percy Quin, Mrs. Everard B. Mrs. Harris Laning, wife of Rear Admiral Laning, and Miss Hester Laning have arrived at the Wardman Park Hotel where they have taken an apartment for several months.

Mrs. Claude Swanson Semones, Mrs. Julian Bemarest Simpson and Mrs. Andrew Hamilton Cannon drove to Richmond Wednesday to attend the ceremonies incident to the inauguration of the Governor of Virginia.

Mrs. William M. Kennedy, who has recently moved into her new home in Kenwood, left town yesterday for Florida, where she will remain several weeks. While she is away her son, Mr. William M. Kennedy, jr., will be at the Kenmore Country Club.

Mr. Greenwood Returns From New York Visit.

Representative A. H. Greenwood, of Indiana, has returned from New York where he accompanied his daughter, Miss Ruth Greenwood, who will study at the American Academy of Dramatic Art. Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Wells, of Des Moines, Ia., are spending several days at the Dodge Hotel.

Miss Ida Chamberlain To Be Guest Artist.

Miss Ida Hoyt Chamberlain, of New York, will be the guest artist at a reception honoring Dr. Leonida Pitimac, Minister from Jugoslavia, to be given by the Bureau of Commercial Economics at the Carlton Hotel Sunday evening. Miss Chamberlain is the author, lyricist and composer of the Broadway success, "Enchanted Isle." She will sing the Serbian national anthem and her own composition, "Comrades," from her new musical fantasy, "Venus Bound."

Miss Chamberlain gave a group of her own songs at the installation of officers of the American Legion Auxiliary at the Hotel Hamilton. Miss Chamberlain, who is a guest of Judge and Mrs. T. F. X. Callahan at the Montana, will remain in Washington for the winter, returning for a short time to New York for the premiere of a new play in which she collaborated with Bide Dudley.

More Watts In Richmond Are Sought

Allocation to WJSV at Mount Vernon Hills Declared Unwarranted and as Being Virtually in Washington.

Does Station WJSV broadcast enough programs from its studios in Mount Vernon Hills, Va., to justify its assignment, under the November 11, 1928, allocation, as a Virginia station? This is the question which the Federal Radio Commission must decide as a result of hearing the application of Station WMBG, of Richmond, Va., for permission to operate on 1240 Kilocycles, with 500 watts power and unlimited time.

Station WMBG, owned by Havens & Martin, Inc., declares that WJSV should be accredited to the District of Columbia instead of Virginia, since a large portion of its programs originate here. Callam Jones, attorney for the Virginia station, took the position that if the Mount Vernon Hills station was allocated to the District of Columbia, WMBG would have a better chance to secure additional radio facilities for Richmond and vicinity. Mr. Jones emphasized the fact that under the Davis amendment a radio station must be charged to the State or district wherein the studio is located and made every effort to show the commission that the major portion of the programs broadcast by WJSV originate in Washington.

James S. Vance, president of the Independent Publishing Company, which operates WJSV, admitted on the stand that there is no postoffice at Mount Vernon Hills and that mail for the station is delivered to 339 Pennsylvania avenue, where the local studios are located. Mr. Vance professed to know very little about the broadcasting end, saying he was chiefly concerned with the financial and business ends of the publishing company.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Callam, James P. MacGrath, studio manager and director, admitted that the only programs which emanate from the Mount Vernon Hills studios are put on during the daytime hours from 8 to 5:30 p. m., and that much of the daytime program is made up of phonograph records. He also admitted the main programs are put on from the local studios.

The Richmond station stressed the charge that the time and character of programs put on by this station hardly justified the allocation to it by the commission of 10,000 watts power and pointed out what they considered to be the superiority of their programs over the Mount Vernon Hills station offerings, yet they are restricted to 100 watts power.

Should the commission deside that WJSV should be classified as a District station, it is not known where the power would come from, unless it was borrowed from another zone, since the District now uses all the power allotted it, with WOL on the waiting list for an increase. It is quite certain that it could not continue to operate on 10,000 watts in the District.

Ritchie Will Talk Over Air Tonight

Governor Will Speak on Maryland and Capital Relations; Fun in Music at 11 A. M.; Lippman on Navy.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland will address the radio audience of the District of Columbia and Maryland on "The Relations of Maryland to the District of Columbia" at 7:30 o'clock from the studios of Station WMAL.

The population of the District of Columbia having expanded beyond its border lines, Gov. Ritchie feels that the time is opportune to tell the people of Maryland and the citizens of Washington what his hopes and aspirations are with respect to the development of the borderlands of Maryland, that an ever-increasing population may not only enjoy the benefits of residence in Maryland today, but what may be expected in the future.

"Fun in Music," as illustrated by selections from four composers in jocund vein, and the significance of "The Woodwind Instruments," will be studied by the N. B. C. Music Appreciation classes under the supervision of Walter Damrosch, in a program to be broadcast at 11 o'clock this morning by Station WRC.

The first half hour opens with the allegretto from Beethoven's "Eighth Symphony," which develops with charming whimsicality the theme of a greeting which the composer once addressed to his friend Maelzel, inventor of the metronome. In the next number, "Dance of the Mosquito," the Russian composer Laidow describes the evolutions of an insect that is fortunately stingless. The finale from Haydn's "Surprise Symphony" suggests an exchange of witticisms at a jovial gathering of friends, and the "Perpetual Motion" of Johann Strauss, humorously reminds one of the fate in store for the machine designed to run forever.

The classes in series B will hear the "Pastorale" from Pierne's suite "For My Little Friends," the andantino from the "Second Symphony," by Saint-Saens, and the finale from Gounod's "Little Symphony for Wind Instruments."

An all-Tschaikowsky program has been prepared by Eugene Goosens, director, for the Rochester Symphony Orchestra concert at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon from WRC. The selections are "1812 Overture," the polonaise from "Eugen Onegin," "Romeo and Juliet," "The Sleeping Beauty" suite, and violin solo and finale from "Variations."

A quartet of visiting artists from Station WJDX, Jackson, Miss., the home town of Judge E. O. Sykes, of the Federal Radio Commission, will be introduced to listeners in the program at 12:10 o'clock from WRC.

This hour is dedicated to the Mississippi station and these artists, assisted by Gitla Erstinn, soprano, and Richard Maxwell, tenor, will interpret a characteristically Southern program. Laigh C. Parker, director-manager of the station, will be master of ceremonies. Mrs. H. Cassedy Holden, soloist, is the niece of Judge Sykes. She will sing "The Songs We Used to Sing in Dixie," by Caro Roma. Cora Cook, soprano, and Allie Reeves, pianist, complete the visiting quartet.

Jessica Dragonette and the Cavaliers will be heard in selections from "Dearest Enemy" during the Cities Service hour. Miss Dragonette will also sing Padilla's "Violetera," and with Leo O'Rourke, "Babes in the Wood." Milton Rettenberg and Frank Banta will play Savino's "Study in Blue," and one of Mr. Rettenberg's own compositions, "Tango Blue," while the orchestra, under the direction of Rosario Bourdon, will offer a program of varied appeal.

Walter Lippmann, editor of the New York World, will give a preliminary analysis of the London Naval Conference, which convenes January 21, in a talk to be heard through WRC as the "March of Events" program arranged by the Women's City Club of New York.

Billy Artz and his Orchestra with the Songsters, a Negro quartet, blend ballads from Broadway and Negro spirituals from Dixie in the program at 10 o'clock from WRC.

The Washington Post will be represented over WOL at 8:15 o'clock this morning, with another "Breakfast Brevities" news feature.

The comic strip known as "Cecil and Sally," recently started by the station, will be heard at 5:30 o'clock. Pauline Loria, blues singer, will be heard at 6 o'clock, followed by the regular Friday evening features.

Toscha Seidel, violinist, will be featured during the program presented at 8 o'clock by WMAL.

Jeanne Behrend, pianist and pupil of Josef Hofmann, will be the featured guest of honor when the Curtis Institute of Music program is broadcast directly from Philadelphia at 10:30 o'clock by WMAL. Albert Mehler, tenor, and Ladislaus Steinhardt, violinist, will also be entertainers in this half-hour.

A dance orchestra will be presented from 11 o'clock until midnight.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"When Wives Work."

BEFORE many moons we are going to join that mighty chorus of the morons who are yipping for the good old days that have gone. Until now whenever we have heard some woman clad in sables bemoaning the days when she and Bennie ate in the kitchen or when some millionaire has sighed a ponderous sigh recalling his first promotion to shipping clerk, we have wondered why on earth these good people did not do something about it—see a doctor or cut out the gravies.

But now we are beginning to look back instead of forward ourself! And it is because of the sort of letters that come in our mail these days. We might just as well admit right now that 1930 will be the tenth year that we have been reading letters that come from the very hearts of men and women who find life a little bit too much for them. And in those ten years the tone of these letters has completely changed. Girls used to write that they were "waiting" for a boy to make enough to get married. Now they write that they are married to a man who seems to think it makes no difference which one earns the bread so long as there is bread.

Girls used to ask us how to make a man "propose." Now they write as Eunice in today's mail, "After going together for over a year I told him if we were ever going to get married we had better get started and both work till we had furniture. Now we have the furniture and a down payment for a house, and he is stepping out and cheating and tells me that getting married was my idea, not his, and I had better try to like it." All of this 1930 brand of romance makes us want to root for the days when a man worked for what he wanted in life whether it happened to be a girl or three square meals a day. From the very beginning nature saw to it that man's days should be filled with work, that he might get some joy out of the experience known as living.

Then along came science and chopped the forests for him, and carried him about, and handed him his food so all he had to hustle for was the modicum of cash necessary to pay science. And now along comes woman, the silly jade and says "don't you worry your lovely patent leather head about money, darling. I make $50 a week and have an apartment, so lets just start housekeeping on what we have together." And man already softened from lack of effort and lack of exercise, looks the proposition over and finds it too much exertion to do anything but acquiesce. And we today call the union of that man and that woman a marriage! The man cares nothing for the woman. To him she is an insistent fool but a convenient one. The woman cares nothing about the man. To her he is just the thing her apartment seems to lack. The needed bit of furniture the stores are not yet offering. Having acquired the bit she finds that it is not as advertised and presently exchanges it for something of a little different style.

Meanwhile the thing that was once marriage is fast disappearing from the earth. Men today are soft and inferior. Women have done it! And all of this lengthy rave is to answer Phil who asks in this morning's mail why we have suddenly turned against wives who work. We have not turned against anything or anybody, but we are beginning to feel it must have been rather thrilling to have lived in the good old days when men were men.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 17 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 9 a. m., from noon to 1 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

It will be revealed on this date that some one in whom you trust is a broken reed. Heartaches, worries and disappointments are augured, but the wounds will be ones of pride and will will leave no definite scars.

Children born on this January 17 will be the sunshine of their family. Everything will have its amusing side to them. Gifted with a fertile imagination, they will invent all sorts of amusements. They will have the soul of an artist and will have a passion for colors.

You have a delightful personality and it is not often that you are found gloomy or moody. You are witty and breezy and usually appear as though dull care had passed you by. Your humorous remarks enliven those with whom you are thrown, and there are few who can get ahead of you in repartee. Yours is not a shallow nature, however, and you have sterner moments as well as your merry ones. You have your worries and troubles, but they are not displayed in public. You feel things as deeply as any one, but they never completely "get" you. You understand and practice the arts of compromise and sportsmanship in all things, and you can take a beating with good grace.

You like a change of scene and environment and you would rather be a rolling stone than a fixture. You are adaptable and make friends easily and soon feel at home in a new place. It is not likely that you will ever learn the value of money enough to save in times of plenty. You are too generous for your own practical good. You desire neither riches nor fame, and if you are comfortable you are happy. A happy marriage is augured for you.

Successful people born January 17: Benjamin Franklin, statesman and scientist.

Robert Hare, scientist and chemist, inventor of the calorimotor.

Thaddeus Fairbanks, inventor.

Mary G. Barbosa, colored missionary.

John A. Mitchell, editor and author.

David Lloyd-George, statesman.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Paris, Jan. 16.

I'VE had a great, big suspicion, commonly known as a hunch, that maybe you aren't watching your colors, I mean your moods, I mean, well—on dull, rainy days when you are your least cheerful self, are you getting into a somber, black dress—or do you sense the value of wearing your red dress that particular day? Or a frock that is extraspecially pleasing to you for its jabot or its becomings, one that just cheers you up no end?

Hats can do this, too. The wrong hat can spoil your whole day. And the right one has been known to bring many an adventure into one's life at the crucial moment.

• • • •

This is all old stuff to Dah-rayettes, of course, but it's just as well to remind you.

• • • •

Graceful and gracious and very much the kind of dress one would hope to wear 'neath a tropical moon—the nostalgia of midnight in Panama—New Year's Eve, dancing on the pavilion over the water with Luna trailing her robe of rippling gold lace over the black jet of the restless water. Guess we better just let this dress go its own moonseeking.

• • • •

One look, two looks, three—before I could really be convinced that the collar she wore was made of fine pastel tinted horsehair on net. Several pastel shades, too—one row of the braid, then a bit of the net, then a row of another color, and so on.

And then several ends of the pastel colored braid hung down to form a tie.

Does your boudoir need new tricks? How about sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for an illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make delightful hat-stands out of empty milk bottles—a practical and cunning shoe bag to hang on a nail in the closet, a foot stool out of empty coffe cans and a what-you-may-call-'m to sit on out of larger coffee cans? You'll love them, really.

The Coutouriers.

With Yvonne Davidson joining forces with Ardanse, as we told you yesterday, Louise Selby, for years Yvonne Davidson's directreuse, has courageously opened her own shop and seems to be doing very well. Her name is pronounced as it is spelled, since it is an American name. Louise Selby is an extremely attractive American woman in her very early thirties.

You haven't forgotten, have you, that the weekly Dare fashion letter is in The Sunday Washington Post regularly. Do look for it.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

COMMON SENSE DOCTORING.

DR. C. W. CHAPMAN offers a number of common sense suggestions from the notebook of a physician in large practice. Some of these follow:

Children should not be allowed to eat between meals. This applies especially to chocolates and sweets. Feeding between meals upsets the rest periods to which the digestive apparatus is entitled. It disturbs the appetite for the regular meals and it is at the regular meal that the child is to get its balanced ration of meats, breads, milk, vegetables, fruits, and minerals. In addition all highly seasoned foods make other foods seem tasteless and, therefore, unattractive. A child who has developed a taste for sweets will not care for spinach, vegetables, meats, nor unsweetened breads.

The habitual use of purges and laxatives by adults or children does much harm. A tumblerful of warm water on arising in the morning, repeated at some time before retiring, is generally the only laxative required. This water can be flavored with some fruit juice or with tea. Some people use a warm, normal salt solution instead of plain water. A liberal use of fruits and vegetables is all that some people require. The Arabs, who live on curds, sour milks and dates, get on fairly well in this particular, even though drinking water with them is a luxury on a plane with champagne in some parts.

A coated tongue is likely to mean nothing more than insufficient chewing. A decayed tooth or sore gums might cause the tongue to be coated nearby the sore places. Chewing gum is often a better remedy than a dose of pills.

As a rule tonics are useless. If one needs iron let him get it by eating liver, tripe or heart. If he has other dietary deficiency let it be supplied by foods. Sunlight, air, exercise and diversion about complete the list of approved tonics.

The use of teething powders is not justified. They do no good.

If a child has a fever not otherwise explained, tonsilitis is apt to be the cause. Much of the heart disease of later life is due to overlooked tonsilitis and rheumatism which was called growing pains.

IT IS DANGEROUS THING.

A writes: What kind of a combination is nephritis with high blood pressure and a light form of diabetes? Is it serious?

REPLY.

It is a serious one. It calls for careful control by a physician who has had experience in similar cases. The first need is to decide whether true diabetes is present.

CANNED FOODS ARE SAFE.

A father writes: We eat a great deal of canned foods in our family. Can this cause sickness through ptomaine poisoning?

REPLY.

Canned foods are about the safest foods we have now. This is true of the commercial products. Methods have been greatly improved in the last twenty years.

JELLEFF'S

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

IN a religious mood, Russ Thomas, the young barytone in the box office of the National Theater, was singing "Crossing the Bar." It reminded Stephen Cochran, the house manager, that E. M. Newman begins his first travel talk here this season on next Sunday afternoon. "How could the singing of that song remind you of the Newman travel talks?" the manager was asked. "Merely the association of ideas," he replied, showing an advance notice which read 'In 'Argentina,' E. M. Newman's first travel talk, we are to meet Neptune and witness the comic ceremonies attending the crossing of the equator." So that's how it came about.

ON Monday night in Poli's Theater music lovers will have the rare opportunity of hearing what really amounts to the premiere of Cale Young Rice's and Clarence Loomis' American opera, "Yolanda of Cyprus." Natalie Hall and Charles Kullman will be heard in the principal roles. This is a presentation of the American Opera Company, which promises a brilliant season of grand opera entirely in the English language. There are four operas in the repertoire. Under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene three evening performances and one matinee will be given. "Mme. Butterfly," Puccini's famous idyll of Japan, is the second opera scheduled, "Carmen" and "Faust" the others. This marks the American Opera Company's third annual visit to Washington.

SINCE FRANCOIS VILLON is the central figure in "The Vagabond King," opening at the National Sunday night, no wonder the operetta seems destined to become a permanent work of the theater. It has been through here some four or five times—unless memory is at fault. Dennis King played it twice, and a young fellow named Nelson had a hand in it on two occasions. Now comes a former understudy of the originator of the role with a cast not seen here before. The work has some permanency, otherwise it wouldn't remain a fixture on the stage. Its record is rather impressive: 63 consecutive weeks in the Casino Theater, New York; 32 weeks in Chicago; 74 weeks in London. In September "The Vagabond King" will be seen in Paris, home of the vagabond poet of France. As H. Vere Stacpoole wrote, "Francois Villon was the voice of old Paris, and, of all the voices of her bells and her people, the only living voice to reach us."

• • • •

IN the meantime, business at the two local houses—the National and Poli's—is on the Up and Up. Yesterday's matinee for the Jane Cowl play, "Jenny," came near topping a record. The ladies turned out en masse. More than that, they have practically bought out the theater for Saturday matinee. T. D. Bonneville, the house manager, looks forward to a new house record—set up tomorrow.

• • • •

WORK ON BRIDGE

BRIDGERS.

Important Notice!

Beginning Monday, January 27, Mr. Milton C. Work, the international authority, will conduct in this department for two weeks a great Home Bridge Contest. You will find it of intense interest and wonderfully instructive. It will enable you to test and increase your knowledge of Auction and Contract and contest informally with members of your household and friends. Remember the date—January 27th. Challenge your friends.

For the Player Familiar With Auction But Inexperienced in Contract.

ON previous Fridays we have discussed the strength needed for an original bid of one, two or three No Trumps; today we consider the strength needed to jump partner's No Trump bid when the intervening adversary passes and a suit take-out is not to be considered.

The jumps to be discussed are: From one No Trump to two No Trumps, from one No Trump to three and from two to three. In valuing a hand for No Trumps jumping purposes, we use the same count as for bidding; viz, Ace 4, King 3, Queen 2, Jack 1, and two Tens 1. An additional 1 is allowed for a five-card suit headed by Ace, King or Queen; 2 if it be headed by two of these honors, and 3 if it be headed by all three.

We must bear in mind the count which the original bidder must have had: if he was dealer, his count may be anything from 13 to 18; if second hand, anything from 12 to 18; if third hand, 14 to 18; and if fourth hand, 15 to 18. With 10, any player makes an original bid of two, unless his unstopped suit is weaker than Jack-x; and with 17 or 18 a two-bid is advisable with all four suits stopped. But when a one-bid is being jumped, the possibility that the original bidder had a minimum must be taken up.

be given due consideration. After much experimentation it has been determined that to jump one or two, North or East must have a count of 9 or more, and that South or West may jump with 7 or more. When the count of North or East is 12 or more, or that of South or West is 10 or more, a jump from one to three No Trumps is approved.

Occasionally a jump made with a minimum will get a bad break and lose when facing a minimum original count; but more often the original bidder will be strong enough to bid three and produce a game. The following hands illustrate the strength needed by North or East to jump his partner's uncontested bid of one No Trump to two No Trumps; it will be noticed that both have a count of exactly 9.

Cosmos Club Hears Of Labor Party's Work

Speaking before 150 luncheon guests at the Cosmos Club yesterday, Fenner Brockway, member of Parliament, of Great Britain, declared that while the British Labor party has shown "courage and imagination in its international relations" it has not done so well with regard to the internal problems of the country, including the unemployment situation and mining conditions.

The luncheon was sponsored by a local committee, of which Col John H. Gray is chairman. Following the affair Mr. Brockway visited a number of senators. The visiting Englishman served a term in prison at hard labor for opposing the World War.

Face so Disfigured Hated to Go Out. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble began with a pimple on my face which I picked and in about a week my face was terrible. They kept getting worse each day and were hard, large and red. They festered and itched causing me to scratch them, and when I did they used to burn. My face was so disfigured I hated to go outdoors.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. The first night I tried it, it helped me. I purchased more, and in two or three weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Thelma Donaford, 2501 Tulane Ave., New Orleans, La.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

JURIST IS ACCUSED IN CHILD'S SLAYING

Alibi Will Refute Woman's Claim He Aided Crime, State Asserts.

SECOND KILLING RELATED

Camden, N. J., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Contradictory statements alleged to have been made by Gladys May Parks, read in court today at her trial for murder of two children, brought in the name of Joseph A. Corio, of Atlantic City, as the slayer of one of them, Timothy Rogers, 2 years old.

The identity of Corio was not given in the statements, but after the name was read in court, the office of Prosecutor Clifford A. Baldwin announced that a subpena had been issued for Judge Joseph A. Corio, of the Atlantic County Court, to appear in court here tomorrow as a witness in the trial.

The prosecutor's office said Judge Corio would go on the stand and provide so complete an alibi that the woman's statements, if they refer to him, would fall of their own weight.

Brother-in-Law Is Implicated.

The woman is alleged to have said also that Earl Farr, of Philadelphia, her sister's husband, learned of the death of Timothy and drove her to Absecon, N. J., in an automobile, with the body of the boy in a suitcase and waited while she disposed of it in a thicket. Farr, it is understood, will also take the stand to deny the woman's statements.

Five statements were read. In the first three the woman said that one of the children, Dorothy Rogers, 4 years old, died after a whipping and the other after an accidental fall down stairs.

The children were two of six children of Alan N. Rogers. He had turned them over to Miss Parks, a cousin of his wife, on the representation that she could educate them properly because she had married a wealthy man.

Choked by Corio, Claim.

In the fourth statement the woman, in reply to a question whether Timmy had fallen down stairs and killed himself, said that he had fallen a few days before but that he had been choked by Corio.

Miss Parks said that neither child was dismembered before she disposed of them.

The prosecution contends that when the skeletons were found in November the bones were so separated that it indicated dismemberment.

Walpole Is Heard By Big Audience

Noted Novelist Describes How Writers Work Out Novels.

Before a crowd that overflowed the Central High School auditorium, Hugh Walpole, eminent English novelist, last night took a novelist apart and showed his audience how he works. The novelist in this instance was Mr. Walpole.

Taking an idea suggested by a listener, he developed it into at least the beginning of a novel, explaining the mental processes of the author as he went along. He also made some slight contrasts between the attitude of the Victorian and the modern writers of fiction.

The lecture was presented by the Community Institute. Its title was "The Art and the Immorality of the Novel."

World Fair Invitations Sent to Other Nations

WOMEN PUSH PLANS FOR CATHEDRAL AID

Pershing and Pepper Speak at Luncheon Meeting of Committee.

CONFIDENCE IS VOICED

Preliminary steps toward the formation of a woman's committee to cooperate with other lay groups now functioning in behalf of Washington Cathedral were taken at a luncheon meeting given at the residence of Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis when Gen. John J. Pershing, chairman of the national committee for Washington Cathedral, and former United States Senator George Wharton Pepper were the speakers.

The women's committee will endeavor to awaken interest in Washington Cathedral, and particularly in completion of the north and south transepts before the Washington bicentennial religious service, February 22, 1932, among individuals and groups not closely identified at present with the Mount St. Alban undertaking. Both Gen. Pershing and Mr. Pepper expressed confidence that religiously minded persons throughout the Nation would make possible the completion of the transepts in time for the Washington service.

It was stated that more than 60,000 persons contributed through various channels to the achievement of Washington Cathedral during the twelve months of 1929. Since the inauguration of the present cathedral building effort in 1927 more than $4,000,000 has been received from individual men, women and children in every State, as well as from churches, Sunday schools, patriotic bodies and fraternal organizations.

During 1929 there was remarkable construction advance on Washington Cathedral, according to statistics given to the meeting yesterday. Among the items of constructions were the building of the crypt of the Nave with its long vaulted passageways; the completion of the choir, extending the roof line of the cathedral some 115 feet westward; the construction of the children's chapel and the Pilgrims' steps and the completion of the structural work on the choir chapels, the erection of a new building for St. Alban's, the National Cathedral School for Boys and the completion of the beautiful collegiate Gothic structure now occupied by the College of Preachers.

More than 250,000 cubic feet of stone will be required for the north and south transepts, the present construction objective. Work has already been started on the north transept, the first stone being placed during October.

Mr. Pepper stated his conviction that if the transepts could be completed by 1932 the remainder of the cathedral would practically build itself through gifts and bequests as a result of the momentum secured.

Jewish Women Reelect Mrs. Friend President

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Mrs. Joseph E. Friend, of New Orleans, today was reelected president of the National Council of Jewish Women at the organization's twelfth triennial convention here.

Other officers selected included Mrs. Alvin Bauman, St. Louis, first vice president; Mrs. Arthur Brin, Minneapolis, second vice president; Mrs. S. M. Cone, Baltimore, third vice president; Mrs. E. N. Eisenmann, New Orleans, treasurer, and Mrs. I. K. Praeger, Boston, secretary.

Flying Policeman Assists In Capture of Bank Bandits

Two of Quartet Who Robbed New Orleans Institution of $10,000 Taken in Swamp by Foot Squad Directed From Armed Airplane.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—With a policeman armed with a machine gun directing the search from an airplane, two of four bank bandits were captured today in a swamp 12 miles below New Orleans two hours after they had held up and robbed the Algiers Branch of the Canal Bank & Trust Co. of $10,000.

The other two bandits were still at liberty despite the search of 40 heavily armed policemen and the airplane observer soaring overhead. It was believed they had fled through the thick underbrush down the banks of the Mississippi River.

Just before 2 o'clock three well-dressed men entered the bank, crowded with railroad workers getting their pay checks cashed, and at the point of pistols forced employes and customers to stretch out in a row on the bank's floor face downward. One bandit went into the cages and took what money was in sight.

The bandits rushed out of the bank door, leaped into an automobile driven by a companion, and they sped off down the River Road.

Police Superintendent Theodore Ray and 40 policemen followed in hot pursuit that ended 12 miles down the river, when the bandit's car lost a front tire and was abandoned.

Policeman Bernhardt was out in Algiers looking for his own automobile that had been stolen. He saw his car bearing down upon him and ordered the driver to stop, at the same time emptying his pistol into the machine. A short distance further the men leaped from the car and ran into the bushes at the side of the road. The officer ran into the woods and captured two of the men.

Superintendent Ray and his army of policemen searched until dark but were unable to locate the other two. One of the missing bandits apparently was wounded by the officer's fire as the back of the car was covered with blood.

The arrested bandits gave their names as John Ponscieu, 25, and Peter Semone, 21, both of New Orleans. They refused to give the names of their companions.

The same bank was held up on November 27 by three bandits who took $15,000. They were captured and are now serving penitentiary sentences.

Approximately $1,000 of the money was recovered from Ponscieu and Semone. The remaining $9,000 is believed cached in the swamps below the city.

Senate to Ask Hoover To Waive Precedent

(Associated Press.)

The Senate finance committee yesterday approved a Senate resolution asking the President to waive a ruling forbidding the appointment of members of the Internal Revenue Bureau to the Board of Tax Appeals in order that the appointment of Miss Annabelle Matthews, of Gainesville, Ga., to the board might be approved.

Another meeting of the committee was called to consider the qualifications of Miss Matthews for the Board of Tax Appeals. Her nomination was once confirmed by the Senate, but it was recalled upon demand of Senator Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, who called attention to the fact that Miss Matthews served in the Internal Revenue Bureau and the Senate previously had gone on record against appointees from that service to the Board of Tax Appeals.

Damage Suit of $10,000 Is Filed Against Dentist

Alleging that William Francis Hardy had died as a result of an overdose of anesthesia said to have been administered by Dr. John K. Freiot, dental surgeon, of 407 Seventh street northwest, Martha R. Hardy, administratrix of the estate, filed suit in District Supreme Court yesterday, seeking to recover $10,000 damages.

The plaintiff tells the court that on September 29 last, Mr. Hardy suffered from toothache and that after he had gone to the dentist he was advised that it was necessary to extract several teeth. Upon the injection of the fourth hypodermic in his jaws, it is alleged that he swooned and that due to failure of the dentist and his assistants to administer restoratives, call an ambulance or summon medical aid, he died. Attorneys Albert A. Stern and Albert Lyman appear on behalf of the plaintiff.

New Veterans' Job Urged by Wilbur

Man to Handle U. S. Business With Former Soldiers Is Requested.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Wilbur yesterday recommended legislation to create an assistant secretary for veterans' affairs under an executive department to handle all governmental agencies dealing with war veterans.

In a report to the House expenditures committee, which is considering the Williamson bill to place the agencies under the direction of the Veterans' Bureau, Secretary Wilbur said the bureau was too large not to be directly under a member of the Cabinet.

The consolidation plan was proposed by President Hoover in his first annual message to Congress. The Williamson bill, sponsored by the chairman of the expenditures committee, was approved by Director Frank T. Hines, of the Veterans' Bureau; by the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans.

Secretary Wilbur explained in his report that his proposal was based on a study conducted by the Chief Executive's fact-finding commission on veterans' agencies, headed by himself.

20,000 Mexicans Greet Ortiz Rubio on Return

Nogales, Ariz., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Pascual Rubio, President-elect of Mexico, ended his tour of the United States here this afternoon. Crossing the international border into Mexico, he was greeted by 20,000 countrymen in Nogales, Sonora.

The special train of President Rubio was escorted across the border by the Second Battalion of the Twenty-fifth United States Infantry, where the Sixteenth Battalion of the Mexican army met the distinguished Mexican. Senor Ortiz Rubio expressed his gratitude at the friendly reception and told his countrymen he was overjoyed to be among them again.

Wail of Saxophones Causes Wife to Leave

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Four wailing saxophones in the hands and mouths of persons "afflicted with notions that some day they might be musicians," drove Mrs. Augusta Rebitske, 60, from home, she testified in her divorce suit here today.

Judge Guy A. Miller granted her a decree after hearing her story of the musical aspirations of her two stepsons, a stepdaughter and a step-granddaughter. Among other acts of cruelty on the part of the husband, John Rebitske, was his failure to stop the wails of the four instruments, Mrs. Rebitske said.

Citizen Shot to Death In Pursuit of Robber

Belleville, N. J., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—One man of a band of citizens who took up pursuit of a gunman after the robbery of a chain grocery store was killed today and another was wounded by the fleeing man's bullets, Edward W. Maurer, 21, was killed and Paul Bohrer, 40, wounded.

The killer was captured less than a block from the point where Maurer and Bohrer fell. He said he was William Gimble, 20, of this town. Maurer and Bohrer, with about a dozen other pedestrians, took up the chase as the robber was seen running from the store pursued by the shouting manager. The group was gaining rapidly on the robber, when he turned suddenly and fired point blank at his pursuers.

Free Trips Denied In Taylor Mystery

Hundreds Write to Los Angeles, Telling of Murder Clew.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—No free rides to California await the hundreds of persons who have written to Los Angeles authorities professing to have information that would aid in solving the mysterious slaying of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, in 1922. In making this announcement today, Eddie King, investigator in the district attorney's office, said:

"It's a remarkable thing how many persons in the United States have vital information concerning that murder. I don't understand how they've kept their secrets locked up their breasts for eight years.

"All they need is an opportunity to come to Los Angeles, and, according to their letters, the mystery would be solved. I might add, we're expected to pay the freight here and home again."

ACTIVE DAY MARKED BY STOCKS' DECLINE

Utility Sales Feature as Bears Cause Radio Shares to Drop.

FOREIGN ISSUES STEADY

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The struggle for control of the price trend on the stock market was intensified today, and sales of more than 3,000,000 shares were piled up for the first time this year. Stocks moved irregularly higher during the early hours of the session, but sold off in the last hour, and the majority of the more active shares closed off 1 to 4 points, a reversal of yesterday's movement.

Bears shifted their point of attack from Montgomery-Ward to Radio, depressing this erstwhile bull vehicle 3½ points to 38. Coppers, motors and oils also sagged, in response to rather unfavorable trade reports. The utilities, however, were in urgent demand during the major part of the day, and while closing substantially below the day's best levels, generally ended the session moderately higher. Several important industrials were bid substantially higher, only to lose their gains before the close.

Hopes of a lower rediscount rate were dashed for another week. The Bank of England retained its 5 per cent rate, and therefore the New York Reserve Bank naturally made no further reduction in its rate of 4½ per cent. The weekly statements of central banks both here and abroad, however, showed considerable improvement. For the first time in months, the Bank of England's gold reserve was above the minimum set by the Cunliffe Commission, and advices from London indicated that a lower rate was only a matter of weeks. The Federal Reserve system's condition statement disclosed a marked reduction in rediscounting with the passing of the year-end demands, lifting its reserve ratio to 75.4 per cent, compared to 67 a year ago.

Money Rates Continue Easy.

Money rates continued fairly easy. Call loans renewed at 4½ per cent and again dropped to 4. Time money was dull, but continued to show an easier tone. Improvement in credit conditions is reflected by the fact that bond offerings this week are in excess of $300,000,000, the largest for any peacetime week. Brokers' loans showed a nominal increase for the week of $13,000,000. The large bond offerings, however, will tend to jack up the total during the next two weeks.

The day's business news included further crude oil price cuts, believed to reflect efforts to force curtailment of production; a sharp decline in copper production during December, despite the fact that stocks of the metal on hand gained sharply, and the General Motors annual report on sales to dealers and dealers' sales to users. Only a slight increase in General Motors sales to users was shown, and an accumulation of approximately 39,000 cars in dealers' hands was indicated.

In the utilities United Corporation, Commonwealth & Southern and United Gas Improvement, the Morgan-Bonbright group, were traded in huge volume, accounting for about 10 per cent of the day's trading. United Corporation sold up about a point in response to its favorable annual report, but closed unchanged. Commonwealth & Southern and United Gas Improvement closed about a point higher. Consolidated Gas made a similar gain in heavy trading, in response to the first official intimation of a hookup with Niagara Hudson Power. Fox Film "A" was active and strong on announcement of the plan to float an issue of short-term notes to meet pressing obligations, but reacted in the late trading.

Radio Drive Features.

The drive on the radio shares was coupled with a report that General Electric and Westinghouse Electric will market radio sets. This need not adversely affect Radio Corporation, however, as it has a half interest in R. C. A. Victor, which is expected to manufacture the sets. Crosley Radio and Zenith fell to new lows. General Electric, on the other hand, rose about 5 points but closed up only 1. A few of the more closely held stocks, such as International Silver, National Lead and Peoples Gas closed about 7 to 8 points higher.

American Tobacco, Anaconda, J. I. Case, Cerro de Pasco, Columbia Graphophone, Du Pont, General American Tank, Magma Copper, Standard of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, and U. S. Steel lost about 2 to 4 points. Auburn Auto dropped 7 and Federal Light 9. Several of the motors sagged about a point, General Motors closing off 1⅝.

In the commodity markets wheat futures again lost about 1½ cents, disturbed by reports of large Argentine shipments. Corn lost nearly as much, and cotton closed barely steady.

Foreign exchanges were largely steady. Sterling cables were 1-16 higher at $4.87 15-16, in response to the unchanged discount rate. Franc cables were firm at 3.93 cents.

FOREIGN BONDS RISE IN ACTIVE TURNOVER

Numerous European Issues Surpass Their Peaks of Last Year.

UTILITIES PROVE STEADY

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Bonds held firm today in a market that was busy only in spots.

A continuation of Wedpesday's heaviness would not have been surprising in view of the fact that all peace-time records for new bond offerings are being broken this week, but the list gave a good account of itself. Closing prices were generally the highest of the day, although net changes held to the smaller fractions.

The strongest point was the foreign division, where numerous issues surpassed or equalled their highs for the past year. French governments turned over in large amounts, the 7½s touching 120 and the 7s making 114¼. Belgian stabilization 7s, Greek government 7s, Japanese 6½s, several French municipals, Norway 5s and Rotterdam 6s were others exceeding their 1929 peaks. German 7s failed to attract attention and the day's sales involved only $2,000 principal amount, with the quotation holding unchanged at 107.

Time Money Easier.

Time money eased a little, which was a favorable factor, but the ability of the list to hold up under the burden of more than $300,000,000 in new bonds placed so far this week became quickly apparent in the early trading and sentiment improved as the session progressed.

A few bonds were very active. The new American Telephone 5s changed hands to the extent of nearly $500,000 for a tiny net loss. The Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, another newcomer trading on a when-issued basis, squeezed past yesterday's offering price of 94, but returned to the latter figure, showing a good turnover. Chicago & Northwestern convertible 4½s met some selling in a lively market and dropped to 99¼, a low for this recently listed bond. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s showed an exceptionally large volume, closing without net change at 102.

Rails edged up and down within narrow limits. Chesapeake & Ohio 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Missouri-Kansas-Texas prior lien 6s, New York Central 3½s, Pennsylvania general 4½s and Southern Railway general 4s eased and a few prime issues, including Union Pacific 5s, Pennsylvania 5s and Lehigh Valley of Pennsylvania 4½s, lost as much as a point on inconsequential transactions. There was compensating improvement in Southern Pacific 4s, Western Maryland 4s, Erie convertible 4s series A, Big Four 5s and Nickel Plate 5½s series B.

Industrials Are Steady.

Industrials and utilities steadied noticeably. Fisk Rubber 8s recovered yesterday's decline, while International Cement 5s, Liggett & Myers 5s, Utah Power & Light 5s and New York Edison 5s rose 1 to 1½ points.

Aside from a turnover of nearly $750,000 in American Telephone 4½s, there was little to note in the convertibles, and net fluctuations were fractional.

United States Governments had another dull day, clinging to Wednesday's final quotations.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Apprehension that Canadian wheat is being sold for export ahead of United States wheat received much blame for late downturns in wheat prices here today.

Extreme weakness of the Winnipeg wheat market precipitated a flood of selling here toward the last, with consequent breaks in prices dislodging many standing orders to get future delivery holdings go at various fixed limits so as to put a stop to losses. Export purchases of North American wheat today were larger than of late, aggregating 1,000,000 bushels, but most of the total consisted of wheat grown in Canada.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were shaded 1c to 1¼c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1¼c to 1¾c down, oats ½c to ¾c off and provisions varying from 5@7c decline to a rise of 25c.

Crashing down of wheat values today in the final hour of trading came after the market here had shown a noticeable upward trend during the greater part of the preceding time. The advances were accompanied by reports that Brazil was asking for offers of wheat from North America, and that an evident reason was the poor quality of the new wheat crop in Argentina, where Brazil ordinarily obtains wheat supplies, but where this season it is officially estimated that 10,000,000 bushels is unmerchantable. Besides, Argentine exports this week showed a decided falling off in volume, both as compared with the week previous and a year ago.

Lowest prices of the day in the Chicago wheat market prevailed at the finish, contrasting with the fact that the Liverpool close today showed a penny to 1¾ pence gain, an upturn which had not generally been looked for by traders in Chicago. The late downward sweep of the market here was also in the face of the fact that the Farmers National Grain Corporation had given orders for purchase of durum wheat in domestic markets Northwest.

Another stimulating influence, the effect of which, however, proved to be only transient, was an estimate from a leading authority here that, although United States wheat stocks in sight are 40,000,000 bushels more than was the case last year, the invisible supply at present is 30,000,000 bushels less than the corresponding total a year ago.

Corn and oats plunged downgrade, acting in sympathy with wheat market weakness. Besides, arrivals of corn in Chicago today showed enlargement, and weather conditions were of a character to promote corn movement.

Provisions averaged higher, with special attention being given to reports showing that, notwithstanding this is the height of the winter packing season, an increase of only 800,000 pounds in stocks of lard has taken place during the last two weeks, compared with 16,000,000 pounds increase a year ago.

Immediately following the stockholders meeting there was a meeting of the board of directors at which the following officers were appointed for the ensuing year: A. S. Gardiner, president; Harry R. Carroll, vice president; William Neuland, vice president; and Ivan K. Strasburger, secretary-treasurer.

"All things come round to him who will but wait," was the advice of Karl W. Corby, partner in the local brokerage firm of W. B. Hibbs & Co., speaking last night in Philadelphia, before the Wharton Alumni Institute of Business, under the auspices of Wharton School Alumni Society, University of Pennsylvania.

Talking on "Seeking the Truth in Securities," Mr. Corby reminded his audience that success is gained only through intelligent effort, and to the investor study and preparation are essential to an intelligent correlation of facts.

Stresses Need of Truth.

"Let us remember that we can't play every instrument," he continued. "This being true, we must recognize, when studying securities, that we should not plunge headlong into a movement of the masses, which may sometimes be an hysterical act, without full knowledge of values or economic conditions underlying them. Securities should be selected after a thorough investigation is made to obtain the truth regarding them.

"In the past few years the public has participated to a greater extent than ever before in the securities market. By this interest greater distribution of assets occurred. Corporations have increased their capital issues because of larger volume of business, or by reason of mergers or consolidations. These issues took various forms—bonds of many kinds, preferred and common stocks. There were many readjustments of capital. Frequently bonds and preferred stock were retired leaving the common stock as the only capital issue.

"This, in itself, is very confusing and creates a perplexing problem at the outset in the mind of the investor. It brings before him the necessity of caution and actually makes it imperative that the thinking investor investigate the financial structure of the corporation in which investment is contemplated.

Says Credit Structure Broadened.

"Hand in hand with these changes has come the broadening of the credit structure. The calling for more credit in the securities market brought into greater activity the function of the Federal Reserve. To the thinking investor these problems are linked with further considerations which must be given to the company and industry that he is considering—namely, the type of industry, whether it is one of necessity or luxury, whether it is wholesale or retail, whether it is a manufacturer or distributor, its geographical location, its competition, either domestic or foreign, or both, and to what degree; the character of management, whether the executives are men of long experience and training within the industry, their general attitude of progressiveness in developing the progress of their company and their conservatism in the manner of dividend distribution. These fundamental elements must be clearly defined in the investor's mind that he may truthfully know the safety of the company and its reflection into the true value of its securities.

"Another very important factor facing the investor is the time element. It is quite necessary that he acquaint himself with the purchasing, distributing and manufacturing conditions prevailing throughout the country. What is the trend of production? Manufacturers, distributors and retailers may be reducing or adding to their inventories. Unemployment may be in general on the increase or the decrease, thereby either reducing or increasing the purchasing power of the people. Luxuries may be eliminated from the otherwise full purchasing list, or they may be coming into their own."

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The line of least resistance in today's Curb Market was downward, although losses in many of the active issues were held to a point or less. Trading was moderately heavy in volume, the day's sales falling just short of 900,000 shares.

Whereas most of the oil shares were heavy in reflection of an extension of recent crude-oil price cuts, the pipe-line issues showed conspicuous strength. Cumberland Pipe Line advanced 4 points, Missouri-Kansas 3⅜, Eureka 3, Illinois 2, and Buckeye ⅞. Humble Oil and Standard Oil of Ohio each dropped 3 points, Gulf Oil 2¼, and Indian Territory, Standard Oil of Kansas and a few others yielded a point or so.

Utilities generally failed to maintain their early gains, although New England Telephone jumped 5 points on a few odd-lot sales, and Allied Power & Light moved up 2. Electric Bond & Share and Cities Service showed slight recessions, while American Superpower warrants, United Gas, United Light & Power and Niagara & Hudson Power recorded small net gains.

Hoover Steel Ball broke 8½ points to a new record low at 12½. Several of the aviation stocks lost a point or so. Radio shares apparently were not affected by the weakness of that group on the "Big Board," Dubilier and De Forest improving fractionally. Most of the leading investment trust and trading corporation shares showed only narrow fractional changes. One lot of ten shares of Safeway Stores second warrants changed hands at 210, a jump of 50 points above the previous sale.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

In making inquiries, address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

International Mercantile Marine.

T. C.—I own 75 shares of the common stock of the International Mercantile Marine Co. Some months ago, one new share of capital stock was offered for every five shares of common held. Would you turn in the old common for the new shares?

Answer—It would appear advisable to turn in the old common for the new capital stock. No dividends are being paid on the new stock, but none has been paid on the common you now hold. Under the recapitalization plan, the authorized 600,000 shares of preferred and 600,000 shares of common stock, both $100 par, were changed into 720,000 shares of new no par capital shares, all one class. The purpose of this plan was to eliminate the capital impairment (deficit) and also the accumulated dividends on the preferred stock.

Remington Arms.

W. C.—I own some of the shares of the Remington Arms Co. I notice that an increase has been announced in ammunition prices. Through your valuable column, can you give me some idea of what this increase will mean measured in earnings for the Remington common stock?

Answer—Remington Arms Co., Inc., recently announced an increase of 12½ % in the manufacturers price on ammunition, the company's basic product. Similar increases have been ordered by Winchester Repeating Arms Co., U. S. Cartridge Co., Western Cartridge Co. and others. This increase, it is officially estimated, will stimulate earnings by more than $1,000,000 in 1930 which will mean nearly $2 per share increase in expected earnings of the company's stock or about double the earnings for company for 1929. This condition is highly constructive and under the circumstances Remington Arms common stock should be in favorable position for long-term holding.

Selberling, Bullard.

I. H.—I own Selberling Rubber and Bullard Co. To recoup my losses, I wish to buy more stock in the company which you think would be the better buy.

Answer—Selberling Rubber is one of the smaller units in the tire industry, and as such, has had difficult going in the last year. The company has lost ground in a discouraging manner and do not foresee sufficiently healthy conditions in the tire industry for 1930 to indicate any good cheer for small units such as Selberling.

The Bullard Co. is a leading producer of specifically designed machines and tools for large manufacturers. The company is in a strong financial position and favored with capable management. Dividends are at the rate of $1.60 per year and an extra dividend of 40 cents was paid August 15, 1929. Dividend requirements are amply covered by present earnings. For long term holding, the issue should be well regarded.

Waldorf Stores, Bulova.

T. P. L.—Will you give me what information you can through your Advice to Investors column of Waldorf Stores and the Bulova Watch Co.? Would you consider an investment in the common stocks of these companies attractive?

Answer—Waldorf Stores, Inc., owns a leading chain restaurant system operating 138 restaurants in 41 cities. Earnings for the first eleven months of 1929 were equivalent to $2.20 per common share against $2.08 per share for the entire previous year. Sales and earnings appear firmly established at record levels. Comparison with other chain restaurant systems discloses a conservative price level for the common stock. The present dividend is at the rate of $1.50 annually, which is amply covered by present earnings.

Bulova Watch Co. is one of the world's largest manufacturers of strap and wrist watches with jeweled movements. The progress of the company in the last three years has been particularly impressive and it has gone ahead considerably faster than the industry as a whole. Earnings are estimated at $5 per common share for the year 1929. The issue is on a $3 annual dividend basis. Both Waldorf and Bulova are paying attractive dividends at current market prices and are in strong financial position. Therefore, both issues, as speculative investments, should be well regarded for long term holding.

Pan American and Transport.

K. T.—What are the earnings of Pan American and Transport? Is this company a large factor in the oil industry?

Answer—Pan American, it is estimated, earned $3.50 per share, after all charges, for the year 1929. The delay in getting its new refinery at Aruba completed and in operation, and recessions in crude oil prices, account for the downward revision of estimated earnings. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana now holds approximately 80 per cent of Pan American stock in connection with its exchange offer. No dividends have been paid on the stock since the last quarter of 1927, the last previous distribution being in cash and stock.

The outlook appears good as the company should benefit from expanding refining facilities, increased proportionate output of gasoline and operating economies. The stock, however, must be regarded as a speculation since no dividend disbursements are being made at the present time.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber.

G. R. D.—What is your opinion of Goodyear Tire and Rubber? What information can you give me regarding earnings of this company

Answer—The last quarter of 1929 was an unsatisfactory one for the company and other tire concerns, and it is thought that nothing was earned on Goodyear common during the three months. Those in close touch with the company's affairs, however, estimate earnings for the full year 1929 at $12 a share on the junior issue, as compared with $5 for the preceding 12 months.

For the first quarter of 1930, earnings are expected to show a falling off when compared with the same time in 1929. Profits for last year, however, should be more than double the dividend requirements, as the stock pays $5 annually. While the immediate outlook appears a little uncertain, nevertheless, Goodyear is capably managed and is one of the big factors in the tire business, being the largest rubber manufacturer in the world, with plants in this country and abroad. Goodyear is in a strong position, with the net working capital as of June 30, last, of $126,803,300.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—An early advance in the cotton market which appeared to be promoted by the talk of a campaign for reduced acreage in the South and reports of rains as a better cloth demand, were followed by declines under liquidation combined with Southern and local selling. The latter may have been influenced by weakness in other commodities, including wheat and corn. Western selling was reported on the decline which carried March contracts off from 17.43 to 17.22. They closed at 17.28 with the general market closing steady at net declines of 2 to 3 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 5 points on the rather better tone of reports from the cotton goods markets. A report that the Central Cotton Cooperative Association was starting a campaign for a reduction in cotton acreage, and larger spot sales in Liverpool. There was a little Southern selling and profit taking, but it was readily absorbed around the initial price and the market worked higher before the end of the morning. January sold up to 17.30, May to 17.64 and July to 17.79, making net advances of 6 to 10 points, but as these figures the demand appeared to be supplied and the market weakened during the afternoon.

The weakness was accompanied by some Western selling of cotton, which was also believed to be for Wall street and trade account. May declined to 17.42 and July to 17.58 making net losses of about 12 to 15 points on active positions. The close was several points up from the lowest on covering. January was very quiet and was quoted nominal at 17.13 at the close.

Cable advices from Liverpool reported further cloth sales for India and said that results of the auction sales in Shanghai were more encouraging. Reports from the domestic goods market said there had been a fair business in some quarters and that some broadening of business was soon expected owing to a large attendance of buyers in various sections of the market. Liverpool cables said that hedging and liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling in that market.

Exports today 24,073, making 4,648,889 so far this season. Port receipts, 14,941. United States port stocks, 2,545,489.

BOLSTERED WHITE SOX HAVE HIGH HOPES FOR 1930

C. U. Defeated By Duquesne Five, 33-26

Cardinal Rally Gains Futile Lead in Second Half.

Invaders Depend on "Freezing" Ball as Game Ends.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER.

HISTORY repeated itself. And if you don't believe it, ask any local basket ball fan who journeyed out to Catholic University last night to see a Duquesne Basket Ball Team ring up its second triumph in as many nights over a local foe by downing the Cardinals, 33-26.

If the Duquesne Five had planned before time to duplicate its victory of the night before over American University play by play it could hardly have done a better job. The game was almost an exact reproduction of the game on Wednesday evening, with one exception—C. U. passed the visitors once, something A. U. could not do.

Starting out in an auspicious manner during the first half, the Pennsylvania quintet ran up an early lead on the Cardinals and were leading at half time, 22-11, a safe margin, just as it had been at intermission at the A. U. gym. And just as the second half had opened on Wednesday evening, so did the second twenty minutes of play begin last night.

Coming back with a rush, the Cardinals duplicated A. U.'s scoring spree of the night before, chalking up 18 points while holding their foes to 2 puny points—both registered from the foul line.

C. U. Five Takes 2-Point Lead.

Here the story differs. To the wild acclamation of Cardinal supporters, C. U. went into a 2-point lead when Papalia followed an unsuccessful foul shot to give the home team a 26-24 advantage. But at this point, the tale reverted to the reproduction. The Cardinals failed to score again during the remainder of the evening and the Brookland crowd saw the visitors again assume the upper hand when Vernon scored in front of the basket to give his team the lead once more, 27-26. And finishing precisely in the same style which marked its debut in the city, the Duquesne Five registered three more times for its 7-point advantage which it held at the final whistle.

The last four minutes of the game, by the way, produced some of the best basketball of th enight. Exhibiting perfect "freezing" tactics, the Duquesne lads cleverly prevented the desperate C. U. tossers from even getting their hands on the ball, passing up and down the court, with skill and speed which baffled the efforts of the Cardinal performers who madly strove to get possession of the ball. It revealed a sure-fire method of keeping your opponent scoreless.

Parry Plays Good Basket Ball.

Although Stephens had been the mainstay of the visiting five against the Methodists, his place was taken by one Bill Parry, another guard, who showed an accurate eye all during the evening, especially from the foul line. Eight out of nine times did this boy shove the ball through the net from the 15-foot mark while scoring three times from the floor.

Little Joe Walsh, captain of the Brooklanders, did his part in keeping the home gang in the running with twelve points, equally divided between field and foul shots. However, all of the Cardinals took a hand in overcoming that 22-11 advantage to tie the score in the second half.

U. S. Pensions Bob Martin, Disabled in Service Bouts

BOB MARTIN, heavyweight champion of the A. E. F., who will draw $100 a month pension as a result of injuries suffered in his 60 service fights.

Man Who Lost Only to Tunney in A.E.F. Has Brain Tumor.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Fighting Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the American Expeditionary Forces in which Gene Tunney fought in France during the World War, has been judged permanently disabled by punishment absorbed in 60 fights in the service. As a result, the United States Veterans' Bureau has awarded him compensation of $100 a month for the remainder of his life.

Martin, who was considered a better fistic prospect than Tunney at the close of the war, contended that a traumatic brain tumor from which he has suffered in recent years was caused by blows received while winning 54 service bouts by knockouts, four by decision, drawing once and losing only one match—to Tunney. He was granted a pension of $20 a month two years ago by Congress. This he has waived in view of the larger grant.

Martin fought 32 bouts in qualifying for the A. E. F. title, winning 28 by knockouts and four by decisions. In the final match with Fay Kiser, for the championship, at the Cirque de Paris, April 26, 1919, Capt. C. M. Jones, State service officer for West Virginia, reported to the compensation board:

"This was an especially hard fight and the claimant's opponent rendered blow after blow on the claimant's head. It seems to me that it is reasonable to presume that this fight was the beginning of the claimant's disability."

After the war, Martin, who lives at Nitro, W. Va., fought professionally, but was unable to keep the pace he set in the Army. He quit the ring several years ago.

31-30 BATTLE ANNEXED BY G. W. FIVE

Jeweller's Field Goal Defeats Randolph-Macon Team.

ASHLAND, Va., Jan. 16.—George Washington University opened its two-day invasion of the Old Dominion with a smashing 31-to-30 victory over Randloph-Macon College here tonight. The game was tensely fought from the opening and resulted in a real thriller. Not until the referee's valedictory note sounded was either quintet assured of the verdict. It was by far the most exciting contest played by the Jackets on their home court in several years.

A flash of speed sent Randolph-Macon to the front at half time, protecting a 16-15 lead. It was in the closing session, especially in the last few minutes of play that the genuine thrills of the game were crowded. With a little over a minute to go, "Doggie" Douthat, Jacket guard, shot the home forces ahead by ringing a field goal and following with two free throws. With the score 30 to 28, George Washington staged its Garrison finish. The same Douthat who almost proved a hero, was banished from the game for committing his fourth personal foul.

Harris Makes Good On Foul.

Harris, visiting forward, made good a foul shot and just before the final gun barked Jeweller, tall Hatchetite center, dropped in a field goal to decide the issue. Harris and Jeweller played outstanding basket ball for George Washington, ably aided by Fine, forward.

Capt. Bill King of the locals was so closely guarded that he failed to tally a single field goal, although he passed with uncanny accuracy to his mate, Woodson, whose scoring efforts for the night netted him 16 points.

George Washington will play Medical College of Virginia in Richmond tomorrow night.

Jack Delaney's Career Ended by Arm Injury

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Jack Delaney, retired light-heavyweight champion of the world, has fought his last fight.

Dr. George W. Hawley, bone specialist, wrote "finis" to Delaney's ring career today when he declared that an injury to the right arm which has bothered the former champion for two years threatened to cripple the arm permanently unless Delaney abandoned boxing. Delaney, with tears in his eyes, heard the doctor's dictum after an X-ray examination.

Delaney retired from the light-heavyweight title to enter heavyweight ranks. He was planning a comeback campaign. His first bout was to have been against Tom Kirby, of Boston, at the Providence arena on January 24.

Navy Among 11 Maryland Grid Foes

5 State, 5 Conference Games Listed on 1930 Schedule.

Washington and Lee Replaces South Carolina Eleven.

THE SCHEDULE.

September 28—Washington College, at College Park.
October 4—Yale, at New Haven.
October 11—North Carolina, at Chapel Hill, N. C.
October 18—St. John's, at College Park.
October 25—Virginia Military Institute, at Richmond.
November 1—Virginia, at Charlottesville, Va.
November 8—Washington and Lee, at College Park.
November 15—Virginia Polytechnic Institute, at Norfolk.
November 22—Navy, at Annapolis.
November 28 (Thanksgiving Day)—Johns Hopkins, at Baltimore.
December 6—Western Maryland, at Baltimore.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY and the Naval Academy will meet in football on November 22 as a result of readjustment of the Navy schedule, which last week revealed a conflict in dates with the College Park institution.

This was announced yesterday by Maryland in the latter's release of its 1930 schedule, which consists of eleven games, five of which are with Southern Conference schools and a like numer with State institutions. The eleventh is scheduled with Yale.

Developments earlier in the week had threatened the cancellation of the Maryland-Navy game next fall owing to the fact that Navy had assigned West Virginia Wesleyan the November 22 game which Maryland understood was to be its date on the Midshipmen's schedule. Navy had left open November 1 for the Maryland game, but Maryland already had contracted to play Virginia on that date. Navy, however, prevailed upon West Virginia Wesleyan to accept the November 1 date in order that the Old Liners might be taken on.

The Maryland-Navy game will be the forerunner of the games which will be played in 1931 and 1932, one of which will be staged in Baltimore.

Washington and Lee Rescheduled.

Washington and Lee returns to the Terrapin schedule and will be met in the homecoming feature on November 8 at College Park. The Generals and Terrapins did not meet last season but had clashed for several years in succession prior to 1929. The Washington and Lee contest was arranged instead of another game with South Carolina.

St. John's, of Annapolis, will be played on October 18, this game replacing that with Gallaudet last fall.

Besides Navy and St. John's, other Maryland State opponents listed are Washington College, which will be met in the opening game on September 27; Johns Hopkins and Western Maryland. The last two mentioned will be played in the Baltimore Stadium.

Hazel Resigns Position As Misssisippi Coach

University, Miss., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Homer Hazel's resignation as athletic director and head football and basket ball coach at the University of Mississippi was accepted today by Chancellor Alfred Hume. The chancellor did not comment on the resignation.

Coach Hazel said his resignation "was prompted solely because of my loyalty to the students and alumni and the University of Mississippi and my unwillingness to afford in any way a cause for misunderstanding or friction at Ole Miss."

Hazel will continue to coach the 1930 basket ball team. His resignation will take effect September 1, 1930.

No announcement was made regarding the appointment of a new coach. Hazel came here five years ago from Rutgers.

Simmons' Hits, Bishop's Walks, Sewell's Four Strikeouts Feature 1929 Averages

Goslin Drives in Most Runs for Nats; West Easiest to Fan.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WHILE a ball player's value to a team is largely based upon the size of his batting average, it's the hit in the pinch that counts as much as many safties with nobody on the sacks. This item is covered in the final batch of official American League figures covering the 1929 season and shows that Al Simmons, Philadelphia Athletics' outfielder, led the pack. He drove home 157 of the 901 runs scored by the world's champions, with Babe Ruth second. The home-run king, playing in eight less games than did Simmons, was responsible for 154 Yankees tallying.

Despite his lowly hitting average, Leon "Goose" Goslin was high gun for the Nationals, his mark being 91, 9 higher than credited to Buddie Myer. Sammy West drove over 75, with Joe Judge's 71 being the only figure topping the 70 mark.

Max Bishop, of the Mackmen, was so particular at the kind of offerings at which he swung that opposing pitchers evidently became weary trying to fool him, and he averaged almost a pass a game, walking 128 times in 129 games. Lou Blue, of the Browns, was made a pedestrian 126 times, while others who coaxed at least 100 free trips to first were Lou Gherig, of the Yankees, with 122, and Jimmy Foxx, of the Macks, with 108.

Ruth, who invariably has coaxed more than 100 passes and holds the record—170—walked but 72 times last season. Washington's greatest stroller was Joe Judge, who was franked on 73 occasions.

"Midget Joe" Sewell, of the Indians, showed that he still retains his eagle eye at the plate by equaling his own world's record of but four strike-outs in 154 games. Mickey Cochrane, of the A's, fanned but eight times, while Same Rice was sent back to the bench talking to himself but nine times. Sam West was the easiest Nat to fool, disturbing the ozone 41 times, with Jimmy Foxx the league leader. The Athletic first sacker fanned 70 times, Gehrig was a strike-out victim on 68 occasions, while Ruth whiffed 60 times.

Hitting Power Added by Bush

Jolley, Harris, Moore to Put Big Punch in Outfield.

Comiskey's Return to Game Marked by Free Spending.

This is another of a series of stories dealing with major league baseball prospects for 1930.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Two of the keenest minds in baseball, Charles A. Comiskey and Donie Bush, threaten to hand the American League its biggest surprise package in 1930 with their rejuvenated White Sox.

Hitting baseball's come-back trail together, the "Old Roman," who at 70 is planning and spending as never before to realize his dream of another pennant winner, and his new manager have strengthened the 1929 team with a large and exceedingly promising group of youngsters with which they hope to gain at least a first division berth in the coming championship struggle.

Hitters and more of them has been Manager Bush's demand during the winter's raid on the ivory marts. Last year, the White Sox finished in seventh place because of a famine of base hits, losing 35 games by the slim margin of one run. This year, Bush believes, he will have that extra punch at the plate while the pitching and fielding, always good, should be much the same and better if a few rookies deliver.

Smead Jolley Adds Batting Punch.

Smead Jolley, slugging 6-footer from San Francisco, of the Pacific Coast League, who made a big dent in the Comiskey purse, is one recruit almost certain to give the White Sox more offensive power. Jolley led the Pacific Coast circuit batters for five years, even outhitting his former teammates, Earl Averill and Roy Johnson, whose batting in their first American League season last year was outstanding. Two other hard-hitting outfield recruits will get a chance with Jolley—Dave Harris, who batted .363 for Portland last season, and Jimmy Moore, who hit at a .366 clip for Dallas of the Texas League in 1929.

Bush, always a stickler for a fast infield, will have two promising recruits in Irvin Jefferies, who can play either second or third and who led the Texas League in fielding while batting .308 last year, and Ernest Smith, a shortstop from Birmingham who was voted the most valuable player in the Southern League in 1929.

Kamm, Cissell and Shires Return.

Willie Kamm, the best fielding third baseman in the American League for the past two seasons, will be back at his old post, while Bill Cissell will be at shortstop or second base and should be an improved player. Charles Arthur Shires doubtlessly will forget about his boxing ventures and play first base for Bush, who has a knack for getting the best out of players of the "great one's" temperament. Shires hit .312 during his abbreviated 1929 season.

Out of the large group of pitching hopefuls, who the White Sox take with them to San Antonio, Tex., next month, four are outstanding prospects to strengthen the able staff of Thomas, Lyons, Faber, McKain, Adkins and Weiland. They are Pat Caraway, a southpaw, who hung up the unique record of leading the Western League in innings pitched and in the least number of allowed hits with the tail-end Topeka Club last year; Vic Frasier, a righthander, who won 15 and lost 8 for Dallas in 1929; Lou Garland, a righthanded speed ball hurler from Joplin, Mo., and "Dutch" Henry.

The catching staff is one big worry, however, Moe Berg and "Buck" Crouse should improve, but Manager Bush wants another one and is having a hard time getting one at any price.

"We will have a young, fighting club with a world of possibilities," said Owner Comiskey, who has all but recovered from the illness that kept him away from baseball most of the 1929 season. "I regard Donie Bush as one of the smartest managers in baseball and I stand ready to back him in every way. I want another pennant winner and we're going to surprise in 1930."

CENTRAL AND TECH FIVES IN SERIES FEATURE TODAY

Day's Results May Bring Triple Tie

Central Must Solve Zone Defense to Gain Victory.

Business Five Faces Elimination in Western Contest.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER.

A TRIPLE tie for first place in the Interhigh Basketball League may result today when Central and Tech, long traditional rivals, clash in the nightcap of a twin bill which will be opened by the Business and Western Fives at 3:45 p. m. in the Tech High gymnasium.

Should Western take the measure of the Stenogs and Tech throw Central for its first loss in the 1929 race, Central, Western and Tech would all be tied for the leadership of the league. At present Central is leading the pack with two wins in as many starts, while Western and Tech each have split even in two games.

Always a drawing card, the Central-Tech game is bound to pack 'em in even a little tighter than usual today in view of the tenseness of the situation. A win for the Blue and White tossers would send them into a commanding lead in the current race, while a victory for the Maroon and Gray would place both of the teams on even footing, for the time being, at least.

Central Must Solve Zone Defense.

To beat Tech, Central will be called upon to solve the famed zone defense of the Manual Trainers which carried them through to a title in 1929. Although penetrated successfully by Business in the champs' opening game some time ago, Coach Artie Boyd's shifted line-up worked it to perfection against Western last Tuesday, handily defeating the Red and White tossers. And the Manual Trainers likewise exhibited a scoring demon in Everett Russell in that game, who ran wild all afternoon to score six field goals and half as many fouls. Together with George Talburtt, a running mate at forward, the pair constituted the entire Maroon and Gray attack.

However, Central will present its own duo of point-making aces today in Capt. Wilbur Cross and Downey Rice, forward and center, respectively. Rice and Cross have proved the big punch of the Central team this year as far as the scoring goes, and seemed destined to be two of the highest scorers in the series before the season is completed.

Coach Bert Coggins, moreover, has two additional men on his team, who though taking no large part in the scoring, having proven invaluable cogs of the Blue and White machine. The guarding of both Parkins and Lampson has been of high quality and only one forward has scored more than one basket during a game when guarded by this pair. Barney Kane, of Eastern, who rang up two field goals in the opening fray of the season, was the only man to score twice from the floor off either of this pair.

Business Facing Elimination.

In the opener of the twin bill a Business Five, fighting to escape elimination, will meet Western's rangy band of courtmen who are striving to stay in the thick of the fight. For Business, a defeat today would end any hope for the title to which its followers still cling, while Western will take no chances of dropping its second game which usually eliminates a team from the running. In view of the seeming equality of the teams this year, however, Business' two defeats at present can not be counted as absolutely fatal.

A feature of the Western-Business contest will be the battle of the opposing centers, Bob Freeman and Spencer Chase, who are considered by many to be the outstanding tap-off men in the series. Freeman, an all-high choice for the position last year, will be meeting Chase for the first time today, inasmuch as the latter was not at Business in 1929. Both are long, rangy lads and possess a towering reach which has given them the advantage over all their opponents this season. It will be interesting to see who gets the "tap" today. To date each has scored the same number of field goals, five, but Chase has outscored his rival, 8 to 5, from the foul line.

CARDS OVERWHELMED.

The Southwest Boys' Club passers scored freely last night to defeat the Cardinal Five, 94 to 23. Nowakovitz, Pell, Gevinson and Heffelfinger were the chief scorers for the victors. Stultz performed best for the losers. The winners are listing games at Metropolitan 0489.

Others were outrun.

SUN WORSHIP, away well, raced THE OKAH into submission, opened wide lead, came to middle of track, but tired and just lasted. WATER LAD worked his way up and, saving ground, finished with a rush. THE OKAH had speed, but weakened in final furlong. SCOTT ranged wide. NOR'EASTER quit badly.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:28½. Winner, B. B. Stable's ch. g. FIRST MIAMI FEATURE TO GUN ROYAL Favorites Win Most Races Over Muddy Hialeah Track.

MIAMI RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Under miserable weather conditions, the Miami Jockey Club ushered in its 45-day meeting today with a crowd estimated at 5,000, the grandstand being half filled and the club house fairly well patronized.

The betting system used was the "envelope system" and it is operating without the slightest hitch. The better puts his money in an envelope, writes the bet with the name of the horse on the outside and signs his name or initials. He can collect immediately after the race.

The rain of last night and today was the cause of the light attendance. The track was a sea of mud, but favorites won the first three events.

Fred O. Eberhardt, Tallahassee publisher, who asserted some time ago that he intends to stop racing in the State, was at today's inaugural event. He was at the office of General Manager Frank Bruen during the program awaiting a conference with the latter. Eberhardt said he had no statement to make.

Bruen said he had not talked to Mr. Eberhardt and consequently did not know his purpose in visiting the Hialeah plant.

The feature race, the Miami Inaugural Handicap, was fourth on the card and it went to M. Stern's Gun Royal, which was backed from 5 to 1 down to 7-2. C. E. Hamilton's Herrick was second and G. D. Widener's Partisan was third. Gun Royal followed the pace set by Sun Meddler and when the latter ran out on the turn, Gun Royal took the lead and won by three lengths. Tutti Frutti, the South American horse, was a disappointment and finished fifth without any mishap. The form players were very successful as a whole.

Woodlawn Five Wins 7th Straight Game

In winning a close decision over the Remsen A. C. Five last night in the Takoma Park Fire Department gym the Woodlawn Cagers gained their seventh consecutive victory. The victors overcame a 19-to-15 lead garnered by the Remsens in the first half and finished on the long end of a 37-33 count.

ALEXANDRIA MOVES TO PAY ARLINGTON

BONDS WILL COVER COST

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
319 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A resolution was introduced at the meeting of city council yesterday for appropriation of $502,500 for payment to Arlington County of the amounts and interest provided for in the decree permitting the city to annex a portion of Arlington County, which includes the Town of Potomac. The resolution also provides for the assumption of bonds of the Town of Potomac amounting to $99,000 and notes and current indebtedness amounting to $20,000. The resolution was held over under the rules. When the resolution receives its final approval the amount due Arlington County will be paid out of the bond issue for $750,000 recently floated by the city.

The council approved an ordinance introduced at the last meeting, appropriating $5,000 for the payment of attorneys' fees in connection with the annexation proceedings. Councilman Ticer stated he felt the amount allowed for this purpose was too high, and voted against the ordinance.

A communication was received from Gilbert J. Cox, secretary of the city school board, recommending a change in the present boundaries of the two school districts of the city. This matter was held for further consideration, the councilmen agreeing that a change should be made, but desiring to look into the matter further before reaching a decision.

The city manager transmitted correspondence between William F. Clarke, of 401 Glebe road, Potomac, and the town council of Potomac, in regard to the installation of a street light, and he reported that he had arranged to take care of the matter by installing a light at Montrose avenue and Glebe road.

Mrs. T. Clifton Howard and Miss Esther Green addressed a letter to the council calling attention to the fact that for a number of years past the council had permitted the sale of artificial cherries on the streets on February 22 for the benefit of the playgrounds; that the playgrounds have now been taken over by the city and no longer needed this aid and requested that a similar sale be permitted this year for the benefit of the children's home and day nursery. The permission was granted.

The report of the legislative committee of the League of Virginia Municipalities was submitted, making certain recommendations, and the mayor and city manager were authorized to take such action as might be deemed appropriate with regard to the report.

A letter addressed to Councilman Fannon by C. F. Johnson protesting against the condition of the vacant lot on the 100 block Cameron street formerly occupied by the passenger station of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad, but more recently used by the city to store road machinery and other articles, was read and referred to the city manager for attention.

On motion of Councilman Timberman, the council appropriated $200 to help defray the cost of entertaining Gov. John Garland Pollard and the Virginia Legislature, who will be in Alexandria today. The governor and members of the legislature will attend a meeting of the National Park and Planning Commission and will be entertained jointly by the City of Alexandria and the Counties of Arlington and Fairfax. Alexandria and Arlington County will each bear two-fifths of the expense and Fairfax County one-fifth. The party will be entertained at dinner in the George Mason Hotel tonight.

Mayor Smoot brought up the question of extending Royal street north beyond Madison street, its present terminus, and asked that the members of council inspect the territory.

City Attorney Carl Budwesky informed the council that a suit is now pending in the corporation court, which was instituted by the Town of Potomac against Robert L. May, owner of the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington bus line, to enforce payment of a tax imposed by Potomac for the operation of his busses through the town, the prosecution of the suit passing into the hands of the Alexandria council upon the annexation of Potomac. The councilmen expressed the opinion that no difficulty would be experienced in collecting the amount, and instructed Attorney Budwesky to attempt the collection of this tax and, if unsuccessful, to report back to the council for further instructions, the suit, in the meantime, to be held up. The tax was understood to be $10 for each bus operated, and to have remained unpaid for several years.

At the suggestion of Councilman Ticer, the council gave a vote of thanks to State Senator Frank L. Ball, Delegate J. Fred Birrell, and Delegate Hugh Reid, of Arlington County, for their service in securing the passage of an amendment to the city charter in regard to bond issues of the city.

An ordinance presented by City Attorney Budwesky, placing the city tax on billboard and pool rooms at $50 a year, with an additional $10 for each table, in excess of two tables, was adopted.

Councilman Ticer called attention to the condition of the Mount Vernon road, between Hume Station and the beginning of the county improvement at Four Mile Run, and stated that since the traffic between Alexandria and Washington has been diverted over that road since the beginning of the improvement of the River road, it is imperative that the Mount Vernon road be improved. The city manager was instructed to take steps to remedy the con[illegible].

Adjutant Harrison Spicer, of the Salvation Army, appe[illegible] council and asked f[illegible] that all the money spent by his organization for a number o[illegible] past had been contributed by tourists visiting Mount Vernon. He read a list of his accomplishments, which included furnishing beds to 230 men, meals to 200, clothing to 75 men, women and children, transportation to 15, Christmas baskets to 15 families and feeding 138 people at Christmas, and coal for 5 families. The organization disbursed for these works $211.76, none of which, he said, was received from Alexandria.

According to reports, Bayliss had parked his automobile and gone to the assistance of a tourist whose car had gone into a ditch, when he was struck by a passing bus. He was taken to the Marine Hospital at Quantico and given first-aid treatment and later carried to the Alexandria Hospital, where he is being treated by Dr. Samuel B. Moore for injuries to his head and shoulder. He is still unconscious, and the hospital authorities believe his skull may be fractured. He has a wife and three children.

Cumberland Labor Officers Elected

Member of State Assembly Heads Allegany Trade Council.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 16.—Irvin C Hamilton, member of the Maryland House of Delegates and president of the Maryland State and District of Columbia Federation of Labor, last night was reelected president of the Allegheny Trades Council, the central labor body, at its annual meeting. Robert R. Kimble, who was chairman of the meeting, declined to enter a race for the presidency, saying he did not wish to oppose Mr. Hamilton, who has been absent from the city several weeks on business.

Other officers elected are: William Munro, vice president; George W. Lucas, secretary, and A. C. Mullan, financial secretary and treasurer. About 200 attended the meeting, which adjourned to the City Hall Auditorium, after the business session.

Addresses were delivered by Col. Thomas G. Pownall, Morgan C. Harris, member of the House of Delegates from Allegany County, who spoke on legislation affecting labor; the Rev. Charles R. Strausburg, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant Church, who discussed the relation between labor and the church, and former Sheriff Harry Irvine, a past president of the Trades Council.

All Naval Graduates To Be Commissioned

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 16.—That all midshipmen of the first class at the Naval Academy will be commissioned as ensigns in the line at commencement ceremonies in June was the announcement made by officials of the institution today. That is, of course, if they are found qualified in all examinations.

Doubt of this had existed in the minds of many of the midshipmen because of the large number of younger officers now on the rolls. This situation, however, has been relieved by decision of the Navy Department to permit ensigns of the classes of 1928 and 1929 to resign from the services between April 1 and June 30 of this year if they so elect. This rescinds a regulation that has been in vogue for several years, the department holding that the Navy was entitled to at least two years' service of academy graduates before any resignations would be considered, except, of course, by reason of physical deficiency.

James M. Corbin Dies At Home in Hamilton

Special to The Washington Post.

The deceased is survived by his wife, who was Miss Rosa Shumaker, of this county, two daughters and four sons. His funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from his late residence, with interment at Lakeview Cemetery, Hamilton.

Invitation to Ball Given Governors

Pollard and Ritchie Are Asked to Virginians' Affair Here.

Both Gov. John G. Pollard of Virginia and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, who are expected here today, with various members of the Virginia Legislature, have been invited to attend the annual Lee-Jackson ball, to be given by the Virginia Society at 9:30 o'clock tonight at the Willard Hotel.

Preceding the dance, the society will hold an hour's meeting with a talk by Mrs. Charles G. Danier, president of the Lee National Memorial Association, on the work of that organization for "Stratford," Lee's home as a youth, and by Thomas S. Suttle, president of the Virginia Society, on the work of the Federal Government in restoring the Lee mansion at Arlington. Confederate songs will be rendered by Mrs. David H. Kincheloe, wife of Representative Kincheloe, of Kentucky.

During the ball, with members of Confederate Veterans Camp No. 171 as honor guests, bridge games will be in progress with Mrs. Richard A. Allen as hostess and Miss Mary Norris McCabe as chairman.

INDUSTRIAL PERILS CITED TO VIRGINIANS

BUSINESS NOT PROGRESS

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Placing first rating on the individual's value to society and warning against the dangers of an insecure industrial system, J. Gordon Bohannan, president of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, told the organization here today that true progress must be measured by the extent to which it produces better citizens.

Virginia must not be industrialized at the sacrifice of the ideals and traditions of the State, said Mr. Bohannan, but those social, political and religious qualities that have characterized its life must be carried into whatever progress it achieves.

The tendency toward industrialization will bring new problems that must be met, Mr. Bohannan said. "Our industrial system must be established on a sound basis and should offer no opportunity for the activities of agitators, or else we may find that our industrial growth may be suddenly stunted and that the disadvantage may outweigh its benefits."

Output Not Progress.

Virginia can afford to be selective in its quest for new industries, he stated as his belief, but asserted that there is no place in the industrial system of any State for industries seeking cheap and submissive labor.

"Progress," said Mr. Bohannan, "can not be measured solely in terms of any industrial development, of invested capital, of increases in the value of factory output, in the number of men and women employed in industry, or in the pay rolls distributed to them.

"These things must bring the people something more than material gain. It is only in that they enrich the lives of the people that they can make better men and women and better citizens that they afford larger opportunities for the attainment of those things which increased wealth may bring.

"Industrial activities and material progress and their rewards must be made the basis, not only of economic welfare, but the foundations of social and intellectual advancement as well."

In spite of its industrial development, Mr. Bohannan said, Virginia is still an agricultural State, with a population approximately 70 per cent rural. As a result, some of the most important problems that arise are those in connection with farmers.

Changes In Education.

Changes in the social and economic life of the State demand that they be taken into account in ordering a system of education, he said, in order to preserve cultural education while technical and vocational training are being furthered. Public health was closely associated with economic, civic and social phases of life.

Reviewing the activities of the State Chamber of Commerce during the year, Mr. Bohannan called attention to the report of the committee on taxation, recently made public, calling it one of the most comprehensive reviews and analyses of the tax situation in Virginia ever published.

The State's greatest opportunity for material development lies today probably in the continued increase of its industrial output and expansion of trade, said Mr. Bohannan. Raw materials, fuel and power, superior climatic conditions, favorable location with reference to the center of population and with respect to domestic and foreign markets, transportation facilities, favorable labor costs and costs of living and capable labor make this true, he said.

Airports Held Necessary.

Mr. Bohannan urged on the chamber of commerce committee on transportation the necessity of encouraging the building of additional airports in Virginia and the development of transportation by air. "The community which fails to provide facilities in the way of landing fields for passenger planes, or for planes carrying light freight and express, will within a comparatively few years find itself deprived of the advantages which this new method of transportation will bring," he declared.

A caution against "resting on our oars" concluded the address of Mr. Bohannan. "We are inclined to think at times," he said, "that the material advancement of Virginia, having been put into motion, will continue by the momentum which it has gathered.

"The danger lies in complacency, in contentment with things as they are. Ignorance—and I do not mean mere illiteracy — selfishness, provincialism and sectionalism must be contended with. The opportunities for service today are as great, if not greater, than they were six years ago. The reawakened Virginia needs the help of those who, linking themselves with the forces which make for progress and human betterment, would seek to lead her into the new life into which she is merging."

Insurance Rates Cut in Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 16.—The insurance committee of the Annapolis Chamber of Commerce announced today the successful culmination of a long fight for a reduction in insurance rates on dwelling houses in Annapolis. A cut of six cents per $100 down the line, based upon type of construction, will be made, the middle division of the national board of underwriters has advised. Compared to existing rates, the percentage of reduction varies from 18 to 25.

Annapolis has three volunteer fire departments that are better equipped for fire fighting than most cities of its size, and this defense was a material factor in obtaining a rate reduction. Hope now is held that there will be some slight cut on commercial establishments within the near future.

JUDGE BARS STRIKE TRIAL AT GASTONIA

Case of Alleged Killers of Mrs. Wiggin Is Sent to Charlotte.

DEFENSE IS OVERRULED

Gastonia, N. C., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Five men, charged with second degree murder of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, Bessemer City cotton-mill worker killed during mob disorders here September 14, will go on trial in Mecklenburg Superior Court, Charlotte, February 24.

Presiding Judge J. H. Clement, on motion of State Attorney General Dennis G. Brummitt, today ordered the trials removed from Gaston County to Charlotte. Judge Clement said he agreed with the attorney general in his contention as a fair and impartial trial here was improbable.

Slain While in Truck.

Mrs. Wiggins, a member of the National Textile Workers Union, was slain, the State contends, by members of a mob which prevented her and other Bessemer City members of the union from attending a district union meeting here.

She was shot while in a truck on the Bessemer City-Gastonia highway, five miles from here, after the group had been turned back by a mob. She was a widow and the mother of five children.

The grand jury yesterday returned true bills against five of fourteen men held for it after a preliminary investigation of the slaying. Those indicted were Horace Wheelus, Troy Jones, Lowry Davis, Fred Morrow, and O. H. Lunsford, all Gaston County textile mill workers. They are at liberty under bond.

Defence Opposes Shift.

The motion of Mr. Brummitt, who was requested to assist in the prosecution by Gov. O. Max Gardner, was against the wishes of Solicitor John G. Carpenter and of defense counsel. In opposing the removal, the defense presented nearly 200 affidavits from Gaston County citizens asserting the defendants would be given an impartial trial here.

In asking a change of venue, Attorney General Brummitt said textile strikes and labor disturbances here the past summer had caused a majority of the citizens of the county to form opinions on the case.

Standardsville Is Hit By $40,000 Fire Loss

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 16.—Flames originating in the Blakey Mercantile Co. building at Standardsville, county seat of Greene, early this morning wiped out a large part of the town's business section, causing an estimated loss of more than $40,000 and including in its wake the postoffice building and the Spottswood Hotel and filling station.

Several hours' labor by bucket brigades saved the store and residence of L. M. Marshall, adjoining the hotel. Stores and residences immediately across the street from the burning buildings were scorched in many places. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Lynchburg Police Urge Bertillon System Use

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 16.—The police department here will recommend to the city council at its next meeting the inauguration of the Bertillon system for use here, provision having been made in the current budget for the work.

The plan also carries the appointment of a full-time clerk for the department, this meaning the segregation of the municipal court work in the future.

Cleveland, of Seminary, for Falls Church district; Mrs. Arthur H. Buell and Miss Mamie Bready, of Herndon, and Marvin Sanders, of Colvin Run, for Dranesville district. Mrs. Elton R. Holbrook was elected as secretary of the general nursing committee. The Fairfax County health nurse, Mrs. Herbert Seamons, addressed the committee, discussing some of the problems she encounters in her daily work. The need of securing the full cooperation of family physicians in the work of the health unit was specially stressed. It was urged that every community establish a loan chest where hospital and nursing supplies can be readily obtained for all emergencies. In case of sickness in the neighborhood the members of the committees are requested to notify the health nurse at once.

The stockholders of the National Bank of Herndon elected Dr. Ernst L. Robey, J. F. Ryan, William Grigton, M. H. Middleton, Warren M. McNair, T. Edgar Reed and Mark Turner as the board of directors for the coming year. Dr. E. L. Robey was reelected as president; J. F. Ryan, vice president; A. E. Bradshaw, cashier, and James Myers, assistant cashier.

The stockholders of the Herndon Ice & Supply Co. held their annual meeting and elected A. S. Harrison, president; Dr. Ernst L. Robey, vice president, and R. L. Chamblin, secretary and general manager. It was also voted to declare a 40 per cent dividend.

The stockholders of the Herndon Water Co. met for the annual election of officers and C. M. Lawrence was selected as president; Dr. E. L. Robey, vice president; Dr. E. L. Detwiler, secretary, and A. E. Bradshaw, treasurer.

The directors of both companies discussed the offer of a large corporation to buy the interests of the stockholders in these enterprises, which now are owned by local persons. The large corporation plans to take over the two companies, combine them, and to work on a much larger scale in an effort to expand their business.

The Washington Air Terminal Corporation, a subsidiary of the Federal Aviation Corporation, which recently purchased the flying field at Hybla Valley, in Mount Vernon district, has asked for a hearing before the State Corporation Commission. The commission has granted their request and the hearing has been set for January 28 at 10 a. m. The Washington corporation wishes to improve the Fairfax County field and to make it one of a large chain of airports to be maintained. According to a recent report, a half a million dollars will be spent in the improvement of the flying field at Hybla Valley, which contains 1,300 acres. The field has been an airport for several years and the corporation plans to make it a school for advanced flying at which all subjects dealing with aeronautics will be taught. Shops for the servicing and repairing of planes and large hangars for their storage also will be constructed at the field.

The corporation recently purchased Arlington Beach as a site that was accessible to flying boats and seaplanes.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilber T. Woodson, of this county, has requested that in all the grades of both elementary and high schools of the county where examinations on subject matter are given that the teachers no longer set aside a certain week for examinations, but that the examinations be given in sections and in regular class periods. He states that if one school period should appear too short two periods may be combined for one section of the examination. He suggests that the teachers shift their class periods so that the examinations may be given in the morning if possible. In this way the examinations would be more in the nature of tests extended over two or three weeks and should cause less upheaval than is customary under the old method.

Under this plan it will not be necessary to dismiss the pupils when an examination has been completed, but the daily school program will be followed out. Superintendent Woodson states that this plan, which has proved successful in many counties of the State, has been tried and has proved its merit in several of the schools in Fairfax.

Night before last a large stock barn on the farm of William Caudle, near Bull Run, was destroyed by fire. The loss was estimated to be about $10,000. The barn contained a large amount of hay and grain and all the farming implements. Two teams of horses and nine milk cows perished in the fire.

The fire occurred just at dark, when Caudle entered the barn with a lighted lantern, which he hung on a nail. He stepped out of the barn a moment and when he returned the lantern had fallen and exploded, setting fire to the hay. The flames spread rapidly and in a few seconds the entire barn was enveloped.

Oswald Carper, of Forestville, recently elected president of Fairfax County Pomona Grange, will install the officers of the Mount Vernon Grange at their meeting tonight.

The January meeting of the Floris Grange will be held in the school auditorium at Floris this evening.

The men's class of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will entertain the ladies' class in the social rooms of the church tonight. A one-act play and a musical program under the direction of Clarence Shotwell will be given.

Wine were selected as trustees, with Mrs. Grace L. Mathers as clerk and Mrs. Nannie K. Johnson treasurer. The annual reports indicate that the indebtedness of the church will be paid within a short time.

There will be a meeting of the Centerville School and Community League in the schoolhouse tonight.

The Andrew Chapel School and Community League will meet this evening. A special program has been planned by the school children.

The Junior League of the Andrew Chapel School will meet this afternoon.

Branch Railroad Opened in Virginia

Service Is Inaugurated on Spur of S. A. L. Running Into Hopewell.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 16.—Running of three freight trains in different sections marked the formal opening this afternoon of the new branch line of the Seaboard Air Line Railway. The extension runs from Bellwood, Chesterfield County, to Hopewell, a distance of about 16 miles, and was constructed at a cost of a little more than a million dollars. The three trains over the new line will run from Richmond to Hopewell. The celebration was attended by some twenty or more high officials of the Seaboard Air Line System, headed by L. R. Powell, jr., president. This new branch connects with the main line of the Seaboard Air Line Railway and gives to Hopewell two railways, namely, the Air Line and the Norfolk & Western.

The officials of the Air Line System came to Hopewell to attend the celebration. Later in the afternoon one of the most elaborate banquets ever given in Hopewell was tendered by the Seaboard Air Line Railway to its officials and guests.

BIOLOGICAL BUREAU FOR SEAFOOD URGED

Virginia Delegate's Bill Is Aimed at Creation of Salaried Office.

OTHER MEASURES CITED

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Jan. 16.—As the first act in the projected seafood industry revision scheduled for the present session of the General Assembly, Mrs. C. C. White, of Mathews, only woman member of the House, today introduced a bill that would create a biological bureau at the College of William and Mary for a study of the industry from a biological standpoint.

This was just one of a flood of bills dumped into the hopper during the brief half-hour session today and is the first of the bills that would carry into effect recommendations of Tidewater delegates who, with Gov. Pollard, have been studying the seafood situation for the past six weeks.

Mrs. White's bill would authorize employment by the commission of fisheries of a marine biologist to be nominated by the president of the college, and subject to the approval of the governor. The bill would provide for a salary of not more than $5,000, and would appropriate $25,000 for work during the coming biennium. It would also be provided that oyster inspection service, now done by the health department, might be transferred to any other department, apparently anticipating a transfer to the biological bureau which this bill would provide.

Rockefeller Invited to Talk.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., whose funds are being used in the restoration of Williamsburg, was invited to address the Assembly at his pleasure some time during the present session in a resolution offered by Senator Robert O. Norris, jr., of Lancaster, and unanimously adopted by both houses.

Another joint resolution, calling for adjournment this afternoon until Monday noon was adopted, the action being taken because of the projected trip to Washington tomorrow to hear plans of the National Park and Planning Commission and to be guests of the Chamber of Commerce of Alexandria City, and Arlington and Fairfax Counties.

The more important bills introduced into House were:

By Delegate Charles W. Moss, Richmond, a bill which would raise the maximum payable under the workmen's compensation act from $12 to $18 a week.

Parking Provision Bill.

By Delegate Charles W. Moss, Richmond, a bill which would give city councils the right to authorize the city manager or other designated officer to classify vehicles with reference to parking and to designate the time, place and manner of parking.

By Delegate E. C. Folkes, Richmond, a bill which would define as larceny the failure of a motorist to return a borrowed or rented battery.

By Delegate G. A. Massenburg, Hampton, a bill that would provide that the town of Phoebus could not be held responsible for injuries because of the negligence of any of its officers or of itself unless complaint be made in writing within 30 days after such cause for action.

By Delegate Vivian L. Page, Norfolk, a bill that would prohibit justices of the peace from accepting claims for collection or acting in cases involving close relatives without written consent of all parties concerned.

State Highway Attributes.

By Delegate R. L. Jeffreys, jr., Mecklenburg, a bill that would make all entrances and driveways in State intersections a part of the State highway system.

By Mrs. C. C. White, Mathews, a bill that would include the road from Hudgins to Crickett Hill, Mathews County, in the State highway system, providing the owner of Gwynns Ferry, a nonprofit community organization, will, without cost, convey its rights to the State.

In addition there were many bills of a purely local nature, one of which would authorize the boards of supervisors of Highland and Bath Counties to pass regulations prohibiting fishing on Sunday.

False Teeth Cut From Stomach.

Madrid, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Domingo Navarro, a peasant of Santo Domingo de la Calzada, near Logrono, swallowed his set of false teeth during a fit of coughing. His condition becoming serious, he had to be operated upon in Madrid to extract them.

DIVERSIFIED CROPS AID VIRGINIA FARMS

OFFICIAL REPORT ISSUED

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—While Virginia has suffered during the period of agricultural depression and continues to struggle with other States under the influence of inequality in the farmer's economic status, the State is not addicted to wholesale production of "something that is not wanted," is the opening declaration of the 1930 bulletin of the department of agriculture and immigration.

In other words, the bulletin explains, Virginia farmers have learned through diversification not to lean too heavily on this or that crop, meeting adversity when prices tumble because of a surplus. There is, it adds, "always another rung in the ladder."

Farmers who practice diversification "can at least save themselves," the bulletin continues, "and the fact that many Virginia farmers do practice diversification and that most sections have two and three cash value crops is responsible for a more favorable condition of Virginia agriculture as compared with many other States."

Drought Reduces Corn.

Crop production in 1929, it is stated, was less than in the preceding year, but some of the most important cash-value crops showed better returns than in 1928. Preliminary estimates placed the total farm crops and livestock income around $200,000,000, a slight increase over 1928.

Detailing a review of other agricultural conditions during the last twelve months the 1930 bulletin, prepared under the direction of G. W. Koiner, commissioner of agriculture and immigration, says:

"The production of corn, the most important crop grown in the State (not in cash value, however, as the bulk is fed to live stock) was less than usual, due to severe drought in the heaviest producing section and light rainfall during August in other sections. The hay crop, second in acreage and second in importance to the live stock industry, was considerably above the average, but in the northern part of the State the crop was short and dairy farmers will be forced to purchase more feed.

"The total value of the wheat crop was less than in 1928. Many farmers sold early in the season when prices were low. Other small grains made about average yields.

Potato Prices Satisfactory.

"The yield in potatoes on the Eastern Shore and in the Norfolk sections was not so heavy as the previous year, but prices were satisfactory and the growers received twice as much as for the large crop of the previous year. The increase from other trucks was also larger than in 1928.

"The tobacco crop furnishes the principal source of income for 25 per cent of Virginia farmers. It is estimated that final returns from this crop should show an increase of from 15 to 25 per cent over last year. Cotton and peanuts are the principal crops in twelve southeastern counties and these crops enter into the farm program of some of the tobacco counties. It is estimated that the income from these crops will show a slight increase over last year.

"The commercial apple crop was about 20 per cent less than last year, but prices were nearly 50 per cent higher, and the growers may finally receive more money. Peach production was large but the quality and prices were disappointing.

Dairy Industry Improves.

"Livestock farmers had a fairly satisfactory season. The lamb crop was good and while prices did not average as much as in 1928, most growers received satisfactory returns. The number of hogs produced was less, but prices averaged slightly higher.

"There was considerable increase in the dairy industry. More farmers on the smaller farms are selling milk and cream. There has been considerable improvement in the methods of feeding and handling cows. Milk production during the first six months was nearly 20 per cent greater than in 1928, but the poor pastures during the third quarter resulted in a decline in production. Prices averaged almost as high as in 1928, so the total income was larger in 1929.

"The poultry industry has assumed considerable proportions in Virginia and the income is well distributed throughout the State. Owing to a reduction in the number of hens on farms, the production of eggs was less than in 1928 but prices were unusually good. The production of chicks increased about 10 or 15 per cent and prices held up very well in view of increased supplies.

"The 1929 season, therefore, shows improvement over last year in all parts of the State except in the northern and eastern counties, where the drought caused such a heavy loss in crops.

Temporary Loss of Job Causes Man to Take Life

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 16.—Charles Hawthorne, 32, electrician, committed suicide by swallowing poison at an early hour this morning. Although notes were left his mother and his sweetheart, neither ascribed a reason for the act. He implored their forgiveness and said they "would understand if they only knew."

Hawthorne spent last evening with the girl to whom he addressed one
